Soviet Declared Ready To Ship Arms to Spain; Stalin Sees War Near

Russia May Bolt Pact, Send War Planes to Capital.

Insurgents Seize Important Outpost

Rebels Now in Sight of Madrid Lights; Attack El Escorial.

The Situation Abroad.

Soviet Russia was reported to have decided to bolt the neutrality pact and send war planes to the Madrid government.

In London, observers believed Russia would renounce the nonintervention pact at the next meeting of the neutrality committee expected to be held tomorrow.

Germany answered Russian charges that she had aided the Spanish rebels with countercharges that Russia had assisted the Madrid government.

Women in Madrid continued their recruiting drive, and it was announced that 100,000 men had been added to the loyalist army defending the capital.

Ready to Send Arms.

By the Associated Press.

Moscow, Oct. 21.—Russia is ready to bolt the Spanish neutrality pact and send war planes to the Madrid government, authoritative sources said tonight.

With the Fascist insurgents striking ever closer to Madrid, these sources said, the Kremlin feels that it must send munitions and planes as the only way to prevent establishment of another Rightist dictatorship similar to those in Italy and Germany.

Highest officials were agreed that recent developments growing out of the Spanish war have created "the gravest days in Europe in two decades."

Dictator Josef Stalin, informed persons said, is convinced that Europe is nearing the abyss of another war, and that Russia must make her influence felt immediately and in the strongest and most unmistakable terms.

Reich Files Protest.

London, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Informed observers predicted tonight that Russia would renounce the Spanish non-intervention pact at the next meeting of the neutrality committee, expected to be held Friday.

Otto von Bismarck, German charge d'affaires at London, tonight handed a note to Lord Plymouth, chairman of the neutrality committee, charging that Russia had aided the Madrid government in violation of the pact.

The allegations were contained in the German government's note replying to previous Russian charges of intervention by Germany, Italy and Portugal on behalf of the Spanish insurgent Fascists.

Bismarck declined to make public the specific charges contained in the German note because of an agreement with Lord Plymouth.

High sources declined to confirm reports that Russia already had arranged arms shipments to be sent to Spain the moment her representatives bolt the pact.

Two Planes Shot Down.

Mostoles, 13 Miles From Madrid, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Fascist airmen today shot down two government war planes over Getafe Airport just outside Madrid as government militia retreated from Navalcarnero to this town, only 13 miles from the capital.

The opposing air armadas fought a dramatic battle over the airport, most important of Madrid's defenses and home field for its aerial army.

Swooping low, a Fascist gunner caught the two government machines with a lucky machine-gun fusillade. Two other government bombers headed to the north for safety.

Meanwhile, the Madrid troops were forced to retreat from Navalcarnero after a seven-hour bombardment by Fascist artillery and war planes.

The government troops entrenched in the hills outside Mostoles and took up positions on both sides of the highway just beyond an important bridge.

Pope Pius' Secretary of State Pays His First Visit to Capital

Cardinal Pacelli Is Highest-Ranking Dignitary of Church Ever to Come to U. S.; Will Face Full Program During His One Day Here.

Washington is host today to the highest-ranking dignitary of the Catholic Church ever to visit America—Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, who, as secretary of state for the Vatican, speaks for the Pope on all foreign affairs.

Cardinal Pacelli arrived here at 9 o'clock last night. He is a six-footer, years silver-rimmed spectacles and has a keen, ascetic face that broke into smiles last night as news photographers ordered him around and blinded him with flashlights.

He drove here from Baltimore in an 8-cylinder car loaned him by Mrs. Nicholas F. Brady, wealthy Long Island widow and a Papal Duchess. He was driven by George F. Jablonski, Mrs. Brady's chauffeur.

Jablonski has taken the Pope's "prime minister" to Boston, New Haven, Philadelphia and other cities on his American tour.

"He has never once said drive fast or drive slow," said Jablonski. "His Eminence is the farthest thing from a back-seat driver I've ever had."

When the car, escorted by two District motorcycle policemen, pulled up at the Apostolic Mission House, 1811 Biltmore street northwest dinner had been waiting for the Cardinal and the other guests for nearly an hour. He had been expected between 7:30 p. m. and 8 p. m.

With Cardinal Pacelli rode the Most Rev. G. Cicognani, the apostolic delegate to the United States. Together they posed on the steps. The cardinal, attired in a black cassock trimmed with red, the traditional red hat, and with a golden cross dangling from his neck, towered over rotund Archbishop Cicognani.

Entering the red-carpeted foyer of the house, Cardinal Pacelli could see two oil portraits, one of the present 79-year-old Pope Pius XI, and the other of Benedict XV, in

British Drop Mrs. Simpson News 'Curb'

Two English Magazines Will Publish Stories on Suit Today.

Virginia Closes Records of Her Action Against Spencer in 1927.

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

London, Oct. 21.—All England will learn tomorrow that King Edward's American friend, Mrs. Ernest (Wally) Simpson, has sued her home-loving husband for divorce.

Two British news magazines, Cavalcade and the Weekly News Review, will discuss, respectively, the divorce and the possibility of the King marrying a commoner. Both articles, however, have been written with restraint.

Until now, the entire British press voluntarily had refrained from mentioning the divorce suit, although it was a subject of discussion in exclusive Mayfair circles.

Kept Out of British Papers.

Cavalcade will say that a single American news agency sent more than 6,000 words about the King and Mrs. Simpson on one night last week and the other American news organizations sent equal amounts "while not one word was printed by British newspapers the next morning.

"The case is undefended. It is down for hearing before Mr. Justice Hawke. 'W. Simpson'—Mrs. Wallis Simpson, wife of the London ship charterer, Mr. Ernest Aldrich Simpson—was staying last week-end at Felixstowe, which is near Ipswich, before taking up residence at her new home at 16 Cumberland terrace, Regent Park."

Under the heading, "King and Commoner," the Weekly News Review will say:

"From most statute books and precedents constitutional lawyers last week ferreted out the information that King Edward need not marry a royal princess, but may wed a commoner."

Cites Royal Marriages.

The magazine cites royal marriages under the act of 1772, affecting descendants of King George II. It said:

"Since King Edward is a descendant of King George II and the statute has never been replaced, his consent given in privy council (not necessarily with the permission of the council) is all that is required for his marriage outside royalty.

"The only limitation on the King's choice of a bride is that which forbids him to marry a Catholic.

"The possibility of the King marrying was deduced last week by keen observers who noted that insurance rates against postponement of his coronation—only considered likely in the event of the King's marriage before June—had suddenly risen from four pounds four shillings per cent (per 100 pounds) to 26 pounds 5 shillings.

Greater Crowds.

"To traders hopeful of profiting from the coronation, and who last week were busily insuring themselves against postponement in case of possible marriage, the only compensation they would have would be the fact that the King's marriage to a commoner would attract greater crowds to the ceremony than if he were wedded to a royal princess."

King Edward, on a shooting party at his Sandringham estate, signalized the court's emergence today from nine months' formal mourning for his late father by appearing in a green Tyrolean hat decorated with a bright red cord, and brown plus-fours. He participated in his first shoot of the season. The King's stable also began racing today.

Mrs. Simpson was believed to be at Felixstowe, where she is established in a house served, among others, by two footmen from Fort Belvedere, one of the King's homes.

Policeman on Duty.

At her Cumberland terrace home here a uniformed policeman was on duty, in addition to a plainclothes representative of Scotland Yard. The policeman kept photographers from the vicinity.

A hundred and one stories about "Edward and Wally" are going the rounds, some authentic and some pure fiction. Among those with the appearance of being authentic were the following: That the King gave Mrs. Simpson an emerald necklace worth $125,000. Another gift is believed to be a large black limousine, identical to the King's.

Sources close to the throne say that King Edward's attitude is that he likes being King for five days of the week, but wants to have a private life of his own the other two days. They believe Mrs. Simpson's divorce will serve principally to regulate her friendship for the King.

2 Dead, Many Injured as Crowds Hail Roosevelt in New England; Landon Says 'Spoilsmen' Reign

Governor Charges Civil Service Is Menaced by Self-Seekers.

He Pledges Steps To Allay Abuses

By the Associated Press.

Aboard Landon Train en Route to Oklahoma City, Oct. 21.—Gov. Alf M. Landon tonight declared he took "My stand on the American system of government against all comers" in attributing to the New Deal "regimentation of the individual and curb of his liberties."

Halting his eastbound Presidential campaign special at Phoenix, Ariz., the Republican nominee stood on his private car's rear platform and said:

"Today the people of this country have a choice between the American system they have always known and an opposite system. This will determine whether they and their children will remain a free people, capable of self-government, or be dominated by an all-powerful central authority. We have watched this very thing happen in other nations in recent years."

Landon's train paused at Phoenix long after dark as it chugged from Los Angeles toward Oklahoma City, where a talk is scheduled Friday morning, and thence to powerful Eastern voting territory beyond.

Gathered about the Kansan's rear platform was a crowd estimated at 3,000 by C. M. Goodnight, captain of police.

Landon was introduced by J. J. Reuben Clark of Salt Lake City, Utah, former United States Ambassador to Mexico.

Listens to President.

Previously he had listened to a radio broadcast of President Roosevelt's Worcester, Mass., speech. A stenographer took down the words of his Democratic opponent saying the Supreme Court already has ruled many New Deal plans "contrary to our Constitution," Landon added at Phoenix:

"Unfortunately, we are left in no doubt that the present Administration regards this not as an end to their efforts, but only as a minor barrier to be circumvented if it can't be hurdled.

"This threatened change in our form of government is not remote. Its effects will strike directly at the homes, jobs and lives of every one of us. The realty of it is but too well known to us."

A telegram in which he asserted "the influx of spoilsmen into the Government service under this Administration was a great setback to the cause of good government," was made public today by Gov. Landon.

The Republican Presidential nominee said he would discuss civil service and the merit system in a public address soon.

Turning his campaign eastward, Gov. Landon moved on Phoenix for a speech tonight after a Los Angeles address, in which he asserted the New Deal has threatened to destroy the bill of rights. In a statement before the Los Angeles speech last night he said the Administration was "throwing the ball around wildly attempting to score."

Governor's Message.

His telegram mentioning spoilsmen was to Clifford N. Amsden, president of the Civil Service Assembly of the United States and Canada, meeting in Cincinnati. The message follows:

"Your organization is vitally interested in the strengthening and extension of the merit system for Government employes. I know of no problem that should command greater attention. The Republican Party in its platform pledged itself to the restoration and the extension of the merit system. I expressed my belief by

Son of Emancipator's Postmaster General Discovers Picture, Asks Aid of Post Readers in Identifying It.

Gist Blair, Washington attorney, yesterday announced the discovery of an unusual picture of Abraham Lincoln in the attic of his famous home. He called upon readers of The Post interested in Lincolniana to help him identify it.

Blair, whose father, Montgomery Blair, was Postmaster General under Lincoln, found the pencil sketch of a youthful and aesthetic looking Lincoln in an old chest among papers which have been in the attic undisturbed for more than 60 years.

A student of Civil War history, living 76 years in the historic Blair mansion at 1651 Pennsylvania avenue, across from the State Department, Blair yesterday said he never had seen a similar portrait. An autograph on the picture he identified as authentic.

Blair, who inherited great quantities of papers and documents from his grandfathers, Francis Preston Blair and Levi Woodbury, dating back to 1816, as well as his father's papers, donated most of the relics to the Library of Congress, where a niche is dedicated to him.

The unusual Lincoln portrait, however, was not found until recently. It was on the occasion of the publication of a photograph of Lincoln purchased last week by the Smithsonian Institution, that he decided to seek information about the picture.

"A good history of Lincoln never has been written," Blair said yesterday. "There are many things still unknown about him. But new details of the man and his life are being unearthed all the time. I hope that a truly great biographer gathers them all together and does a good history of him."

The pencil portrait, a print, belonged to his father, he assumed, because it was buried among his father's papers in the ancient attic of the house where the Proclamation of Emancipation was signed, the same house where Robert E.

Two women were dead, a man believed dying and many other persons injured after wild demonstrations that greeted President Roosevelt yesterday as he sped through New England on his campaign trip.

Miss Nancy Nichols, 65, died of heart failure at Worcester, Mass., when, unable to gain admittance to the President's meeting, she was required to walk home because of failure of trolley and bus service due to the crowds.

While awaiting the President in a crowd at Taunton, Mass., Mrs. Philomena Lema, 63, suffered a heart attack and died on the way to a hospital.

At Worcester the surging throngs tore down a 900-pound traffic pole, which fell into the crowd. George F. Moriarty, high school teacher, was believed dying, but four others struck by the falling pole suffered only minor injuries.

By the Associated Press.

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 21.—President Roosevelt tonight coupled an answer to what he called "talk about high taxes under this Administration" with an assertion that the Nation, as in 1776, must choose this year "between democracy in taxation and special privilege in taxation."

Speaking to a crowd packed into the auditorium here in the major speech of his swing through New England, the President asked:

"Are you willing to turn the control of the Nation's taxes back to special privilege? I know the American answer to that question. Your pay envelope may be loaded with suggestions of fear and your dividend letter may be filled with propaganda.

"But the American people will neither be bluffed nor bludgeoned. The seeds of fear cannot bear fruit in the polling booth."

Average Income Tax Cut.

Under the Administration, he said, the individual income tax of the average American has been reduced. He added:

"Any family head who earns an income of less than $26,000 a year pays a smaller income tax in 1936 than he paid for 1932. That means that less than 1 per cent of the heads of American families pay more than they did; and more than 99 per cent pay less than they did, for more than 99 per cent earn less than $26,000 per year."

He said that a number of "my friends" in the upper economic brackets had suggested that if he were re-elected they would move to some other country because of the high taxes. The President added:

"I will miss them very much, but if they go they will soon come back. For a year or two of paying taxes in almost any other country in the world will make them yearn once more for the good old taxes of the United States."

Earlier the President had told a throng, estimated at 175,000 persons that jammed Boston Common late today that growth of democracy was a "bad sign" for those who felt the American people could be

Head-On Crash Injures 2 Men; Third Arrested

Two men were injured, one seriously, in a head-on automobile collision on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard at Berwyn, Md., early last night.

One of the cars, careening after the smashup, crashed into a gasoline pump at Parker's Filing Station, by the side of the highway, causing an explosion when a spark from the impact set fire to more than 500 gallons of gasoline stored in a tank under the pump. All available fire fighting apparatus from Berwyn, Hyattsville and the surrounding territory responded to a general alarm and put out the flames.

The injured men, Harry Gusack, 50, of 1900 F street northwest, and Frederick H. Miller, of Beltsville, were taken from the wreckage by attendants of the filling station.

Both were taken to Casualty Hospital, where Miller, suffering skull injuries, was pronounced in a serious condition. Gusack was given first aid and went home.

Officials said Miller was the driver of one of the automobiles,

Prince Georges Jury Studying Graft Charges

Two District motorists who allege they were victimized in a "bargain fine" system developed by members of Prince Georges County police force and several bondsmen today will tell their stories to the county grand jury at Upper Marlboro.

One of the motorists has signed an affidavit revealing how he was assessed $101.50 fine and court costs on a traffic charge which yielded only $11.50 to the treasury of the county police court.

With preliminary investigations indicating that motorists have been mulcted of thousands of dollars through the police-bondsmen alliance, possibility of calling a special grand jury session to thoroughly investigate the county police force was discussed yesterday at Upper Marlboro.

The present grand jury had expected to conclude its session sometime next week, it was pointed out, and Attorney Louis Lebowitz, representing the Keystone Automobile Club, said it was unlikely all of the evidence in the 400 cases investi-

15 Roasted Pigs, Orchestra Mark Gypsy Weddings

By the Associated Press.

Ashland, Va., Oct. 21.—A tuxedo-clad orchestra played gypsy love songs while 15 pigs turned to a crisp brown on spits at a nearby tourist camp today as Romany clansmen gathered for a double wedding ceremony.

It was an all-Stevens celebration, with a brother and sister named Stevens destined to wed a sister and brother of the same name. But whether the all-day merriment, which proceeded with the special permission of Hanover County authorities to dispense wine and beer, was a prenuptial or postnuptial affair remained the secret of the gypsies.

Elaborate displays of finery identified the brides' or brides-to-be tents, where Maggie and Rosie fitted their dresses made from 50 yards of satin in blue, scarlet and royal purple. The bridegrooms, John and Frank, displayed bravely checked suits.

Members of the tribe of about 200 whispered tales of journeys of "hundreds" and even "thousands" of miles for the occasion.

Railroads Seek Readjustment Of Freight Rate

By Robert C. Albright.

Railroad traffic experts last night were preparing an important move toward readjustment of the freight rate schedule of the Nation, in an effort to forestall a revenue tumble when present emergency charges expire December 31.

Preliminary negotiations and studies have been completed and the railroads are expected shortly to petition the Interstate Commerce Commission to consider the concrete proposals involving both increases and reductions in freight rates.

Concerned at railroad earnings, which remain at 30 per cent below 1930 depression levels despite a large volume of traffic, railroads are expected again to point out to the commission the serious revenue drop that will occur if emergency surcharges are allowed to expire without remedial action.

Eight months operating income of class 1 railroads recently was reported at $364,697,978, or 2.30 per cent of property investment, compared with $356,466,258 or 3.45 per cent in 1930, the first year of the depression.

The Association of American Railroads points out that revenues from the emergency charges, slated to expire at the end of the year unless readjustment is ordered, amounts to about one-fifth of the total net railway operating income, or about $105,000,000.

Aside from increased labor and

$164,125 Spent By Landon Aids On Nomination

By Felix Bruner.

A total of $164,372.25 was spent in obtaining the nomination of Alf M. Landon for the Presidency, a report made to the Senate committee investigating campaign expenditures revealed yesterday. Friends of Col. Frank Knox, it was revealed, spent $178,816.79 in his campaign for the Presidential nomination which ended with his nomination for the Vice Presidency.

The committee at the same time reported that President Roosevelt is the only Presidential or Vice Presidential candidate of either party who has thus far spent any of his own money in the campaign. The President reported that he had contributed $500 to the Democratic campaign fund in Dutchess County, N. Y., and had spent $10 for postage.

William Lemke, Union Party candidate, reported that his party had received contributions of $5,321 and spent $2,390.74 in his personal behalf. John Zahn, candidate of the National Greenback Party, said he had received a contribution of $1 and had spent $2.50. Earl Browder, Communist candidate, reported receipts of $1,112.79 and expenditures of $1,061.79. Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate, said his personal receipts were $5,614 and expenditures were $6,504.64. George A. Nelson, Socialist Vice Presidential candidate, listed personal receipts of $323.47 and expenditures of $269.78.

All other candidates, including

Colored Memorial Group Plans to Establish Co-operative Farm Town Along James River

The National Negro Memorial in James City County, Va., sponsored by Elder Solomon (Lightfoot) Michaux, the "Happy Am I" colored evangelist, yesterday announced plans to develop a co-operative colored farming community.

Late last summer the memorial purchased a 1,100-acre tract, bordering the James River, near Jamestown Island, for the development of a shrine to perpetuate the history and mark the progress of American colored persons.

Intending to demonstrate to the colored person that he can overcome unemployment by his own initiative, directors of the project yesterday said they had decided on the co-operative farming community.

The plans call for the setting aside of 400 acres to be divided into 5-acre tracts on which five-room cottages would be built for 80 colored families. Co-operative farming would be conducted under the auspices of the memorial to instruct tenants in methods.

To each family would be given a cow, a breeding of hogs, chickens, seed and farming implements.

Under the proposals, the tracts would not be sold to the tenants, but would be given to them for as long as they proved industrious and conforming to the farming rules of the memorial.

These would be under direction of supervisors selected from Hampton Normal and Industrial School and the Tuskegee Institute.

The site was chosen by the memorial and Elder Michaux, who numbers his followers by the tens of thousands, because it was believed there the colored person first was introduced to the New World as a slave.

Rails Will Seek Readjustment Of Freight Rate

Hope to Forestall Revenue Drop After Present Charges Expire.

material costs, the railroads argue that the social security and railroad retirement acts will cost them $75,000,000 additional in the first year of their operation, not taking into consideration the increase in railroad operating expenses brought about by enactment of State unemployment statutes.

Traffic Not Impeded.

Railroad executives take the position that the emergency charges started in the spring of 1935 have not obstructed or impeded to any extent whatever the free movement of traffic, and that the proposed adjustments will be of such nature that industry and traffic can bear them without harm.

They will contend that the contemplated realignment of rates not only would contribute toward simplicity but is needed in the public interest in order to furnish adequate and efficient transportation.

Important Step.

J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, recently referred to the proposals as "the most important single step ever taken toward simplifications and uniformity in the freight-rate structure of the country."

Preliminary proposals would make virtually uniform the classification of all articles now moving on first, second and third class rates in less than carload lots in each of the three major traffic territories—official, Western and Southern. Pelley in his former announcement said this would be accomplished by making the ratings in all territories the same as the lowest classification now in effect in any territory.

Preliminary proposals contemplated no general increases in the class rates except in official territory and between official and Western territory where the rates are governed by the official classifications. Here, the proposal on coal would follow in general the rates now in effect. Fifth class would be revised upward from 35 per cent to 37½ per cent, and sixth class from 27½ to 30 per cent of first class.

The new move toward freight rate readjustment is not the first effort on the part of the roads to offset the loss of revenue that automatically would occur should existing emergency charges terminate.

Surcharges Extended.

In May the railroads filed a brief with the Interstate Commerce Commission urging that the emergency freight charges then scheduled to expire June 30 be continued "indefinitely." The commission later extended the surcharges six months, to the present expiration date, December 31.

In July the roads petitioned the commission to clear away certain technical procedural steps so the rail carriers could file at a minimum of expense and delay, tariffs translating into permanent rates the expiring surcharges. This petition was denied.

Belgians Reaffirm Alliance With Paris

Paris, Oct. 21 (AP).—Belgium is still the ally of France, Foreign Minister Yvonne Delbos told the foreign affairs committee of the Chamber of Deputies tonight.

King Leopold's recent "neutrality" speech, he said, was merely "an internal political maneuver to get the Flemish and Rexists votes behind a new army bill."

King Leopold's speech had been interpreted as forecasting Belgian withdrawal from her treaty with France, from theLocarno pact and from her obligations under the League of Nations covenant.

Assurances to the contrary, Delbos said, had been given him personally by the Belgian premier, Paul Van Zeeland, on the evening of the King's speech.

Spain Rebels Blamed For Fire on Freighter

Havana, Oct. 21 (U.P.).—Port police tonight investigated a report the French freighter Indiana, beached on a reef in upper Havana Harbor with a fire raging in its hold, was intentionally set afire at sea because it reportedly carried war materials for the Leftist government of Spain.

The afternoon newspaper Avance said the 5,751-ton vessel had aboard lead bars produced in Mexico for a Barcelona munitions factory.

The Indiana, en route to Havre, France, from New Orleans with a cargo of cotton, was forced to put into Havana last Sunday when the fire broke out. Although that blaze was extinguished, another was discovered last night.

Roosevelt's 1932 Speeches Gave No Indication of Actual New Deal Performance.

By Franklyn Waltman

THOSE credulous souls who emit ecstatic gasps of "ah" and "oh" as President Roosevelt's mellow voice comes floating through the radio from the ether might well remember his speeches of 1932—speeches which were filled with solemn promises and over which I and others emitted joyous utterances of "ah" and "oh" four years ago.

WALTMAN.

The contrast of Roosevelt oratory in 1932 and 1936 is worth thinking about for a moment for several reasons.

One is that there are some among the New Dealers who have the brazen affrontery to contend that Mr. Roosevelt did not deceive the country in 1932 but gave it plainly to understand what to expect from him because he said he was going to give us a New Deal. Another reason is that some New Dealers now have the brazen affrontery to speak of Gov. Alf M. Landon's "insincerity."

In 1932 President Roosevelt made some good speeches—far better than those he is making today. And he aroused in the breasts of many liberals the belief that he sponsored a New Deal along historic liberal and Democratic lines. There was little he said then that did not fit into those lines. To make it appear that then he promised what the New Deal actually turned out to be, it is necessary to read into vague phrases statements which were not there.

The record is clear and beyond dispute regarding the President's promises regarding a balanced budget. Not only did he four years ago assail former President Herbert Hoover for failing to balance the Federal budget—holding that Mr. Hoover had trifled "with the welfare of our people and the credit of our country"—but Mr. Roosevelt specifically promised a balanced budget and a 25 per cent reduction in expenditures.

Without retracting any of the accusations he flung at the Hoover Administration in this respect in 1932, Mr. Roosevelt now creates the impression that Mr. Hoover's crime was trying to balance the budget by asserting that it would have been "a crime against the American people" to have balanced the Federal budget in any one of the last three years. Thus Mr. Roosevelt almost directly reverses his position.

Although it is doubtful and subject to controversy, let it be assumed that Mr. Roosevelt found conditions after his election in 1932 that he did not anticipate when he made his economy pledge and that therefore he was justified in not balancing the budget. He remains pledged to a balanced budget eventually and in judging a man's sincerity it may be unfair at times to base the charge on details.

But that was not Mr. Roosevelt's only solemn promise in the 1932 campaign. In the speech at Pittsburgh in which he made that pledge, he gave another one, one more fundamental and one not subject to varying conditions that might develop over a period of a few months.

He declared in concluding that speech that the Hoover Administration "is committed to the idea that we ought to center control of everything in Washington as rapidly as possible."

"That was the idea that increased Government costs by a billion in four years," he continued. "Now ever since the days of Thomas Jefferson, that has been the exact reverse of the Democratic concept—which is to permit Washington to take from the States nothing more than is necessary to keep abreast of the march of our changing economic situation.

"In the latter philosophy and not in the philosophy of Mr. Hoover (which I think is responsible for so much of our trouble) I shall approach the problem of carrying out the plain precept of our party, which is to reduce the cost of the current Federal Government operation by 25 per cent."

Irrespective of what might have happened in the field of Federal finance from October 19, 1932, when that pledge was uttered, until the summer of 1933, there was nothing that developed which would have justified a sincere man breaking a pledge to abide by the faith of his political fathers. But Mr. Roosevelt embraced and carried to for greater extremes the philosophy which less than a year earlier he had attributed to Mr. Hoover and which he had said was "responsible for so much of our trouble."

There is a certain amount of hokum—entirely too much—in all political speeches. Candidates for office, even Presidential candidates, promise more than they can deliver. Their denunciation of the misdeeds of their opponents always is exaggerated and their own virtue too highly self-appraised. But perhaps never before in American history has a man made the pledges uttered by President Roosevelt—and so callously ignored them after his election.

And yet I think Mr. Roosevelt is sincere at any given time. He is sincere in the sense of the romantic lover who tells every beautiful woman he woos that he has never loved another—and each time he believes it.

Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes' habit of reading private correspondence over the radio recalls the fellow who addressed Peggy Joyce in a letter as "Dear Peggy and Gentlemen of the Jury" because of the frequency with which her correspondence was read in court.

May we suggest that in the future Secretary Ickes be addressed: "Dear Mr. Secretary and my friends of the radio audience."

Correction.—In yesterday's discussion here of the misleading effect of the Treasury's treatment of revolving fund receipts, it was inadvertently stated that Harry Hopkins so far this fiscal year has spent for relief purposes $240,000,000 "less" than he did in the same period of last year. The context made it obvious this was incorrect. Mr. Hopkins' relief agencies have spent $240,000,000 more than last year.

The Independent Coalition of American Women reported receipts of $80,038 and expenditures of $72,380 between April 29 and August 19.

Blast Kills Officer, Murder Is Hinted

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 21 (AP).—The body of Andrew Schmeltz, district conservation officer, torn by a dynamite blast, was found near the Carp River this afternoon. Ernest W. Libby, district supervisor, who led a searching party after Schmeltz failed to return from a trip, expressed belief he had been murdered.

The blast occurred 3½ miles north of Negaunee, along the Carp River road. Officers who found the body said they identified it by Schmeltz's cap and belt.

One theory was that Schmeltz had apprehended persons dynamiting fish in the Carp River, and that they killed him and set off the blast in an attempt to dispose of the body.

New York, Oct. 21.—Appealing to the "average businessman" to support the present National Administration at the polls next month, Joseph P. Kennedy, former chairman of the Securities Exchange Commission, tonight said:

"If Roosevelt is re-elected, Roosevelt will be President, but if Landon is elected, nobody knows who'll be President."

Kennedy, speaking under auspices of the Progressive National Committee, the Good Neighbor League and labor's Non-Partisan League, said:

"For four years the Hoover Administration risked our lives and our institutions by trying to bluff the situation out. It spent—but too little. And it didn't get results.

"The Roosevelt Administration was too wise to bluff. It spent eight billions—enough to be sure—and it got results—the machine started up again. There, in a nutshell, is the difference between the two Administrations."

East Lyne, Conn., Oct. 21 (AP).—Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress administrator, asserted today the charge that work relief is operated by a remote centralized bureaucracy in Washington "is utterly false."

Dedicating a pavilion in Rocky Neck State Park, a WPA project, the Federal administrator said:

"All your WPA projects are originated by local officials of the communities in which they are built, who also put up an average of nearly one-fifth of the cost of them in local money."

Hopkins asserted that "WPA workers have not deserved the storm of abuse and ridicule that they have had to face."

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 21 (AP).—George L. Berry, president of labor's Non-Patrisan League, said in an address here today that if Gov. Alf M. Landon were elected and adhered to the Republican platform a growth of "yellow dog" contracts and "a cancerous spread of company unions" would result.

He added:

"The Wagner act would be repealed and so would everything else giving labor true collective bargaining rights, and a chance for better wages and working conditions."

New York, Oct. 21 (AP).—The refusal of Chicago authorities to allow the use of Jackson boulevard for an Alfred E. Smith parade brought comment today from the Democratic and Republican chairmen.

"Mr. Smith should be permitted to have a parade in every city he visits," said Democratic Chairman James A. Farley.

"It looks like the ramifications of the New Deal extend also to the municipalities," said the Republican chairman, John D. M. Hamilton. "I understand Mayor Kelly talked to Farley about this before he refused to give Alfred E. Smith's friends a permit to stage a parade in Chicago."

Justice Schenck held invalid the petitions nominating Presidential electors and a Statewide ticket for the Union Party, whose candidate for President, Representative William Lemke (Republican), North Dakota, had the indorsement of the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin.

Sidney F. Kansas, Union Party candidate for attorney general, said the decision would be appealed immediately to the appellate division now sitting.

New York, Oct. 21.—Declaring the New Deal and American constitutional Government were "irreconcilable," Ogden L. Mills tonight said the United States stood at the parting of the ways, with the choice to be made on election day.

In a broadcast, the former Secretary of the Treasury said the New Deal Administration was following the direction taken by European dictatorships and declared:

"We are in grave danger of making Washington the center of all power, and, in the language of Jefferson, of creating a government 'as venial and oppressive as the government from which we separated.'"

"The criticism was directed at methods of bookkeeping and financing that are designed to conceal, rather than disclose, the true state of Treasury finances," Ballantine said. By the Associated Press.

The justices and others in the courtroom jumped slightly. Then most of them looked upward to the ceiling to see what had occurred. The bulb had burned out.

In a few moments, the lawyer resumed his speech.

'Divine Order' Led to Murder, Patricide Says

Former CCC Worker Slew Father With Knife Police Assert.

By the United Press.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 21.—Emory Dean, a 23-year-old former California CCC worker, confessed tonight, according to police, that he murdered his father after a "divine visitation ordering me to mix our blood."

Detectives claimed that the youth confessed plunging a knife into the throat of his father, George W. Dean, 50, while the older man slept early today. The alleged confession was given after they had questioned young Dean for more than an hour.

The youth was arrested when he returned to his father's room where police, a few minutes earlier, had found the parent dead in a pool of blood.

Reconstructing his disconnected story, detectives said young Dean purchased the knife last night and took it to bed with him. Later, they said, the father came in and retired in the same bed where the son was sleeping. Shortly after, they said the youth confessed, the son arose, picked up the knife from beneath a pillow and plunged it into his father's throat.

Detectives, however, said they found the still bloody knife in his pocket.

Detective Inspector E. L. Acosta was attempting to reach the elder Dean's wife, reported to be living at Lyons, Ga.

Under questioning, they said, he described a "divine visitation in which the Lord commanded me to kill my father." The vision appeared to him, they quoted the youth as saying, while he was a member of a CCC camp in San Diego, Calif.

55 Cattle Auctioned At Breeders' Show

Warrenton, Va., Oct. 21 (AP).—F. H. T. Walton, of Forest, was elected president of the Virginia Aberdeen-Angus Breeders' Association at a show and auction here Monday at which association members sold 55 head of cattle at an average of $190 a head.

At the auction, the top price was paid by James B. Dillard, of Charlottesville, who gave $450 for Gleeful Barbara, a 1-year-old. There were nine consignors from Virginia and seven from Maryland.

Five hundred persons attended the sale, which was the second conducted by the association. The first was held in Frederick, Md., in May.

Family Busy on Farm, Pauses to Speculate About Outcome.

By Edward T. Folliard.

A Staff Correspondent.

Drewry's Bluff, Va., Oct. 21.—The fields are almost bare now on the farm where Edith Maxwell and her family are living. Today they were harrowing a 10-acre section, getting ready to sow it with winter wheat. It is the beginning of a new farm year, a fresh effort.

Before that wheat is above the ground, Edith Maxwell should know what the future holds for her—whether she is to live a normal life or dwell in the gloom of the State Penitentiary.

Second Trial November 16.

On November 16 she will be called to trial for a second time on a charge of killing her blacksmith-father, Trigg Maxwell, with the heel of her slipper.

That trial, like the sowing of the wheat, represents a fresh start for Edith in the field of law and justice. In her first trial last November, she was found guilty of first-degree murder and sentenced to 25 years in the penitentiary.

She pleaded that she struck her father with the slipper while he was beating her, threatening to kill her. She said she never dreamed the blow would be fatal, and she told of running for the doctor afterward. Others testified that Trigg Maxwell was "plumb drunk," and that he chased Edith around the room with a butcher's knife. But the verdict stood.

Verdict Held Unjustified.

It stood, that is, until the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals was told of what happened. The case was taken to that court by Charles Henry Smith, an outstanding criminal lawyer of Alexandria, Va., and the expenses were paid by contribution from readers of The Post.

The Appeals Court held that the verdict of first-degree murder, with its 25-year prison sentence, was not justified by the evidence, and it ordered the new trial. Post readers are now contributing toward the expenses of this trial.

The Maxwells, transplanted from their cabin in the Cumberland Mountains to the farm near here, never get beyond one point now when they talk about the case.

The big question with them is: Where will Edith be tried? Will it be in Wise, where a jury of mountaineers found her guilty of first-degree murder—which means cold-blooded, premeditated murder—and sentenced her to 25 years in the State penitentiary? Or will it be in some other county of Virginia?

Plan Change of Venue.

Attorney Smith plans, at the very outset, to ask Judge H. A. W. Skeen, 78-year-old jurist, who presided at the first trial, for a change of venue. He will contend that Edith can't hope to get a fair trial in Wise; that the publicity and furore growing out of the last trial will make it impossible to find an impartial jury.

Commonwealth's Attorney Fred S. Greer, who led the fight for Edith's conviction the first time and will prosecute her again next month, has announced he will vigorously oppose an attempt to move the scene of the trial.

Edith Maxwell doesn't talk to outsiders about the forthcoming trial, except to express her gratitude for the help that has been given her.

But like her tired-looking mother, her brother, Earl, and her two younger sisters, she doesn't think beyond that question of where the trial will be held. The expression on her face, as she listens to others discuss the outlook, tells how she feels.

Eyes Reflect Fear.

If the opinion is expressed that the trial will be held at Jonesville or in some other town outside of Wise County, her face lights up with hope.

If, on the other hand, somebody recalls that Prosecutor Greer will fight to keep the trial at Wise, her eyes take on a look of fear. She is not a girl easily frightened, this young school teacher who has been yanked away from a 25-year sentence in the penitentiary. But she is afraid of another trail in Wise.

No doubt she thinks of those 12 grim mountaineers who last November concluded that in striking her father with a slipper she was carrying out a premeditated plan to kill him; those 12 jurors whose verdict had to be thrown out as unjustified by the Supreme Court of Appeals in Richmond.

Farmer Slays Wife, Child; Is Shot Dead

Mount Pleasant, Utah, Oct. 21 (AP). Henry Olsen, 30-year-old farmer, escaped jail last night, killed his 15-year-old stepdaughter and then pushed through a crowd to shoot dead his estranged wife. Olsen subsequently was shot and killed by a deputy sheriff.

Mrs. Emma Kenward, at whose home the shooting occurred, asked police protection after he said Olsen made threats when he was unsuccessful in an attempt to see Mrs. Olsen, who was living with Mrs. Kenward. The farmer, a resident of Mayfield, Utah, was placed in jail.

He escaped last night. A few minutes later his stepdaughter, Barbara Blair 15, was shot through the head as she sat near a window in the Kenward home.

Officers were organizing a posse when Olsen shoved through a crowd at the Kenward home and opened fire with a revolver, killing Mrs. Olsen, 30.

Cafe Owner 'Dials Out' Hitler Speech, Is Jailed

Stuttgart, Germany, Oct. 21 (U.P.).—Secret police arrested Ludwig Schopp, proprietor of a beer garden, because he turned off the radio in his establishment during Chancellor Adolf Hitler's recent speech at Nuremberg and thereby prevented his patrons from hearing the address. It was charged that Schopp also made "distasteful" remarks about Hitler. He was placed in jail and his beer garden was padlocked.

More than 2,000 persons witnessed the takeoff.

Rail Worker's $45, Car Taken By Armed Man

Holdup Occurs in Front of Union Station; Auto Found Abandoned.

John C. Nolph, 23, of 2721 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, an employe of the Washington Terminal Co., was robbed of his week's salary and his automobile yesterday afternoon in front of the Union Station.

Walking from the depot just after receiving his salary, Nolph told police, he was stopped by a lone white man, who asked him for a match. While he was reaching into his pocket, Nolph said, a gun was shoved into his back with the clipped command:

"Give me your money."

While several persons walked within arms length of him, Nolph said he was forced to surrender his pay—$45—to the bandit, who calmly stepped into Nolph's automobile, parked nearby, and sped away.

Ninth Precinct police sent a lookout for the robber. He was described as 35 years, about 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighing 180 pounds. He was wearing a blue shirt, blue trousers and was hatless. A white scar was noticeable on the right side of the man's face, Nolph told police.

Nolph's car was found abandoned a short time later at Fourteenth street and Maryland avenue northeast.

Retrial Is Sought In Auto Death Case

Staunton, Oct. 21 (AP).—Judge Joseph A. Glasgow today had before him a motion for a new trial in the case of Mrs. Sue Smith Powers, convicted by an Augusta Circuit Court jury late yesterday in connection with the automobile accident death of Andrew Masincupp, July 20. The jury recommended three years in the State Penitentiary.

Masincupp was killed when an automobile in which he, Mrs. Powers and Harry Masincupp, his cousin, were riding left the highway near Craigsville and crashed into a culvert.

Harry Masincupp testified yesterday Mrs. Powers had her hands on the steering wheel when the accident occurred. He was indicted jointly and separately with Mrs. Powers and has pleaded guilty to charges of involuntary manslaughter. He will be sentenced later.

Virginia Poultrymen Open Session Today

Kilmarnock, Va., Oct. 21 (AP).—John R. Hutcheson, director of the V. P. I. agricultural extension division, will present a "program for the rehabilitation of Virginia's agriculture" tomorrow night at the annual convention of the Virginia State Poultry Federation here.

Appearing on the same program will be Dr. M. A. Jull, head of the poultry department of the University of Maryland, who will outline methods of improving poultry through better breeding. The convention will launch its two-day session at 9:45 a. m. tomorow, with poultrymen in attendance from all parts of the State. Officials said they expected in excess of 500.

Police Grill Four In Park Robbery

Four men were being questioned by detectives last night in connection with the robbery of Nicholas Finelli, 19, and Miss Elizabeth Via, 18, who were bound and gagged by bandits while they sat on a bench in Potomac Park Tuesday night.

The couple were sitting near the polo grounds when they were approached by several men. They tied Finellis' hands, took his wallet and then tied him to the bench. Miss Bia's rings and money were taken. She was tied beside her escort.

The intruders then fled in Finelli's car.

A short time later Fourth Precinct police stopped a speeding car with four men in it on the Highway Bridge. It was Finelli's car. The men gave their names as James Ross, 26, of San Francisco; Allen Davis, 23, of Jacksonville, Fla.; James H. Winbrake, 26, of St. Petersburg, Fla., and James Spicer, 19.

Finelli, who said he lives in the 1900 block of K street northwest, worked loose his bonds, and, after freeing Miss Via, went to the Third Precinct to report the holdup. Miss Via lieves in the 3000 block of Vista street northeast.

Small Tube Is Goal For Use in Television

New York, Oct. 21 (AP).—Television tubes, small in size but powerful enough to project images on a screen, are the next important prospect in the laboratory research into movies by radio, Dr. O. H. Caldwell, former Federal radio commissioner, declared tonight.

That will mean, he explained, compact picture receivers about the size of present-day broadcast sets.

He told the Chemists Club of New York the bulky and expensive equipment now being used in television experimentation never may go into commercial use if the laboratory work on the new tubes progresses as the research men hope.

Mass Killer Hunted In 6 French Slayings

Forcalquier, France, Oct. 21 (AP).—Gendarmes today hunted a mad man suspected of killing six persons in this southeastern French Alpine region.

Woodcutters, hearing shots, found Emilio Ughetto, his wife and three of their children dead at their cabin door. Later, gendarmes came upon the body of a sixth person, slain in the same manner.

175,000 Hear The President In Boston Talk

Guardsmen Called to Hold Cheering Throng on City Common in Check.

"The American mind today is above the rabble level," the President said.

National Guardsmen had been called to the common to keep adjacent roads open for the President's car and to aid Boston police in maintaining police lines.

Henry Long, Boston Park Commissioner, said it was the largest crowd he ever had seen on the common for any event.

The entire common, from Charles street, back over the hill to Parkman bandstand, where the President spoke, was filled with men, women and children.

Police Lines Sag.

Police lines sagged to the push of the thousands. Officers and guardsmen had a constant struggle to keep a lane open from Charles street Mall to the bandstand.

Police carried several fainting persons from the crowd, and squads of officers pressed into the throng here and there to haul out others unable to stand the pressure of the waiting thousands.

The President hailed recovery and spoke of Republican tariffs as having hurt New England industries by shutting off foreign commerce.

Emphasizing, as he did in the West, that the Nation was one economic unit, with each section depending on the other's prosperity, he said "level-headed" New England knew that to be true despite arguments of a "cantankerous minority" that Government policies were disadvantageous to this section.

The President's arrival was delayed nearly an hour by the huge crowds that greeted him on a rapid motor trip here from Providence, R. I., where he spoke this morning.

At Fall River three children suffered arm fractures and scores were jostled when a huge crowd greeting him at South Park broke through ropes as the Presidential party arrived.

The three children, each 12 years old, and treated at a hospital, were William Ferreira, Estrella Pacheco and Eugene Michanaski, jr.

The crowd was held back by ropes before the President's party arrived, but as the motorcade appeared hundreds broke through, trampling and bruising scores. A section of a temporary grandstand collapsed, injuring others.

Little Estrella was hurt in the collapse of the stand. Young Ferreira fell from a roof of a park building, and the Michanaski boy was pushed or fell from a tree.

Thousands turned out to give the President a noisy ovation at New Bedford, Taunton, Brockton and Quincy. More thousands shouted greetings along the several miles touring through Boston. He rode through a heavy paper storm in the downtown sections.

Boos mingled with cheers as he passed Harvard University, his Alma Mater.

Half the trip to Boston was made at about a 50-mile-an-hour clip, with several score of cars screaming over four-lane highways in dangerous confusion. This condition was corrected after the party left Fairhaven, where the President had luncheon.

Along the way by auto through part of Rhode Island and Massachusetts he had encountered such huge, uncontrolled crowds that his aids telephoned ahead for the assistance of State troopers in keeping the throngs in hand the rest of the trip.

"New England was engulfed by the depression five years before the rest of the country," the President said at Boston. "That is New England's debt to the Republican leadership of the boom era."

He then asked what the present Administration had done and supplied this answer:

1. Raised wages and living standards in other sections, toward the standards of New England, so as to help destroy "that kind of unfair competition."

2. Begun the first real offensive in American history against "that concentrated wealth and monopolistic power which almost destroyed small businesses and diversified industries of New England."

3. Begun to re-open foreign markets to New England products and shipping by reciprocal trade agreements.

4. Increased the purchasing power of New England's customers on farms and in cities.

The Chief Executive said he believed that today "there is more downright political intelligence in the Nation than ever before."

"Two weeks from today, the day after election, the American air will be cleaner and American democracy will be safer."

The President began his New England campaign shortly after breakfast at Providence, R. I., this morning.

allowing them to appear together in public more than heretofore.

The first divorce of Mrs. Wallis Simpson, American-born friend of England's King Edward, granted in Warrenton, Va., in 1927, is a closed issue as far as the Commonwealth of Virginia is concerned, it was learned yesterday, following reported attempts to reopen the case through a Washington attorney.

Records in desertion proceedings brought by Mrs. Simpson against her first husband, Commander Earl Winfield Spencer, United States Navy flier, will be ordered closed by Judge Peck Alexander, of the circuit court in Warrenton, if further efforts are made to inquire into details, it was said yesterday.

Earlier in the week, Raymond Neudecker, Washington divorce lawyer, went to Warrenton and delved into court records of the 10-year-old case. He admitted last night he had been engaged to investigate the records, but declined to name his client.

Bound to Secrecy.

"I am bound to secrecy," Neudecker declared, "and all I can say is that I have been retained by a person I have never met."

Findings of his investigation, the attorney said, will be sent to his client "somewhere outside of Washington."

Although he refused to divulge the purpose of his inquiry, it was intimated it hinged on Mrs. Simpson's establishment of a residence in Virginia prior to the time she filed divorce proceedings against Commander Spencer.

If sufficient evidence were uncovered to warrant reopening of the case, it was pointed out, Mrs. Simpson, whose divorce suit against Ernest A. Simpson, her present husband, is scheduled to be heard in England next week, would still be the wife of Spencer. Spencer also has remarried.

Year's Residence.

Virginia laws require residence in the State for at least one year before divorce action can be taken. Court records show Mrs. Simpson went to Warrenton on June 10, 1926, and established residence in the Warren Green Hotel. The decree was granted December 10, 1927.

However, according to Attorney Neudecker, should it develop that Mrs. Simpson established her residence in Virginia for the sole purpose of obtaining a divorce from Commander Spencer the decree could be declared void. He cited the Virginia law, which reads in part:

"No annulment or divorce suit shall be maintainable unless one of the parties is domiciled in and is an actual, bona fide, resident of the State for at least one year."

Declines to Elaborate.

Hinting at the purpose of his investigation, Neudecker called attention to the words "domiciled in." He declined to elaborate.

According to records of the Simpson-Spencer case, Mrs. Simpson was questioned at length by Judge George Latham Fletcher on her residence in Virginia. Excerpts from the record read:

Q. (By Judge Fletcher) When did you come to Fauquier County to live?

A. (By Mrs. Simpson) June, 1926.

Q. What was your purpose in coming to Fauquier County?

A. It was to be near my family. I knew some people here in Warrenton. All my family are in Washington. My mother, my aunt and a cousin, Mrs. Barnett.

Q. Where have you lived in Fauquier County?

A. At the Warren Green Hotel.

Q. Why didn't you live in Washington?

A. I wanted to be near my relatives—but not too near.

Q. Was that your only intention in coming to Fauquier County, as you have stated?

A.—I thought I had to light definitely somewhere. If I had to get a divorce, I thought I could get one here. I came here to live, but not for the purpose of getting a divorce.

In spite of reports that Judge Alexander would order all records in the case closed, Attorney Neudecker said he expected to receive a certified copy of the proceedings today.

Considerable Speculation.

His sudden investigation of the case—after a lapse of 10 years—gave rise to considerable speculation. Friends of Mrs. Simpson could merely guess at whose behest the inquiry was started.

Commander Spencer, now stationed aboard the U. S. S. Ranger at Santiago, was eliminated from the picture when Neudecker said he was not the client.

"And I am not representing Simpson—as such," Neudecker added, insisting he had never met "the man" by whom he was retained.

Another source declared it improbable that anyone close to the British throne had a hand in the investigation.

telegram to the convention that 'there should be included within the merit system every position in the administrative service below the rank of assistant secretaries of major departments and agencies and this inclusion should cover the entire Postoffice Department.'

Promises Discussion.

"The influx of spoilsmen into the Government service under this Administration was a great setback to the cause of good government. I shall discuss this subject in a public address in the near future.

"In the meantime, may I extend to your organization my wholehearted support in the cause you uphold and assure you if I am elected that I will strengthen and expand the merit system to the full extent of my ability."

Gov. Landon today drafted an address on foreign affairs. Saturday night and Indianapolis were designated tentatively by his aids as the time and place for his first personal presentation of views of the United States' position in world diplomacy and the maintenance of peace.

William R. Castle, Undersecretary of State during Herbert Hoover's Administration, and J. Reuben Clark, former Ambassador to Mexico, conferred with the candidate aboard his campaign special.

During a stop in Oklahoma City Friday from 10:30 a. m. (Central standard time), to 2 p. m., advisers said, the candidate probably would talk on "relief and waste."

Landon's special train left Los Angeles at 9:40 a. m., Pacific standard time. At railroad operating stops through California citrus groves, the nominee told groups gathered at the train's rear platform that his throat bothered him. At Colton he leaned over the railing of his platform to shake hands and greet well-wishers.

At Alhambra, Los Angeles suburb, the Governor called, "How are you there, partner?" to a boy on a bank alongside the tracks. Noting his red-topped boots, Landon said "It sure was a big day" when he got his first pair, and added that 2-year-old Jack Landon had a pair in Topeka.

At Colton the candidate was introduced by Dr. Ernst F. Pihlblad, of Bethany (Kansas) College. The educator praised the Kansas school system, which he said had been misrepresented by campaign opponents of the Republican nominee.

During an operating stop at Niland, Calif., 130 feet below sea level near the Salton Sea, Landon took a stroll in the hot sun along the railroad track.

Another train stop was made at Yuma, Ariz., where Issac Polhamus, police chief, estimated 1,000 people were in the crowd which Landon thanked for "a fine courteous reception at my first stop in the great State of Arizona."

Pinch-hitting to save the nominee's throat, Dr. Pihlblad said at Yuma:

"It is alleged that Gov. Landon has balanced the Kansas budget and taken it out of the hides of the school teachers of that State.

"During these years of the depression and in Gov. Landon's administration there has not been a single child in the State of Kansas deprived of educational facilities."

He said the average country school teacher salary was $57.50 a month, adding:

"The number of teachers that have gone into service during Gov. Landon's administration has been vastly increased. I think there were about 700 and some odd teachers that were placed on the payrolls.

"Gov. Landon could not. If he wanted to—he could not, any more than you could—determine what the salary of a teacher in the State of Kansas should be. It is a local affair.

"I have made these brief statements in order to contradict this malicious talk that has been spread through the length and breadth of these United States. I understand that these scandalmongers have been particularly active in California."

Establishes Offices.

Barcelona, Oct. 21 (AP).—Belief grew tonight President Manuel Azana, of Spain, who came here from beleaguered Madrid within the past week, intends to remain permanently.

Azana took over offices in the Catalan Parliament Building for himself and his secretarial staff.

"It was learned, meanwhile, Senora Manuel Azana, the President's wife, reached Toulouse, France, Monday, amid great secrecy, and left the same day for an undisclosed destination. In Paris, the Havas (French) News Agency said she was accompanied by the wife of former Premier Jose Giral Pereira."

Madrid, Oct. 21 (AP).—Almost 100,000 men have shouldered rifles within the past 8 hours to defend Madrid, observers estimated tonight.

Women proletarians staged a second huge recruiting drive today, shouting through the streets to the men to join the defense forces.

Evacuation Permitted.

Paris, Oct. 21 (AP).—The Spanish government tonight agreed to allow the evacuation of women and children who had taken refuge in embassies and legations in the capital.

The foreign office announced it had obtained the government's promise for safe conduct of the refugees to Mediterranean ports.

After the crash, Dr. Furbershaw was arrested on a charge of reckless driving and taken to Hyattsville Jail. He was released after he had posted $26 collateral.

Man, 73, Is Injured.

William Richardson, 73, of 320 Seventeenth street northeast, suffered skull injuries and cuts and bruises late yesterday when he was struck by an automobile as he was fixing a tire on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard, near Hyattsville.

He was taken to Casualty Hospital. Hyattsville police arrested William Morey, of the 500 block of Fourth street northwest, whom they said was driver of the car, and held him pending outcome of the victim's injuries.

A man and a child were injured when they were struck by street cars.

Cuts and bruises were suffered by James E. Roberts, 50, of the Annapolis Hotel, when he was hit by a street car at Twelfth and H streets northwest. He was taken to Casualty Hospital. The motorman, John D. Brinkerhoff, was not held.

Suffer Cuts and Bruises.

Nine-year-old Robert Benedetto, of 536 Thirteenth street northeast, was cut and bruised when he was struck by an automobile at Thirteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast. He was treated by a private physician.

Meanwhile the Associated Press reported that a Washingtonian, Wilbur Barnhill, 26, of 1321 Belmont street, was taken to a hospital in Petersburg, Va., suffering head injuries after a head-on collision between his automobile and another car.

ACID INDIGESTION HAS SPOILED MANY A GOOD TIME FOR ME. I'M GLAD TO KNOW HOW YOU RELIEVED DISCOMFORT AFTER MEALS.

On every side today people are being urged to alkalize their stomach. And thus to ease the symptoms of "acid indigestion," nausea and stomach upsets. For perhaps the vast majority of stomach upsets come from an excess of acidity.

To gain quick alkalization, just do this: Take two teaspoons of PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA 30 minutes after eating. OR—take two of the new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets.

Relief comes almost at once—usually in a few minutes. Nausea, "gas"—fullness after eating and "acid indigestion" pains leave. You feel like a new person.

Try this way. Try it particularly if you've been using some less effective way of overcoming acids. Get either the liquid "Phillips" or the remarkable, new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. Each one equals a teaspoon of the liquid. Only 25¢ for a large box at all drug stores.

Pacific Unions Present Terms Of Long Truce

Six Concessions Demanded From Ship Owners at San Francisco.

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, Oct. 21.—The question of a year's truce on the waterfront apparently hinged today on a conference in which Rear Admiral Harry G. Hamlet, Federal Maritime Commission representative, was believed to have submitted union terms to shipowners.

Negotiators declined to be quoted specifically, but it was understood the maritime unions demanded six concessions as their peace price.

Some of these concessions were said to be virtually the same as the demands previously made in the long and fruitless negotiations following the expiration of old working agreements last September 30.

Although the ship owners' representatives would not comment formally, one of their number said he believed they would take the position they already were adhering to—a maritime commission request for an indefinite truce and would continue it for a year on certain conditions.

These conditions were said to require maritime commission assurance that it would enforce the provisions of the old agreements which the employers promised to observe during the indefinite truce.

One of the principal complaints of the employers has been that the unions repeatedly violated the old agreements by striking illegally and making demands beyond the scope of the old awards.

The unions' demands were unofficially reported to include:

1. That union deck officers, pilots and engineers be given preference over nonunion men in the available jobs. This they do not now have.
2. No change in the present status of hiring halls.
3. Cash pay for overtime instead of time off for sailors and other unlicensed personnel on ships.
4. An eight-hour day for cooks and stewards; now work ten or more.
5. A continuance of the six-hour day and union control of the hiring halls for Longshoremen and affiliated unions.
6. That the Maritime Commission study and set up a system of minimum wages.

The unions have limited their present truce to October 26 and are voting on a proposal to authorize a strike after October 28 unless peace agreements are made in the meantime. A tie-up would involve 37,000 maritime workers and all West Coast shipping.

udents Protest Ban On Anti-Nazi Leader

New York, Oct. 21 (AP).—Columbia University students held a two-hour demonstration in front of the university library today protesting the expulsion of Robert Burke, Youngstown (Ohio) student, who was refused admission this year.

Burke, president-elect of the junior class, was one of several speakers who addressed the students.

The demonstrators gave out handbills which said Burke had been expelled for "protesting against Columbia co-operation with the notorious Nazi propagandafest held at Heindelberg."

The demonstration was called, the handbill said, because Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia, and Dean Herbert E. Hawkes had ignored all other protests.

Toy Balloon Aids Boy In Fight Against Death

Scottsbluff, Nebr., Oct. 21 (AP).—Every 15 minutes as he lies in a hospital here, Alfred Malchow, 21, blows up a toy balloon. He does it in an effort to recover from injuries incurred in an automobile accident and from a complicated surgical operation which followed.

The exertion of inflating the balloon is to keep Malchow's left lung expanded, and physicians said today they believed he would recover unless he developed pneumonia.

Sino-Japanese Pact Prospects Are Dim

Nanking, China (Thursday), Oct. 22 (U.P.).—Negotiations for a broad agreement, to serve as a basis for Sino-Japanese friendship and co-operation, are deadlocked and the outlook is extremely gloomy, Chinese officials revealed today.

At the same time it was announced by Japanese military officials that the war games of the Japanese army, to be held in North China late this month and early in November, will culminate in a grand military review in Peiping November 4.

The decision to make a tremendous display of Japan's military might in the old Chinese imperial capital and traditional seat of culture was interpreted by Chinese to mean that Tokyo finally has decided to use force "to bring China to her knees."

Housing for Poor Set At Cost of 24 Billion

New Orleans, La., Oct. 21 (AP).—It would cost two billion dollars a year for 12 years to house the poor of the United States "decently," according to a public health expert's ideas.

This estimate was made to the American Public Health Association by C. E. A. Winslow, professor of public health, Yale School of Medicine. He estimates a need of six million low-cost dwellings.

"The housing of the poor of the United States," he said, "is today at a lower level than that which obtains in any of the leading countries of Western Europe."

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

Clairvoyance is not one of the qualities normally to be found in even the greatest contract experts. Yet, judging by the play of many defenders, one might be pardoned for imagining that the current declarer was so gifted. The error described in today's hand is a highly typical one.

North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
North-South 30-part-score.
The bidding:

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♢ | Pass | 1 ♠ | Pass |
| 2 ♣ | Pass | 2 ♠ | Pass |
| 3 ♠ | Pass | Pass | Pass |

West made what should have turned out to be a beautiful opening lead by under-leading his Ace of hearts. Declarer, not unnaturally, guessed wrong by permitting the lead to ride to his own Jack; East won with the Queen and made the correct return of a trump. But the precise trump he selected was far from correct! He knew, of course, that he held five trumps headed by Jack-10-9, but certainly the declarer could not have known it. A low trump, therefore, would have been just as effective in luring a high honor from the declarer as was East's actual lead of the Jack. The Ace won and three rounds of high diamonds followed, declarer discarding a club. The heart King was next led and won by West, who returned the high diamond. East discarded the ten of clubs; declarer ruffed with the deuce and cashed the Jack of hearts. He then played a club to dummy's Jack. East won and continued his previous folly by leading the ten of trumps. The King won, and when West showed out, the rest was easy for the declarer. He led a club and when East ruffed and returned the six of trumps, declarer merely took the established finesse against the nine, thus making his contract and, by virtue of his 30 point part-score, the rubber as well.

District Jurors Indict Herndon As Thief, Forger

11 Charges Are Returned Against Former Official of Fidelity Loan.

The District grand jury yesterday indicted William S. Herndon, former manager of the Georgetown branch of the Fidelity Building and Loan Association, on seven charges of grand larceny and four of forgery, all of them the outgrowth of an investigation launched when Herndon failed to appear for work last June.

Herndon disappeared, allegedly taking with him $2,500 from the office safe. A shortage of some $9,024.16 was reported in his accounts. Shortly after his disappearance, officers of the Treasury Department began an audit of the company's books and ordered the institution closed. Its president, Fred B. Rhodes, is under indictment on twenty charges of larceny and eight of forgery.

Herndon was arrested in Omaha two weeks ago by agents of the Bureau of Investigation. He was brought here and in a secret hearing before United States Commissioner N. C. Turnage, pleaded guilty. He has been in District jail since, awaiting the outcome of his case. According to John J. Wilson, assistant United States Attorney, he has signed a statement admitting his defalcations.

In the statement, it was said, he admitted having lost most of the money on the races. Part of the money he allegedly took when he left was spent in gambling and the rest was used for traveling expenses, it was said. Six of the larceny counts charge Herndon with receiving deposits from customers. The amounts alleged were posted in the pass books but were omitted from the general account ledgers. The charges of forgery involved discrepancies in depositors' accounts.

Mrs. Whittlesey Burial Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Florence Gertrude Shuman Whittlesey, 76, widely known artist, who died Tuesday at her home, 1620 Webster street, will be held at her residence tomorrow at 11 a. m., followed by private burial in Alexandria, Va.

Widow of Walter R. Whittlesey, assistant chief of the music division of the Library of Congress, Mrs. Whittlesey maintained her art studios both here and in New York, where her work as a colorist in the art of dyeing and painting textiles had become widely recognized. Samples of her work are in the textile exhibit in the National Museum. She was active in her art work until about ten years ago. Her husband died last April.

Surviving Mrs. Whittlesey are three daughters, Mrs. Harry W. Finney and Mrs. Cecil Copley, of Washington, and Mrs. Frank Shepherd, of San Gabriel, Calif., and a son, Charles J. Whittlesey, of Washington. She also leaves five grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Bower City Manager Head.

Richmond, Oct. 21 (AP).—The International City Managers Association elected Irving C. Brower, of New Rochelle, N. Y., president today to succeed Hollis R. Thompson, of Berkeley, Calif. The new officers were installed at the annual banquet tonight which brought the three-day meeting to a close.

Board Rejects Plan to Shift School Hours to Ease Traffic

Washington's 93,000 public school children will continue to begin their school day at 9 a. m.

The Board of Education yesterday afternoon unanimously rejected the proposal of traffic officials that the opening hour be changed to relieve the District's traffic problem. Acting in accord with general recommendations from Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou and other school administrators, the board members stated they were not convinced a shift in school hours would lessen traffic danger and pointed out several educational disadvantages in the proposed changes.

Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, last spring suggested the board advance the opening hour to 8:30 a. m., or delay it to 9:30 a. m. so that the school traffic would be taken off the "peak" load of the 9 o'clock rush hour. Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer advocated the opening hour be changed to 9:30 a. m. The Capital Transit Co. also urged the later hour.

"We're concerned with the safety of school children. We are not running the traffic system," declared Henry Quinn, board member.

Other members concurred in the opinion that changing the opening hour either way would have little effect on the traffic problem. It was pointed out that many parents take their children to school at the same time they are going to work and any change would work a hardship on them.

Capital Driver Faces Motor Death Charge

Annapolis, Oct. 21 (AP).—Anne Arundel County grand jury today presented Harold Montague, colored, Washington, for manslaughter as the result of an automobile accident on Defense Highway, near here, October 11.

Montague, according to police, was driving an automobile which collided with another machine. James Washington, Negro, of Washington, riding with Montague, was killed.

Ickes Assails Story Roosevelt Brought Saloon

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Evanston, Ill., Oct. 21.—Secretary Ickes brought the prohibition issue into the political campaign here tonight by denying that President Roosevelt is responsible for "bringing back the saloon."

Speaking before a crowd at Northwestern University, the Interior Secretary referred to a cartoon carried in the Chicago Daily News, published by Col. Frank Knox, Republican Vice Presidential candidate, in which a "tough looking customer" was made to say: "Why sure I'm goin' to vote for Roosevelt. Didn't he bring back the saloon?"

"Col. Knox, his cartoonist and every member of his editorial staff know that President Roosevelt did not bring back the saloon," Ickes said. "He did lead the fight for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, but if anyone brought back the saloon, it was the American people."

Secretary Scores Knox.

Ickes devoted most of his speech to castigation of Knox and of Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune. He declared that Knox "is not really running for Vice President at all."

"Col. Knox," he said, "is too shrewd a man to have any illusions about the result on November 3. He knows that President Roosevelt will be overwhelmingly re-elected. He is looking ahead to 1940, when, in his mind's eye he sees himself as the Republican candidate for President, the role that he so desperately strove for before the Cleveland convention. He believes that the inept and disappointing Gov. Landon will never be nominated for President again after the defeat that he is about to suffer."

Hoover "Boondoggler."

Ickes referred to Herbert Hoover as the "world champion boondoggler."

"He preferred alien boondoggling in foreign lands to American works that gave employment to Americans," he said. "The difference between this and the preceding Administration is that President Roosevelt kept American citizens from starving, saved American financial and industrial institutions from bankruptcy and stimulated American recovery by means of a program of public works."

Y. M. Drive Nets 918 New Members

With final reports showing a final enrollment in excess of the original goal, the 1936 Y. M. C. A. membership campaign closed last night with a dinner meeting in the central building, 1736 G street northwest.

With 600 new members as the goal, the campaign workers reported a total of 918 memberships secured during the drive. First honors went to the division headed by George Harris and Page McK. Etchison with a total of 332. The best team record was set by the Robert Nichols-Ralph Foster group with 142 members, while J. F. Cowley won the individual prize with 74 members.

Dr. Carson P. Frailey, general chairman of the drive, presided and introduced the principal speaker, Charles A. Robinson, general manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. Mr. Robinson stressed the health and character-building possibilities of Y. M. C. A. activities.

'Man Without Country' Basis of New Opera

New York, Oct. 21 (AP).—Edward Everett Hales' story of "The Man Without a Country" has been done into an opera by Walter Damrosch, veteran conductor, and is on the Metropolitan Opera Company's spring production schedule, it was disclosed tonight.

Suprise to Mark New War.

Berkeley, Calif., Oct. 21 (AP).—An annihilating surprise attack, not preceded by a declaration of war or diplomatic rupture, probably will launch future major wars, Dr. David P. Barrows, noted military and political scientist, told University of California students tonight.

Are You a Neurotic? After Answering These Test Queries You Will Be One

By the United Press.

New York, Oct. 21.—All persons of real value to the world—great scientists, poets, inventors and statesmen—are neurotics, Dr. Louis E. Bisch said today in commenting on his book "Be Glad You're a Neurotic."

The book contains a series of questions by which any person can determine whether he is a neurotic, provided the questions are answered honestly, Dr. Bisch said.

A neurotic, according to Bisch, is a person who, because of the way his brain and nervous system behave, does not react to things like the average individual. Bisch, who has been practicing among neurotics for 20 years, says he is one himself.

"I don't mean that all neurotics are great men," Bisch said, "but I suppose that this book and others I have written would never had been completed had I not been a neurotic."

The test to determine whether you are a neurotic consists of answering the following questions and placing a check mark after the ones to which the answer is "yes."

1. Are you oversensitive or afraid to meet people?
2. Do you avpid social contacts or remain too much by yourself?
3. Do you indulge in self-pity or tend to pamper yourself?
4. Are you given to self-accusation or a feeling of guilt?
5. Are you quick to make excuses for yourself or to defend yourself before others?
6. Are you over-conscientious to the point where it annoys you?
7. Do you feel repressed or feel that you could do creative work?
8. Any feeling of anxiety or impending danger without knowing why?
9. Are you given to worry without justification or are you forever concerned with what people think?
10. Are you convinced, but without justification, that you are either inferior or superior to others?
11. Do you suffer from self-consciousness?
12. Are you assailed by the habit of doubt, not knowing what is best to do, or are you usually suggestible?
13. Are you jealous or suspicious of others?
14. Are you extremely critical of others or difficult to please?
15. Are you unable to make or hold friends?
16. Do you exaggerate trifles or unduly minimize important things?
17. Are you either depressed or unduly optimistic without cause?
18. Are you continually dissatisfied or upset by mental conflicts?
19. Do you prefer the society of the same sex or dislike the opposite sex?
20. Are you heart hungry or do sex desires tantalize?
21. Do you dislike children or feel antagonistic toward marriage?
22. Do you day dream a great deal or do you fail to try to make your ambitions come true?
23. Have you lost interest in current events or do you feel disgusted with the world?
24. Do you tend to be radical just to be different or are you stubbornly conservative?
25. Have you become generally fault finding or cynical?
26. Have you lost ambition or do you feel your life has been a failure?
27. Do you lack self-confidence or feel you would like to be a child again?
28. Do you often feel that people or your surroundings are unreal?
29. Are you unable to hold any job for long?
30. Are you exceptionally orderly or unusually disorderly?
31. Are you overcareful in dressing or do you spend an excessive amount of time in front of the mirror?
32. Do you consider yourself a physical coward or do you lie even when it is not necessary?
33. Are you superstitious or do you adhere to a cult of any kind?
34. In the influence of a parent or any relative unusually strong?
35. Do you frequently make errors or do things you consider foolish?
36. Any compulsions such as looking into closets, under the bed, satisfying yourself several times that door is locked, the gas off or are you unable to overcome any bad habits such as excessive use of tobacco and alcohol?
37. Have you a haunting dread of death?
38. Have you a passion for collecting things or do you quickly tire and get rid of your belongings?
39. Do you fear the dark or any of the forces of nature or suffer a dread of insanity?
40. Do you think about committing suicide or entertain other morbid ideas?
41. Do you feel uncomfortable in closed places such as elevators, subways or when traversing open spaces such as fields and plazas?
42. Do you dislike high places such as mountains, tall buildings or do you have an impulse to jump off?
43. Have you any unreasonable fear of germs or has cleanliness become an obsession?
44. Are you irritable or given to temper tantrums?
45. Is your concentration or memory poor?
46. Are you easily fatigued or do you feel you must be always on the go?
47. Do you find it difficult to relax or do you suffer from insomnia?
48. Do you have frequent headaches or are you generally unstable?
49. Do you have disturbing dreams or do you tend to oversleep?
50. Have you physical symptoms that doctors claim are imaginary?

Now add the check marks and subtract their total from 100. If the remainder is 85 or more you are normal. If it is between 70 and 85 you probably are among the neurotics. If it is under 70 you are suffering from a neuroses.

Roosevelt Set To Revive NRA, Says Hamilton

Retention of Berry Cited as Proof; G. O. P. Head Claims California.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 21.—Republican Chairman John D. M. Hamilton said today, "there isn't any question about what President Roosevelt intends to do about the NRA if he is re-elected."

"Of course, he wants NRA," the chairman said at a press conference at the Republican Eastern division headquarters. "There isn't any question but what he wants regimentation."

"His silence on all of this is pure quibbling. If he does not intend to re-create the NRA, why does he maintain Maj. Berry and a force of former NRA experts at work in Washington?"

"James Roosevelt's remark that his father intends to re-create the NRA," Chairman Hamilton said, "recalls to my mind the second verse of the eighth Psalm, which says 'Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings hast thou ordained strength because of thine enemies.'

"Evidently President Roosevelt doesn't get that strength from his children."

Hamilton reiterated his belief that the Landon-Knox ticket would receive at least 300 to 320 electoral votes.

In response to inquiries, the chairman said that if the Kansas Governor lost both New York and Pennsylvania he could not be elected, but he hastened to add, "but I want you to know we are going to carry both New York and Pennsylvania."

Claims California.

Commenting upon Gov. Landon's visit to California, Chairman Hamilton said the situation in the Coast States "shows the most complete reversal in form of any States in the Union. A revolt against the Roosevelt Administration has continually worked its way westward. Fortunately, it hit California in time."

Hopkins Denies Missouri Relief Fraud Charge

PWA Head, Answering Curtis, Says All Aid Money Accounted for.

Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, last night denied charges made by Arthur M. Curtis, assistant to the chairman of the Republican National Committee, that $5,000,000 in relief funds sent to Missouri were not accounted for.

The records, Hopkins said, "are perfectly clear as to the status of any relief funds granted to the State by the Federal Government. He said the audit on which Curtis based his charge covered only the records of the Rural Rehabilitation Corporation, formerly under Hopkins, and that it did not include drought relief accounts.

"The facts are," Hopkins said, "that $6,398,181 was granted to the State of Missouri for drought relief purposes, including both work and direct relief in drought areas, as well as for the buying of feed for cattle. These drought relief accounts, which were not audited by Jones (Edwin E. Jones, on whose report Curtis based his charge) were audited by competent accountants of both the Federal Government and the State of Missouri, and found to be correct and all funds satisfactorily accounted for."

Meanwhile, the Republican National Committee said yesterday an "attempt at large scale fraudulent registration has been added to acts of coercion, intimidation and vicious exploitation of WPA workers" in Pennsylvania.

The statement said residents of Forest County were "up in arms against the attempt of the county Democratic machine to register illegally and vote residents of the Blue Jay transient camp in Howe Township."

The alleged attempt was said to have failed.

Chevy Chase Club To Aid Chest Drive

The Woman's Club of Chevy Chase, Md., at its first fall meeting yesterday, adopted a budget of $7,308 for the current year. Provision is made for the allocation of $672 for educational work and $386 for public welfare. Mrs. Robert Reeder and Mrs. Lawrence O. Manley were elected to membership. The monthly art exhibit of the club included a group of paintings by Mrs. Hewitt Griggs Robertson, a club member.

Announcement was made that the club will sponsor a team to assist in the Community Chest canvass in the District, with Mrs. Martine Coleman as captain. The club members will also co-operate in the suburban area.

Mrs. Harris T. Baldwin, vice president of the National League of Women Voters, in speaking to the 300 members of the club on "Woman's Responsibility in Government," urged the members to show more interest in legislation, particularly those measures affecting women, children and the homes. Mrs. Baldwin said "Government touches everything and we should be more interested in the personnel carrying on the Government."

J. B. Spund's Market To Hold Food Show

J. B. Spund's Market will be the scene of a special food show and exhibition of products this evening at 7 o'clock, in connection with the opening of the new Spund Market.

A music program, refreshments and favors will supplement the display.

Naval Funeral Today For Comdr. Nichols

Full military honors will be accorded Lieut. Comdr. Guy E. Nicholas, Dental Corps, U. S. N., at funeral services at 2 p. m. today in Arlington National Cemetery. Lieut. Comdr. Joseph H. Brooks, Chaplain Corps, will officiate. Lieut. Comdr. Nicholas died in San Diego Naval Hospital, October 15.

Pallbearers are: Commander L. C. Frost, Lieut. Comdrs. C. C. Tinsley, F. G. Ulen and P. A. McCole, and Lieuts. R. W. Malone and George N. Cresland.

Cold Winter Ahead.

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 21 (AP).—Charley Big Knife, Chippewa weather prophet of the Huron Mountain country, delved deeply into Indian lore today and came up with a prediction of another old-fashioned winter—a cold one.

Wooing Votes With Tax Funds.

It is easy to exaggerate the political significance of the fact that AAA checks are beginning to flow farmward on the eve of the national election. Not much more than 2 per cent of the $470,000,000 available for soil conservation payments will be in the mails before November 3. And even the relatively small number of farmers who will be "paid off" just before casting their ballots may not be unduly influenced by the mere receipt of their checks. They are more likely to vote for or against the New Deal farm policy in general, knowing that checks will soon be coming if not yet received.

Moreover, the AAA does not seem to have gone out of its way to get checks in the hands of any farmers before election day. Payment of farmers participating in the soil conservation program naturally begins when the harvest season is over. In this case there is strong evidence to support the AAA contention that there is no political intent in the coincidence between distribution of benefits and the end of the political campaigns.

When the AAA has been given the benefit of every doubt, however, the payment of nearly half a billion dollars out of the Treasury to one group of citizens is an unsavory incident, and not less so because the Republicans indorse the same general principle. It is relatively unimportant whether this fund reaches voters before or after the election. But the fact that an Administration draws support from economic factions directly subsidized out of the Treasury is of tremendous importance. When an enormous debt is built up to support such policies it is not an exaggeration to say that genuine representative government is in danger.

There may be some significance, too, in the fact that four of the largest "doubtful" States are among those selected to receive the first soil conservation payments. The AAA explains that checks are sent out in the same order that States complete their "compliance" records. This may simply mean, however, that Secretary Wallace's appointees in New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Iowa speeded up the work of checking farmers' participation in the program in order to secure checks before election day. The large sums granted to "doubtful" States by the PWA in recent weeks suggest that the New Deal is not averse to distributing its largesse where it is likely to be most effective politically.

Even the most careful administrative policies could scarcely dissociate the haphazard distribution of subsidies from politics. The root of the difficulty is not any plot on the part of the AAA or the PWA to corrupt the voters. It is found in the willingness of Congress to give the Administration vast sums to spend virtually at its discretion. So long as this policy is followed no election can be free from the sordid influence of mercenary politics.

The Price Of Milk.

In presenting their demand for an increase in the minimum price of milk the producers have advanced a number of strong arguments, but their case is by no means complete. They point to higher prices for dairy cows, feed and labor. No doubt these changes impose a handicap upon dairy farmers. Some adjustments as between producers and distributors may be necessary during the temporary duration of conditions supposed to have been brought about in large part by the drought.

If the proposed increase can not be absorbed by the distributors, however, another important factor will enter into the problem. Milk prices are already high. A further rise in costs to the consumer would doubtless reduce the demand for milk and thus minimize the benefits of the higher price.

Even though the supply of milk in the immediate vicinity of Washington has not increased as rapidly as the demand in recent years, there seems to be no present danger of an actual shortage. The producers complain chiefly that the price is not sufficient to bring forth an increased supply to meet growing demands. They should remember, however, that price boosting is only one way to increase the supply. Another alternative is to bring milk in from sources where the cost of production is not so great.

In a recent report Health Officer Ruhland noted that milk of a good grade could be brought into Washington from the Eastern Shore of Maryland at prices that would not exceed, and might undercut, the current local charge of 13 cents per quart. Regardless of the difficulties encountered by dairymen now serving the District, the development of other sources of supply will become an immediate possibility if prices are raised. Local distributors may be properly disturbed also by the threat of the Washington Hotel and Restaurant Owners' Association to set up their own pasteurizing plant and buy milk directly from farmers if the retail price is increased.

Under these circumstances the elevation of milk prices might work to the long-range disadvantage of nearby producers and distributors as well as the consuming public. If an adjustment is essential, therefore, it would seem wise to confine it to such increases as the distributors can absorb without advancing the retail price.

No Reply To This Criticism.

From opposite sides of the continent, leaders of parties traditionally in opposition on Tuesday night joined hands to attack the Administration over the fundamental issue of centralized government. In the speech of Gov. Landon at Los Angeles and that delivered in New York by John W. Davis, the Democratic candidate for President in 1924, there was an identity of ideas emphasizing the extent to which party lines are crumbling in this election.

In his closely reasoned indictment, the more effective because he is the second Democratic Presidential nominee to repudiate his party's present leadership, Mr. Davis summarized the beliefs "that make a Democrat." And first among these, not so much for political effect as with complete historical accuracy, he placed the doctrine of State's rights, the belief that preservation of the local self-governing power of the States is a certain block to the tyranny for which centralization is an essential prerequisite.

Gov. Landon, less concerned over President Roosevelt's break with the traditions of his party, showed how the centralizing tendency is working out in actual practice. These examples, while they may not seem at all tyrannical to the average citizen as yet, are nonetheless dangerous portents of what might happen if the same tendency were actively pressed for another four years. Nor are they less serious because, as Mr. Landon truly says, tyranny employs "pleasing guises" to creep upon the people. Without this technique, of course, tyrants could never establish themselves.

The grant to the Executive of vast discretionary spending powers; the arbitrary enforcement of administrative law; the utilization of taxation for punitive instead of revenue-raising purposes—these are only three examples of procedure unquestionably antagonistic to the liberties heretofore regarded as fundamental in this country. And such procedure is as repugnant to thoughtful Democrats as to thoughtful Republicans, for the simple reason that it is repugnant to the spirit of the American Government.

To such criticisms President Roosevelt makes no direct reply. Instead he argues, as at Providence yesterday, that what he seeks is "to adjust statecraft to reality." To this he couples an argument which in effect says that since the conditions of the machine age demand regimentation in any case, this regimentation had better be exercised by a paternalistic government than by arbitrary employers.

Though long indorsed by the Socialists this argument has heretofore had little influence in this country. And the reason for this, as hinted by Mr. Davis, is that the Socialist Party has always been completely honest with the electorate, stressing its ultimate aims far more than the initial steps which it would take to bring them about.

Not so the present Administration, the tactics of which are to conceal rather than illuminate the inevitable ends of its policy. Even if it were true that so far all centralizing measures have curbed the strong and aided the weak, an argument in which Mr. Landon has knocked some formidable holes, it would not follow that the road toward autocracy is a wise one for the underprivileged to follow. For, as Mr. Davis says, the Democratic principles which Mr. Roosevelt treats most cavalierly are the very ones which have held open to the poor "the door of opportunity through which they may escape from their poverty."

It is socially undesirable, as both Mr. Landon and Mr. Davis emphasized, for any one man to be trusted with unlimited powers. Russia, Germany and Italy today all three bear witness to the truth of that. Such arbitrary rule is not merely clearly undesirable from the popular viewpoint but is also a particularly reactionary doctrine for Americans to indorse. Yet, of the millions now planning to vote for Mr. Roosevelt, there is not one who can today define with any confidence the point beyond which their leader would refuse to carry his policy of centering ever-greater powers in his own hands.

Teacher And Pupil.

For nearly half a century the lives of Anne Sullivan Macy and of Helen Keller were as one. The teacher served the pupil with absolute selflessness and superhuman devotion; the pupil responded as a flower responds to the sun and warm rain and tender care. In our sordid world their relationship truly constituted a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

In a very real sense the Helen Keller that came to be, that Helen Keller whose successful fight against all-enveloping darkness and silence made her a world figure, was the product of her magnificent teacher. The two women first met when Miss Keller was a blind and deaf little girl of seven, a pitiful creature surrounded by forbidding and unscalable walls. It was Miss Sullivan, as she then was, who took the child literally in hand, who taught her words and their meanings, who enabled her slowly to surmount the obstacles that were keeping out the universe. It was a task that required an unbelievable amount of patience. But both teacher and pupil proved equal to the occasion.

Coupled with Mrs. Macy's very real greatness of spirit were poignant memories of how she, too, had once been cut off from the light and forced to grope in darkness. She could not restore to Miss Keller, as had been restored to her, the sight that was lacking. But she could and did provide the next best thing. She became the eyes and ears of her charge. Miss Keller's almost unbelievable triumph, which encouraged so many others who were also to overcome their handicap, was a joint triumph. And at the end of Mrs. Macy's life, when her eyes failed her and she could only faintly distinguish between light and darkness, it was Miss Keller who aided her.

For every type, Plato taught, there is an absolute, something supremely whole and perfect and flawless. In that pantheon of absolutes, Anne Sullivan Macy deserves a place as the quintessential teacher—a light-bringer and a wall-breaker.

An Inadequate Defense.

Secretary Morgenthau's reply to former President Hoover's attack upon the Administration's methods of juggling budgetary figures is neither clear-cut nor impressive. He alleges that the method of handling revolving accounts has been the practice since 1920 and flatly denies the existence of a "double budget" or double system of accounting. Mr. Hoover's complaint, however, was not directed primarily against the accounting methods employed but against the way in which the criticized practices have been used to present a misleading picture of the state of the Federal finances to the American people.

In dealing with revolving funds, for example, it is not only legitimate but essential in the interests of clarity to segregate such accounts from current receipts and expenditures of the Government. But it is thoroughly misleading to deduct net receipts of these segregated lending agencies, obtained through liquidation of capital assets, from current outlays. It is also indefensible to make comparisons between these corrected totals and the outlays for preceding years when capital deductions were smaller in amount or non-existent.

Incidentally this intermingling of capital items with current accounts is a particularly irresponsible proceeding in view of the importance assigned to such capital assets as offsets to outstanding Federal indebtedness.

There may be some esoteric definition of the term "double budget" which justifies Secretary Morgenthau's indignant refutation of its existence. There is no denying, however, that the present system of classifying expenses as ordinary and emergency outlays serves the purpose of a double budget and enables the Administration to conceal a vast rise in the regular routine expenses of the Government.

In principle there is much to be said in favor of the segregation of non-recurrent, emergency outlays from ordinary recurrent expenditures. If carefully and conscientiously prepared, a double, or, for that matter, multiple budget would present a much clearer statement of the fiscal position of the Government than an unclassified summary.

But, as Mr. Hoover has pointed out, double bookkeeping is seldom used for purposes of illumination. To prove this point, he has cited numerous instances of the juggling of accounts by the Administration through arbitrary changes of classification of outlays. President Roosevelt, with billions of lump-sum appropriations at his command, has been able to make his own definitions of "relief and recovery" sufficiently elastic to cover a multitude of quite ordinary expenditures. To specific charges of abuse of such discretion Secretary Morgenthau makes no reply, presumably because the facts are indisputable.

It is not an adequate answer to Mr. Hoover's charges to point out that the facts can be unearthed if one has the perseverance and the knowledge that make successful pursuit possible, and the acumen to interpret the footnotes of complicated financial reports. A budget may conform to all legal requirements; it may be scrupulously exact in details and yet give a wrong impression of the real state of the national finances. The man in the street is entitled to a plain straight-forward accounting in order that he may know what the Administration is doing with the money contributed by the people to the national upkeep.

He is not getting it under the "refined" methods now used to conceal rather than reveal salient facts about income and outgo.

Overestimating The Loss.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There are few abominations more abominable than the one-man street cars. In the loss of time alone they are a great liability to the stockholders and to the people who use the trolley lines.

The traffic company boasts that in 12 months it has carried more than 220,000,000 passengers; of these it is probable that 75 per cent, or 166,000,000, have traveled on the street cars. Now let us see what this would mean in loss of time if all cars were one-man cars. It is reliably estimated that one-man cars require 30 minutes more time than two-man cars, on an average, to make a round trip. During the rush hours they are much slower, and those we have in operation hold back the traffic of all the other cars.

The 166,000,000 users of the street cars do not make full round trips, so their loss of time will average only 15 minutes per day, or a total yearly of 20,750,000 hours for the group, and at 30 cents per hour this means that their trolley transportation is costing them $6,225,000 in loss of time besides the $13,280,000 they are paying in fares at 8 cents per fare.

The Capital Transit Co. may be in the red, but it is not because of good service, low fares and high wages to their employes.

The traveling public of the District has paid the cost of its trolley system several times over and is entitled to better accommodations.

The one great reason they do not get better accommodations is that the public has developed a most wonderful degree of endurance. Back in the "horse and buggy days" the street car carried two employes and the fare was 5 cents and they made nearly as good time as the electric street cars do today.

Politics From Workshop And Farm.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am a laboring man and just want to say a few things to the laboring men. I advise them to get this Social Security Act and study it. After this law goes into effect January 1 they will find out how much will be taken out of their pay envelope. That was good advice that Henry Ford gave the laboring men; he is a self-made man and has worked hard for what he has accumulated, and he can give good sound advice.

I can't understand how hard working men can support Roosevelt in preference to Gov. Landon. Landon is a self-made man like Henry Ford and has worked hard for what he has, and has also worked with the laboring men and knows their problems. Roosevelt don't know what hard work is. He was born with plenty, and don't know what poverty is. Now he is trying to fool the laboring people and make them believe he is their friend.

Now these propagandists are trying to fool the school teachers and make them believe that Gov. Landon is an enemy to free schools. No sane teacher will believe it. What does Roosevelt know about the "little red schoolhouse?" He never attended a public school. He was educated with tutors and at universities. Kansas has as good schools as any of the Southern and Western States, and as far as schools being closed in Kansas during the depression, there were plenty of schools closed in other States. So why pick on Kansas?

Now the Democrats are claiming credit for the Bank Deposit Insurance, which protects small depositors by insuring bank deposits up to $5,000. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican from Michigan, introduced the amendment and had it passed, so the credit is due him. President Roosevelt wrote a letter to Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, who was chairman of the banking committee demanding the elimination of the Vandenberg Amendment. He and the late Secretary of the Treasury Woodin were bitterly opposed to the amendment. Now the President and the Democratic speakers are telling the country how they saved the banks.

The leaders at the head of the labor organizations live at big hotels, wear diamond rings, travel around in grand style, and one made a trip to Europe this summer at the expense of the laboring men. Now what laboring man can take a trip to Europe? I decided my hard earned money won't keep that up. I, for one, won't let them dictate to me who I shall vote for . . . My advice to the laboring men is to wake up! Go into your booth and vote as you please. I am going to vote for that sane American, Gov. Landon, the friend of the laboring man!

JEFFERSONIAN DEMOCRAT.
Washington, Oct. 22.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am writing you concerning my idea of the success that has crowned the efforts of President Roosevelt during the past three and one-half years, and that, from all indications will continue for the next four years. It will become stronger and more pronounced during that period because in Roosevelt we have the greatest man of the day right at the steering wheel of the ship of state—a man who has taken us calmly through the shoals of a depression. He has steered the ship on a steady course through all the dangerous reefs of criticism—the mouthings of a certain set of malcontents who can never see the good in anything that someone else tries to do. True, perhaps they have reason to be sore, because they had been running the country in a way to suit themselves for 12 years—running it just for their own benefit—forgetting the average wage earner, who is the real backbone of this Nation.

He took the reins and began driving the old team for the benefit of 120,000,000, instead of a mere 120,000, as had been previously done under Hoover's regime particularly. Those days are over now. There is yet more to do, but Roosevelt will be at the helm to do it. He has been the salvation of this Nation and his re-election is absolutely necessary in order that it continue its march to peace and happiness. He has fed the hungry, has put the banks on a business basis, he has steadied business and has made the average man realize that he can live again with assurance that his work will be recognized. He has brought the country out of that mire it was in for so long.

True he has spent money, but on whom? On the bankers? No, on the average person. There is a passage in the Scripture wherein it is said "Beware of false prophets, etc." That is what we have facing us today, the false prophets with their cry of "we'll lead you to prosperity." Yes, the same kind of prosperity that was around the corner in 1930, 1931, 1932. The Republican party had 12 years to produce and what did they do—just brought the Nation to the brink of ruin and revolution and now they come out and promise any and everything so as to get their hands on the money bags again, so that the bread of Wall street can be buttered unsparingly. But Roosevelt has been thinking of the bread of the average families, and he has given it to them. Surely they will not bite the hand that feeds them. No sir, they will show appreciation and re-elect him.

He is called a dictator because he moved the Capitol back from Wall street to Washington and won't let the old crowd dictate to him. He has taken affairs of the Government from the hands of individuals who did not give a damn whose bellies hurt, just so long as theirs didn't. Let's hold the prosperity we have gained. I feel sure that on November 3 the voters will again use good judgment because they are afraid of those dark days of 1933 and will again re-elect the greatest man of our time, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Our Faith In Democracy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read with great interest your editorial of October 15 entitled, "Not So Comic After All." May I now go on record as challenging the editorial in its entirety and, more particularly, that portion which I here repeat?

He (Landon) discussed the rise of dictatorships in many countries which, until a few years ago, seemed as confirmed in their faith in democracy as is the United States.

I can readily appreciate that such a thought might be attributed to Mr. Landon. However, I must say that I was somewhat surprised to read that The Post had seized upon it for editorial emphasis. It does not appear to be worthy of a publication whose editorials have in the past indicated intelligent thinking.

Honestly, can you point out one democracy in any country, now supplanted by dictatorship, where faith in democracy seemed as confirmed as in the United States? Germany's democratic form of government was short lived. Shorter still was the reign of democracy in Spain. France, even though torn by internal political strife, is still a democracy. Switzerland, alone, can be classed with the United States as a country wherein faith in democracy is deeply rooted. And Switzerland is still a democracy. To what countries do you and the Republican candidate refer?

If I understand Mr. Landon and The Post editorial correctly, they say in effect, "The United States seems as confirmed in its faith in democracy as those countries which, until a few years ago, knew not the iron hand of the dictator but the freedom of rule by the people."

I am not concerned about Mr. Landon. But is that what The Post actually believes?

The Supreme Court Issue.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Strange that so little consideration has been given by speakers opposed to the New Deal to the really paramount question involved in the present campaign, namely, the fact that, should Roosevelt be re-elected, which it is hoped a kind Providence may avert, he will in all human probability have the opportunity to reconstitute the entire Supreme Court, and the undoubted fact that he would fill the court with radicals and men in sympathy with his own political, social and economic objectives.

The inevitable result of such a court would be that our Constitution would be construed out of existence, and the way opened for the creation of the collectivist state under which there would be no individualism or personal liberty in America, and which we could regain only by a bloody revolution such as we are today witnessing in Spain.

This probability in the event of Roosevelt's re-election transcends all other issues, and is one that should be deeply impressed upon the voters in this election. AMERICAN.

Political Franking.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I note with interest the front page of The Post of October 17 and the text of the President's Cleveland speech.

The President is quoted as saying the country is being flooded with literature "sent out from the center of the great financial district of New York. The money of the stockholders is being used to finance this literature. This waste of stockholders' money is being perpetrated by the same group," etc. etc.

I inclose one of four cards received in our mail today from our Cumberstone postoffice, Maryland.

We note the words "Not printed at Government expense," but the franking privilege of Alben W. Barkley, U. S. S., stamped on the card, is quite certainly at the taxpayers' expense.

With our hearty congratulations for the fine patriotic service you are rendering in bringing substantiated facts to the attention of the electorate, I am

The Post Impressionist

End Of A Dynasty.

The death of John McPherson Dennis, former Maryland State treasurer, probably stirred among many Washingtonians reminiscences of holiday trips across the Chesapeake Bay aboard the sturdy—if not too fast—ferryboat John M. Dennis—to the Eastern Sho' and to Delaware's Rehoboth Beach.

Perhaps it also brought back memories of Annapolis' narrow cobbled streets, over which Middies in immaculate white step smartly in search of the romance which sits behind the venetian screened old colonial houses. Something of the flavor of the old town can be caught even while waiting in line on King George street for the ferry which always comes so slowly.

And then, as impatience mounted and you vowed never again to travel across the bay over Fourth of July and Labor Day holidays, there came the shrill whistle of the John M. Dennis coming around the Naval Academy channel. And since your automobile was far down the line, you were glad it was the Dennis and not the smaller Albert C. Ritchie. And in the joy of the bay and the delightful day or two along Eastern Sho' estuary or Atlantic beach you forgot your vow never to come again.

* * *

But if you boast of Maryland as well as of Washington as home, the passing of the merry, blue-eyed old gentleman brought back memories of events beyond those associated with his nautical namesake. It brought back memories covering almost a score of years, when Maryland was ruled, not only politically but economically, by an aristocracy of Democrats to the manor born.

Led by Albert C. Ritchie, that clique is now all but gone. Mr. Dennis' death marks a further disintegration which started when the people of Maryland, two years ago next month, tired of their princely lords and voted their Ritchie down to defeat. But even before that, the fates withdrew their favor from "Jawhn" Dennis when his bank, the Union Trust Co., became involved in difficulties during the 1933 banking panic.

It was really in 1933 that the camarilla which ruled Maryland as though it were a Graustark principality commenced to break up, thus shadowing the approaching end of a colorful era and a group of men who went into politics as an avocation instead of a vocation, and who believed that rendering good government was the best politics they could play.

It was in 1933 that Frank A. Furst, the grand old man of Baltimore and the political godfather of Albert Ritchie, passed from the scene. It was in 1933 that the aristocratic E. Brooke Lee was forced by economic circumstances to forswear his love of politics and retire to the quiet of a realtor's life in nearby Montgomery County. It was then that the future in finance of "Jawhn" Dennis was sealed.

* * *

SINCE then the distintegration of the Ritchie dynasty has been swift. In the 1934 election it was swept from office and took away from Annapolis a favor which can never be restored. The rebuilding of the executive mansion is the symbol which marks the end of that era.

Early this year death reached out and quietly took Albert Ritchie. In the subsequent months it cast its shadow over Charles H. Knapp, one of the Governor's "kitchen cabinet"—and now kindly, if sometimes Machiavellian, John Dennis is gone. Of the old regime only State Comptroller William S. Gordy and Democratic National Committeeman Howard Bruce remain active figures in State politics.

Both former Gov. Ritchie and Mr. Dennis were catapulted on the State political scene in Maryland by the 1915 election. Young Ritchie—sometimes called the handsomest man on the Atlantic seaboard—was elected attorney general of the State that year. He came from old Maryland and Virginia families and could have made a fortune in the private practice of law. But public affairs had an overwhelming attraction for him.

In the year Ritchie was elected as attorney general, there was elected a Democratic Legislature which had the duty of selecting a State treasurer. Gen. Murray Vandiver, State treasurer since 1900, was seriously ill and withdrew as a candidate for re-election. The influence of Mr. Furst and Senator John Walter Smith brought the selection of Mr. Dennis—until then inactive politically. He, too, was of outstanding family, listing among his ancestors a trusted friend of George Washington, Thomas Johnson, the first Governor of Maryland and an associate justice of the Supreme Court.

* * *

IN 1918 the Republicans captured the State Legislature and Mr. Dennis was retired. But two years later when Albert Ritchie was elected Governor, he again was elected State treasurer and held the post until January, 1935. Throughout those years, "Jawhn" Dennis was one of Gov. Ritchie's right bowers.

On occasion they disagreed and at times the State treasurer's office in the Court of Appeals Building—across the street from the State House—became the meeting place for a cabal which plotted a palace revolution. On occasion Mr. Dennis joined in such intrigues. But in the end he always was found supporting Gov. Ritchie for another term.

Dempsey's Wrestlers.

It is safe to say that no section of the country has enjoyed a more dignified, intellectual presentation of the campaign issues than up-State New York, where for two weeks that eminent American statesman, Jack Dempsey, has been making one-night stands on behalf of Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Dempsey is accompanied by a supporting cast of 10 wrestlers from the mighty herds of Mr. Jack Curley, who grapple out such issues as the Constitution, agriculture and foreign relations every night, and the entire mission is pervaded by the scholarly calm of Mr. Curley himself in the role of chairman, master of ceremonies and referee.

The wrestlers weigh, on the average, 223 pounds each, a generous long ton in all, and, assuring a decent presentation of Mr. Landon's side of the case, some of them are Republican wrestlers. Your correspondent hears that the Democratic wrestlers have won every fall up to now, and to any thinking American no other guide to the course of wisdom should be necessary.

To be sure, the Democratic State committee is paying for the motor caravan in which the debaters travel about, sometimes stopping for 10-minute rallies at string towns along the road and for the feeding of the wrestlers. And Mr. Curley is a Democratic referee.

• • • •

However, to anyone at all familiar with the high ethical standards and the sporting nobility of the wrestling profession it were unthinkable that such considerations might have entered into the results. Foul play and partisanship may mar the serene beauty of politics in the heat of battle, but wrestling has ever borne itself with superior dignity and a handsome pride in the fair name of the sport.

So the results of the bouts to date strongly indicate that the New Deal is right and Mr. Landon in error, and anyone fortunate enough to have attended one of the rallies will have only himself to blame if he marks his ballot wrong.

The suggestion seems to have originated in the keen, patriotic intelligence of Mr. Gene Fowler, the author, who was up in Mr. Curley's office on a recent day looking at the old photographs of wrestlers on the walls.

Mr. Fowler had listened to Father Coughlin, Al Smith, Harold Ickes, Frank Knox and to both Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Landon. It seemed to him that the issues were obscured in irrelevant matter. On the other hand, Mr. Fowler, who once owned a pet wrestler named Ivan Podunsky, recalled the fine lucidity of the wrestlers at their work.

• • • •

The proposal appealed to Mr. Dan Skilling, of the State committee, and Mr. Skilling went straight to the Messrs. Dempsey and Curley. Mr. Dempsey readily agreed to serve his country, and Mr. Curley, with some 80 head of wrestlers eating three meals a day at his expense, was glad to get 10 of them off his hands during the dull season.

"It seemed to me," Mr. Fowler explained, "that intelligent Americans—like you and I, if I may say so; we, the kind who like to think things out—were not getting a fair break in this campaign. There has been too much religion, class conflict, personal rancor and crowd psychology. It has been impossible to obtain any intelligent idea from the orations. On the other hand, I have often done my best thinking at wrestling contests.

"Suiting the action to the thought, I therefore offered my idea to my country, and I am proud to say that Mr. Dempsey's little caravan has made by far the most sensible presentation of the problems that has yet been heard."

• • • •

Your correspondent has considered joining Mr. Dempsey's troupe for a few days in order to clarify the confusion resulting from too diligent perusal of the published orations and Mr. Walter Lippmann's declaration of principle.

Mr. Skilling asserts that positively there is not a wrestler of the Lippmann type in the whole 10 of them. They are all what you might call little-word wrestlers, Mr. Skilling says, and when one of them throws the other through the skylight anybody can understand it.

Your correspondent has just one alternative, Mr. Skilling also sent out Miss Fifi D'Orsay, the singer, to clarify the issues in song along the Canadian border.

Maybe Miss D'Orsay could explain things nicer.

End of the Trail.

(In tribute to Sation, one of the great sprinters of thoroughbred racing history, destroyed after an accident in a recent handicap.)

The thoroughbreds come charging down the stretch—
As thousands cheer, beseeching Lady Luck;
So great is the excitement and the din
Few note the stricken figure in the ruck.

One foreleg flapping like an empty sleeve,
More wonderment than torture in his eyes,
He hobbles in a circle, whinnies low,
And lifts his startled head to scan the skies.

He hears the frenzied roaring down the track
How often have those hearty cheers been his! . . .
Blind instinct makes him crawl another pace.

• • • •

The crowds fix greedy eyes upon the board—
To matters of their purse they now attend;
Few have the time to note, to mark, to mourn

The winner now within the circle stands . . .
"C'mon! . . . Collect!" . . . Hard voices fill the air;
Alone in startled agony the horse
Weaves, wondering what leaves him helpless there.

There's laughter, God forgive 'em, mirth and glee;
Great Sation takes another painful step,
His head still high in final misery.

A few who deeply love a thoroughbred
Stand hurt, and, eyes averted, turn away;
They know that one of turfdom's truly great
Will have to die that lovely autumn day.

"He quit!" a rat-eyed, cursing gambler shouts,
No luck? . . . The grooms surround old Sation now . . .
One minute more of sunshine . . . that is all!

• • • •

A pistol shot rings on across the hills
So red and gold as day is nearly done . . .

By Eugene Pharo.

Philadelphia.

THE WORKS PROGRESS ADMINISTRATION in Pennsylvania wormed underground in the week of October 12 to stay there probably for a fortnight. This was not done for protection against charges lately made by those associated with the Republican Party, but obviously to baffle such critics or anyone else who is lukewarm about WPA beneficences.

Its medium is a spirited exposition five blocks long, that serpentines along both sides and the middle of the main "concourse" in an elaborate system of subterranean passageways in central Philadelphia. Music, singing, dancing and play-acting under various divisions of the organization, were continuous.

The hidden maze of pedestrian tunnels in which the circus is located was formally opened to the public by Mayor Wilson on October 13, in the presence of real estate operators, transit officials and prominent citizens; but the WPA had got in there the day before, and had opened its exposition with a series of speeches, one of them by Federal WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins. Mr. Hopkins did take occasion to discount affidavits charging coercion of voters in the Pennsylvania WPA, that were broadcast in the week of October 5 under the auspices of the Republican National Committee, but the burden of his talk was the fine things WPA has done for everybody. Edward N. Jones, State administrator, and John H. Rankin, local administrator, also spoke.

At present the public is somewhat torn between interest in the underground concourses, and the complex and dazzling $15,000 WPA show, which occupied about 200,000 square feet of them. Construction of the labyrinth itself was begun in 1928, eight long years ago, and has already absorbed $4,125,000, of which $841,021 was contributed by the local traction company. Details costing, according to the mayor, about $128,881, remain to be finished; consisting mainly of fixing sidewalls and gutters in the City Hall section.

The corridors, which in some instances are as wide as the streets under which they run, meandered under City Hall, and for nine blocks north and south, from Spruce to Race streets, and for six blocks east, west, and west by north, from Eleventh to Seventeenth streets. They enabled pedestrians to get to all adjacent buildings, subway and railroad stations, without risk of being run over by motor vehicles, without being rained or snowed on, and without having to view City Hall. And, as the mayor pointed out, it was expected they would relieve pedestrian congestion in the surface streets and courtyards that run around and through the hall.

As for fresh air and sunshine, critics of the system may be reminded of the prophetic remark of a former Philadelphia journalist, Joseph Michael Lalley, who dimly grasped the possibility of such absymal development in the Quaker City, as far back as 1919.

"Pedestrians," scintillated this knight of the typewriter, "get all the exercise; why should they expect to have air as well?"

Display Has Had More Than 200,000 Visitors.

THAT SEVERAL hundred thousand citizens are ready, to grant the justice of this observation, and to emulate the warmly enveloped mole, is indicated by the very large crowds that already have taken to using the tunnels. In the first day, upwards of 200,000 visitors to the WPA displays were claimed by those in charge, but it is obvious that large numbers of those in the concourses are on their way from one destination to another, and would be there regardless of the show.

It is equally certain that thousands are going down there in order to get a sort of undercover education through studying the Government exhibits, or to feast their eyes and ears by attending the spritely shows that are on the program. The latter did much to mitigate whatever depression assails those who lurk in the bowels of the city, ranging as they do from the spirited stepping of a colored honky-tonk, whose piece de resistance is a production called "Truckin' Along," to the classical drama of a Punch and Judy show that was only part of the bill of fare on a nearby stage. Before nightfall community dancing, directed by WPA employes, was in progress in some parts of the concourse; and in various artificial caves there were motion pictures, which are devoted to showing dramatically the conquest by WPA of sewage, highway and other problems.

There were several very distinct impressions that the whole affair left on the spectator, in addition to his disappointment at finding no white rabbits or March hares, and no tea parties . . . and besides, or instead of, the one obviously intended, which is, of course, that Roosevelt is entitled to votes as well as credit for having made all this possible. The first vivid sensation was one of surprise and dream-like unreality at the irresistible association between the singing and stepping presented by colored and white entertainers under the wings of the WPA theater project, and at public expense, and the spirited fishing for votes in that other musical political burlesque, "Of Thee I Sing," which was put on at private expense in the Hoover era. Dedicated to Franklin Delano Roosevelt, the recent production might very well be named, "For Thee I Swing," for swing-time is most definitely its tempo.

If you happened to enter the concourse from the Spruce street end, another and very practical consideration occurred to mind, provided you were at all aware of political realities in this at present politically crucial town. It was evoked by the proportion of colored WPA employes who were on duty at that particular spot, and the number of colored spectators who were eyeing these attendants, as well as the exhibits, with pride and satisfaction that stood out all over them. Philadelphia's "black belt" is only two blocks farther south, and located mostly in that belt are exactly 50.9 per cent of all the Negroes in the State.

They number, according to the 1930 census, 219,599, and comprise 11.2 per cent of the city's total population. Such of them as enter the concourse are immediately faced by graphic proof of the facts Democratic campaign talk and literature have been pointing out to them . . . that is, that the Earle administration in the State, and the Roosevelt administration in the Nation, have shared with them more patronage than has been handed out by all the other administrations since the Emancipation Proclamation. Nor does anyone seem abashed at this new sort of underground railroad for smuggling colored votes being located almost directly underneath the Union League on South Broad street.

"Greatest Payroll Window In The World."

A THIRD feature of the show that impressed anti-New Deal observers, at least, with more force than any of the others, was a mechanically operated device that shoved a steady stream of Federal checks pouring into a local community whose workers are employed on WPA projects. Over the entrance to the separate little labyrinth devoted to this exhibit was a legend that advertised the greatest payroll window in the world, which hands out to its beneficiaries $185,000,000 annually. Several onlookers wearing little sunflowers in their coat lapels went through this exhibit pugnaciously. When they came to the mill-wheel that was covered with checks, some of them became red in the face, and were seen to gag.

Work on the Writers' Guide to Philadelphia; on cataloguing volumes in the city's libraries, in order to set up a central, union card catalogue; posters and models made by WPA workers for use in schools and libraries; models of work camps, road projects and airport construction; products of sewing projects; recreational work, and other ventures were subjects of the exposition. There was literature telling of the work throughout the Nation, down to such details as "Architects are measuring all historic buildings, that they may be restored if destroyed."

Inquiry at the administration office of the exposition elicited a statement that the recent show was unique; purely a local inspiration. Speculation about its effect upon the minds of voters met with a noncommittal smile.

You can't produce evidence that the recent display was a masterly bid for more Democratic votes in the most critical city of a doubtful State. There isn't anything said, or any direct evidence to support so foul a suspicion. There really doesn't need to be. Those whose emotions are affected favorably by the evidence of work done and money spent will naturally realize that before Roosevelt became President you could have traveled many a day, above ground or below it, without finding any such happy little work metropolis as the one currently existing in Philadelphia's subterranean wonderland.

A Lesson From The Japanese.

One of the saving things about a democracy such as ours is that it has no succession problem. When the voters tire of an Administration they can, by means of the ballot, get rid of it. In the midst of a campaign such as the one now raging, the process may seem wasteful and confusing. Actually despite its obvious shortcomings, our system of changing rulers is relatively simple, automatic and efficient. Above all it has the enormous virtue of making change possible without revolution, bloodshed or chaos.

Monarchies, too, whether powerful as they once used to be or purely ceremonial as most of them have become, face relatively few difficulties so far as the problem of succession is concerned. Election, in their case, is by birth rather than by ballot, a circumstance understood and accepted in advance of the actual transfer of power from one king to his successor. Only when there are no direct heirs, and rival collateral lines advance equally valid claims to the throne, is trouble likely to arise.

But it is this question of succession which is the Achilles' heel of the modern dictatorship. No sure and certain device has been worked out which can assure a dictator that his regime will be continued unchanged after his death. The classic example of Alexander's vast empire falling apart through the quarrels of his generals still provides the obvious clew as to what may happen in any totalitarian state when the dictator has disappeared.

• • • •

IN HIS POLITICAL testament, Lenin clearly indicated Trotzky, most important of his collaborators, as his successor. But his posthumous order had no force. The death of Lenin found Stalin so strongly entrenched in the key position of secretary of the Communist Party that Trotzky, for all his popularity, for all the glamour surrounding him as creator of the victorious Red army, was unable to dislodge him. Yet even now, 12 years after Lenin's death and apotheosis as saint No. 1 in the Communist calendar, the struggle over the succession goes on. And, as the fate of Kamenev and Zinoviev made clear, it is still a bloody struggle.

It is apparent from the Russian example, however, that the death of the dictator need not of itself sound the doom of the dictatorship, provided the dictator during his years of rule has managed to consolidate his authority and has buttressed his regime with a bureaucracy (in Lenin's case, the Communist Party) which has a vested interest in survival. No doubt Mussolini feels that the Fascist Party, and particularly the Fascist grand council, may be able to take over when he goes and prevent the system which he has established from crumbling into dust. Indeed this body has already been vested with the power to determine Mussolini's successor. And, in part, possibly, Hitler's latest move in practically making Goering vice Fuehrer may have been determined by similar considerations of ultimately paving the way for a bloodless transfer of power.

• • • •

NEITHER MUSSOLINI nor Hitler, however, can be at all certain that they will have any greater success in naming those who are to take over after them than Lenin had. It is by no means certain that the lieutenants of any European dictator will be as willing, after his death, to follow out his wishes as to his successor, as they are prepared to do his bidding while he is still alive. Nor can any party, as a unit, of itself exercise the functions of a dictatorship. The supreme power must be exercised by a leader who can command the party rather than be commanded by it.

Under the circumstances dictators, dreaming of perpetuating their regime beyond their own lifetime, must view with envy the hereditary principle as a bridge making possible the peaceful transfer of power. And it is this yearning, possibly, which is behind the "build up" now taking place in Italy of the youthful Count Gallazo Ciano, son-in-law of the dictator, who, it is persistently rumored is eventually to be the Duce's successor.

• • • •

WHETHER THESE rumore are true or not remain to be seen. But if true the world would see the amazing spectacle of an hereditary monarchy in which the real power is wielded by an hereditary dictatorship. There is only one parallel for this in European history and that is not a happy one. Richard, son of Oliver Cromwell, succeeded the latter as protector. But he did not last long and after his fall the Stuarts were restored.

But there is an almost perfect Oriental parallel that Mussolini may use to guide him. In Japan, for centuries, the nominally all-powerful emperor had lost his authority to the shogun, whose office was also hereditary. Indeed there were, from time to time, wheels within wheels. Men arose who dominated the shogun and their position of dominance was transmitted to their descendants.

"In the Japan of the thirteenth century," writes G. B. Sansom in his splendid work, 'Japan: A Cultural History,' we have the astonishing spectacle of a state at the head of which stands a titular emperor whose vestigial functions are usurped by an abdicated emperor, and whose real power is nominally delegated to an hereditary military dictator but actually wielded by an hereditary adviser of that dictator."

It was the hereditary principle running riot. Nevertheless the shogunate remained an institution for a long, long time. Is Mussolini about to establish himself, for benefit of his growing family, as the barbarian-subduing-general, the shotgun of Italy?

Wisdom In Laughter.

Solemnity is often regarded as a sign of cerebration; but there is often deeper wisdom in laughter. We say the owl looks wise; he merely looks grave.

The miracles of the Old Testament have often been repeated in modern times. During the era of prohibition, the lasting qualities of one bottle of "prewar stuff" made the widow's cruse (I Kings 17:14) seem almost empty. Joshua told the sun to stand still for only one day; but in 1543 Copernicus told it to stand still, and it hasn't moved since.

Many realistic novelists seem determined to take the Freude out of life and substitute Freud in its place.

Why is it that a tailor is usually eager to please his men clients, while a dressmaker treats her women customers with royal disdain?

An English judge in the seventeenth century had a sense of humor. He sentenced a Baptist to be drowned.

Both terrestrial and celestial travelers are fortunate in one respect. Nearly the only publications without typographical errors are railway time tables and the English Bible.

On a railway train a man opened a window, and I heard the man sitting behind him mutter, "I have only one drop of blood in my whole body, and I want that to circulate." The window was closed.

A poet once said that the wife of King Arthur, Guinevere, in seeking fire, found hell. Those who find life monotonous might remember that the monotony of a lightship is not so bad as the monotony of a derelict.

Those who are afraid of making enemies should consider the once famous poet Robert Southey. Today he has no friends—not even an enemy.

One reason ministers of the gospel are so often attacked is because of their willingness to co-operate in community efforts, both in war and in peace. Those who never try to help are never attacked; they are not even defended.

Those who think the surest sign of intellectual maturity is an attitude of ironical contempt might remember a saying of Alfred de Vigny: "There is not one man who has the right to despise men."

It is a common error to think that only those have barian-subduing-general, the shogun of Italy?

Text of President's Address in Worcester

I am glad to be in New England—New England from which have come most of my forebears. In recent weeks I have traveled through a great part of the United States. I have spoken about farming and mining and livestock, about business big and little, about the wage earner, about the national debt, about drought and flood, about work for the needy unemployed and security—security for our people and for their homes.

I have found a Nation more greatly prosperous, more definitely on the highway to complete recovery than at any time in the past seven years. I have seen the record of what we have done in the faces of the people I have met. We have banished old man gloom.

It has taken only one day of driving through Rhode Island and Massachusetts to prove to me that New England is in step and on march with the rest of the Nation.

Factories Busy.

I have seen things today even more welcome to me than your lovely autumn foliage. I have seen the smoke from factories—which 3½ years ago were smokeless. I have heard the sound of mills—which 3½ years ago were silent. I have seen men at work who 3½ years ago were jobless. I have seen women and children who—after long years of fear—have begun to live and hope again.

Three and a half years ago we declared war on the depression. You and I know today that that is being won.

But now comes that familiar figure—the well-upholstered hindsight critic. He tells us that our strategy was wrong—that the cost was too great—that something else won the war. That is an argument as old as the remorse of those who had their chance and muffed it. It is as recent as the claims of those who say that they could have done it better.

You may remember the first battle of the Marne. Almost everybody thought that Marshal Joffre had won it. But some refused to agree. One day a newspaperman appealed to Marshal Joffre: "Will you tell me who did win the battle of the Marne?"

"I can't answer that," said the marshal. "But I can tell you that if the battle of the Marne had been lost the blame would have been on me."

War Had to Be Won.

Our way, too, had to be won No price, we were told then, was too high to pay to win it. We did count the cost. But in the barrage we laid down against the depression we could not stop firing to haggle about the price of every shell. We kept on fighting. The important thing is that the war is being won.

Without that victory we cannot have the kind of an America we know and love and want our children to live in.

New England—as one of the senior partners in the company of the States—has always stood for two of the fundamentals of American liberty—the town meeting, with its essential insistence in local control over local affairs—and the doctrine for which Sam Adams and his friends were willing to fight—the doctrine of democracy in taxation. While I do not happen to be a cousin of the distinguished Adams family, I consider myself, politically, a lineal descendant of old Sam.

In 1776 the fight was for democracy in taxation. In 1936 that is still the fight. Mr. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes once said: "Taxes are the price we pay for civilized society." One sure way to determine the social conscience of a government is to examine the way taxes are collected and how they are spent. And one sure way to determine the social conscience of an individual is to get his tax-reaction.

Dues of Membership.

Taxes, after all, are the dues we pay for the privileges of membership in an organized society.

As society becomes more civilized, government—national, State and local government—is called on to assume more obligations to its citizens. The privileges of membership in a civilized society have vastly increased in modern times. But I am afraid we have many who still do not recognize their advantages and want to avoid paying their dues.

It is only in the past two generations that most local communities have paved and lighted their streets, put in town sewers, provided town water supplies, organized fire departments, established high schools and public libraries, created parks and playgrounds—undertaken, in short, all kinds of necessary new activities which, perforce, had to be paid for out of local taxes.

And let me at this point note that in this most amazing of campaigns, I found sections of the Nation where Republican leaders were actually whispering the word to the owners of homes and farms that the present Federal a cash levy on local real estate Administration proposed to make to pay off the national debt.

Cannot Levy Tax.

They know that the Federal Government does not tax real estate—that it cannot tax real estate. If they do not know that, I suggest they read the Constitution of the United States to find out.

New obligations to their citizens have also been assumed by the several states and by the Federal Government to their citizens—obligations unknown a century and a half ago, but made necessary by new inventions and by a constantly growing social conscience.

The easiest way to summarize the reason for this extension of Government functions — local, State and national—is to use the words of Abraham Lincoln: "The legitimate object of government is to do for the people what needs to be done but which they cannot by individual effort do at all, or do so well, for themselves."

Taxes are the price we all pay collectively to get those things done.

To divide fairly among the people the obligation to pay for these benefits has been a major part of our struggle to maintain democracy in America.

Between Two Forces.

Ever since 1776 that struggle has been between two forces. On the one hand there has been the vast majority of our citizens who believed that the benefits of democracy should be extended and who were willing to pay their fair share to extend them. On the other hand, there has been a small but powerful group which has fought the extension of those benefits, because it did not want to pay a fair share of their cost.

That was the line-up in 1776. That is the line-up in this campaign. And I am confident that once more—in 1936—democracy in taxation will win.

Here is my principle: Taxes shall be levied according to ability to pay. That is the only American principle.

Before this great war against the depression we fought the World War; and it cost us $25,000,000,000 in three years to win it. We borrowed to fight that war. Then, as now, a Democratic Administration provided sufficient taxes to pay off the entire war debt within 10 or 15 years.

Those taxes had been levied according to ability to pay. But the succeeding Republican Administration did not believe in that principle. There was a reason. They had political debts to those who sat at their elbows. To pay those political debts they reduced the taxes of their friends in the higher brackets and left the national debt to be paid by later generations. Because they evaded their obligations, because they regarded the political debt as more important than the national debt, the depression in 1929 started with a $13,000,000,000 handicap on us and our children.

Actors Are Same.

Now let's keep this little drama straight. The actors are the same. But the act is different. Today their role calls for stage tears about the next generation. But—in the days after the World War—they played a different part.

The moral of the play is clear. They got out from under then—they would get out from under now—if their friends could get back into power and they could get back to the driver's seat. But neither you nor I think that they are going to get back.

But, as in the World War, we have again created a tax structure to yield revenues adequate to pay the cost of this war against depression in this generation and not in the next.

New or increased taxes are not needed to enable us to balance the Federal budget and to begin very soon a rapid reduction in the national debt. Recovery is with us. Federal revenues are increasing; emergency expenditures are decreasing. A balanced budget is on the way. Does that sound like bankruptcy to you?

Why this increase in Government revenues? Because the taxpayer earns more money and pays more money. Though he pays more money in taxes, he has more money left for himself and for his family.

Reduced Income Tax.

For the average American we have reduced the individual income tax. Any family head who ears an income of less than $26,000 a year paid a smaller income tax in 1936 than he paid for 1932. That means that less than 1 per cent of the heads of American families pay more than they did, and more than 99 per cent pay less than they did, for more than 99 per cent earn less than $26,000 per year. If you want the answer to this talk about high taxes under this Administration, there it is. Taxes are higher for those who can afford to pay high taxes. They are lower for those who can afford to pay less. That is getting back again to the American principle—taxation according to ability to pay.

You would think, to hear some people talk, that those good people who live at the top of our economic pyramid are being taxed into rags and tatters. What is the fact? The fact is that they are much farther away from the poorhouse than they were in 1932.

You and I know that as a matter of personal observation.

A number of my friends who belong in these upper brackets have suggested to me more in sorrow than in anger that if I am re-elected they will have to move to some other nation because of high taxes here.

Will Come Back.

I will miss them very much, but if they go they will soon come back. For a year or two of paying taxes in almost any other country in the world will make them yearn once more for the good old taxes in the United States.

One more word on recent history. I inherited from the previous Administration a tax structure which not only imposed an unfair tax burden on the low-income groups of this country—but which imposed an unfair burden upon the average American by a long list of taxes on purchases and consumption—hidden taxes.

In 1933, when we came into office, 58 cents out of every dollar of Federal revenue came from hidden taxes. Leaving out of account the liquor tax—for liquor was illegal in 1933—we have reduced these indirect taxes to 38 cents out of every dlolar.

How else have we improved and Americanized the tax structure? First, we gave a credit to earned income—that is income from personal work or service—thus substantially reducing taxes paid by the working citizen. Wasn't that the American thing to do?

Helped Small Firms.

Second, we decreased the tax rates on small corporations. Wasn't that the American thing to do?

Third, we increased the taxes paid by individuals in the higher brackets—those of incomes over $50,000 a year. Wasn't that the American thing to do?

Fourth, we increased still further the taxes paid by individuals in the highest brackets—those with incomes over $1,000,000 a year. Wasn't that the American thing to do?

Fifth, we increased the tax on very large estates. Wasn't that the American thing to do?

Finally, this year we had to find new revenues to meet the immediate bonus payments and to take the place of the processing taxes. This new tax—called the undistributed profits tax—is merely an extension of the individual income tax law and a plugging up of the loopholes in it. Loopholes which could be used by men of very large incomes.

I want to say a ward to you average investors and stockholders who are being flooded by propaganda about this tax. Propaganda, incidentally, paid for by your money. It is being disseminated by those who have used corporations in the past to build up their own economic power. Who seek, by holding back your dividends, to keep down their taxes.

Pay Smaller.

It is a fact that 98½ per cent of all American corporations will pay a smaller normal corporation tax under the new law.

It is a fact that the law permits corporations to expand and build up adequate reserves.

But for the first time it gives the stockholder a practical chance to determine for himself whether or not to keep his earnings in the corporation for expansion purposes. He is now the one to cheese between using his dividends for something else and reinvesting them in the stock of the corporation.

What we are concerned with primarily is principle—and the principle of the law is sound.

If in its application imperfections are discovered, they must be corrected for the good of American business.

I am certain that the average of our citizenship is not taken in by the amazing amount of other tax misinformation—which has been turned loose in this political campaign.

Stop, Look, Listen.

People tell you there are 58 taxes on a loaf of bread, or 63 taxes on a lady's coat. But stop, look and listen. You will find what the propagandists do not tell you—that only two or three of all of them are Federal taxes imposed by the National Government. All the rest are imposed by local, town, county, city, district and State governments. Two-thirds of all the taxes paid in America are State and local taxes—not Federal taxes.

This Administration has had something to do with these local taxes. It has made them easier to bear. At the request of local and State governments for whom the local burden had become too heavy, we assumed the cost of paying in greater part for work for the needy unemployed. And, by a national fiscal policy aimed at reducing interest rates we have greatly lightened the burden of carrying local government debts—helping those of you who own homes and farms or who pay rent.

All Are Businessmen.

I want to say a word also to the wage earners who are finding propaganda about the security tax in their pay envelopes. I want to remind them that the security law was designed for them—for the greater safety of their homes and families. The fund necessary to provide that security is not collected solely from workers. The employer, too, pays an equal share. And both shares—yours and the employers—are being held for the sole benefit of the workers.

I have spoken in Chicago and elsewhere of the simple fact that the overwhelming majority of businessmen are like the rest of us. Most of us, whether we earn wages, run farms or run businesses are in one sense businessmen. All they seek and all we seek is fair play based on the greater good of the greater number—fair play on the part of the Government in levying taxes on us and fair play on the part of Government in protecting us against abuses.

Once more this year we must choose between democracy in taxation and special privilege in taxation. Are you willing to turn the control of the Nation's taxes back to special privilege? I know the American answer to that question. Your pay envelope may be loaded with suggestions of fear and your dividend letter may be filled with propaganda, but the American people will neither be bluffed nor bludgeoned.

The seeds of fear cannot bear fruit in the polling booth.

Inside the polling booth every American man and woman stands as the equal of every other American man and woman. There they have no superiors. There they have no masters—save their own mind and consciences. There they are sovereign American citizens. There on November 3 they will not fear to exercise that sovereignty.

Job Awaits Mother Of Doorstep Child

Maryland authorities yesterday returned to Baltimore a young mother whose 3-year-old son was abandoned there while she gave birth to another child here. She will be given a job, they said.

The woman said her name was Kay Brown when she was admitted to Gallinger Hospital, September 8. Her second child, an 8-pound boy, was born the following day. She stayed on at the hospital and failed to notify her husband, she said.

Mrs. Brown told policewoman her husband was a traveling salesman working between New York and Richmond. She would not say if he was the same man who left the 3-year-old boy on the Baltimore doorstep.

Pacelli Arrives In Washington; Poses Amiably

Cardinal Highest-Ranking Church Official Ever to Visit U. S.

whose efforts to end the World War the cardinal shared.

Those who gathered for Archbishop Cicognani's dinner for Cardinal Pacelli last night were all clergy with the exception of Commendatore Enrico Galeazzi, Knights of Columbus representative in Rome, who came to this country with his eminence.

Other guests were Archbishop Michael J. Curley, of Batlimore; Bishop Francis J. Spellman, of Boston, who is traveling with Cardinal Pacelli; the Most Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore; Mgr. John J. Burke, general secretary of the National Catholic Welfare Conference; Mgr. Joseph M. Corrigan, rector of Catholic University; the Rev. Arthur A. O'Leary, S. J., president of Georgetown University; Mgr. Edward L. Buckey, pastor of St. Matthew's Church; Mgr. Patrick J. McCormick, vice rector of Catholic University; Mgr. Egidio Vagnozzi, auditor of the apostolic delegation, and the three secretaries of the delegation—Mgr. E. C. Daly, O. P.; Mgr. Francis E. Hyland and Mgr. Leo Binz.

This morning he is scheduled to arise early and say mass in the chapel on the second floor, attended by two of the monsignori.

At 9:30 a. m. he will visit Catholic University, where in the university gymnasium he will address a gathering of the faculty, students and distinguished clergy. This will be broadcast.

Will Visit Library.

From Brookland he will go to the Library of Congress, which in years gone by has borrowed many ideas from the famed library at the Vatican.

After that Cardinal Pacelli will visit the headquarters of the National Catholic Welfare Conference at 1312 Massachusetts avenue northwest.

At 1 p. m. the cardinal will be the guest of honor at a luncheon in the National Press Club and 400 newspaper correspondents will gather to hear him deliver a brief address. He will be asked to sign the club's famous guest book, which already bears the signatures of Cardinal Gibbons ad Cardinal Mercier, of Belgium, and those of three prime ministers, David Lloyd George and Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain, and Pierre Laval, of France.

To Go to Mount Vernon.

Following the luncheon, Cardinal Pacelli will visit Mount Vernon to lay wreathes on the tombs of George Washington and Martha Washington.

Thence he will go to Georgetown University, founded in 1789 by the Most Rev. John Carroll, first Catholic Bishop of America, where Father O'Leary will confer on him the degree of doctor of canon and civil laws. He will be the second individual so honored by Georgetown, the other having been the late Marshal Foch, generalissimo of the allied armies in the World War.

Cardinal Pacelli is expected to leave Washington tonight or tomorrow morning.

It has been said that there is "no more important post in the relams of diplomacy" than that of Cardinal Pacelli. Without arms or force, he must safeguard the rights of Catholics as Catholics everywhere, must understand local conditions and national customs, rights and prejudices.

Established in 1500.

The office was established in 1500, eight years after Columbus discovered America. Pope Sixtus V, in 1602, described the office thus:

"It is with the secretary of state that the ambassadors of the princes must treat; it is through him that nuncios of the Holy See write; it is through his intercession that many of the ecclesiastical posts and benefices are conferred, and what is more important still, it is to him that the promotion of cardinals is due. Finally, it is through him that the Pope makes known his thoughts.

When Cardinal Pacelli sailed from Naples, the Vatican explained that he was taking a vacation; that he had always wanted to visit America. However, speculation immediately began that gave his visit other significance. It was suggested that he was coming over to silence Father Charles E. Coughlin, radio critic of President Roosevelt, or perhaps to lay the groundwork for a resumption of diplomatic relations between the United States and the Vatican.

Nothing he has done on the surface, so far, however, has borne out this speculation. On the contrary, Cardinal Pacelli appears to be enjoying a good vacation.

Unusual Request.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 21 (U.P.).—Harvey Frick, convicted of falsifying records, asked United States District Judge Marvin Underwood to permit him to serve his sentence in the office where he has worked 25 years as a clerk. It would be all right, he assured the judge, since he had worked in the Atlanta Penitentiary, and the only difference would be that he would not be allowed to go home at night.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 LBS. A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, lumbago, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Women Voters Would Modernize Juvenile Court To Help, and Not to Punish Delinquent Children

Chancery Jurisdiction Held Present-Day Need by League.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

Washington is one of the few cities of comparable size in the United States that does not have chancery jurisdiction for delinquent children.

Convinced that the Capital should be in line with the majority of the States in dealing with delinquents as nearly as possible in the spirit of the wise parent toward an erring child, the League of Women Voters is now sponsoring a bill to change the District of Columbia Juvenile Court from a criminal tribunal to a court of chancery. The proposed law is indorsed by more than 70 local welfare agencies.

"The basis of criminal court procedure is punishment—so much punishment for so much crime. The chancery court is concerned with welfare and protection," explained Mrs. Jesse C. Adkins who, with other members of the League of Women Voters, has worked tirelessly to effect a change in the type of juvenile court now functioning in the District.

Social workers throughout the country regard the penal court for minors as a remnant of the early days when children were tried in criminal courts with adults and could be convicted on as many as 160 offenses. If given a jail sentence, a child was herded in with adult prisoners and given every opportunity for a complete education in crime.

First Steps Taken.

The first evidence of changing conceptions toward methods of dealing with delinquent children was the establishment of reformatories for children. The next step was the use of probation. By the end of the century this change of feeling had culminated in the establishment of two juvenile courts—one in Chicago and one in Denver. These were designed not only to try children's cases apart from adults but to save and protect minors who came in conflict with authority.

These were, therefore, social agencies quite as much as courts of law and they precipitated a movement which spread with great rapidity because it met a real need. But it struck a snag when it reached the District of Columbia. The juvenile court law, passed in 1906, still stands—a law which established a separate police court for children up to 17 years of age, with criminal jurisdiction like the court from which it was derived and with precisely the same limitations as to the character of cases, that is, petty offenses and violations of District regulations and ordinances.

"We have, however, been fortunate in having police and prosecuting authorities who were sufficiently social-minded to feel that it was to the child's best interests to be tried in the Juvenile Court, rather than some other court, and they have in most cases found a way to send him there," said Mrs. Adkins. She further explained that this has been done by adopting the practice of reducing charges when possible. For example, instead of larceny, the charges when possible. For example, instead of larceny, the charge would be "taking property of another."

The proposed law would give the Juvenile Court original and exclusive jurisdiction over children up to 18 years of age committing any offense, with the reservation that if a child 16, or older, is guilty of a serious offense, the judge, after a thorough investigation, may waive jurisdiction and the boy or girl may then be tried in the appropriate court of adult jurisdiction.

Further provisions of the proposed law are as follows:

That classification of children under jurisdiction such as "delinquent," "dependent" and "neglected," headings now used to designate the type of handicap shall be omitted, in order to obviate the necessity for adjudging a child delinquent. (This is in line with the California law and is generally regarded as a forward step).

That adults who fail to fulfill a duty toward a child and those who contribute to conditions of delinquency and neglect shall come under the jurisdiction of the Juvenile Court. (The present law gives the court jurisdiction over adults contributing to delinquency, but it has nullified that power in effect by saying that a delinquent is one who has been "convicted" more than two times. Welfare workers feel that by the time a child has that status he would probably be beyond help, and they are convinced offending adults should be reached as soon as possible before permanent danger has been done.)

Must Make Inquiry.

That when the court receives information about a child who should be brought before it, a preliminary inquiry must be made before a petition can be filed to bring the case officially before the court. (A social investigation is essential before the case is heard in court, welfare workers believe. This provision is found in almost every juvenile court law. Under the present law the court cannot make such an investigation because it is a criminal court and must wait until the child is "convicted." This means that "sentence" must be suspended until an investigation is made and the child is brought back into court when a decision is reached about what should be done with him. It also means that the judge does not know at the time of the hearing the underlying causes of the child's delinquency.)

That the delinquent child shall be brought into court by the same process as applies now to the dependent or neglected child. (In other words, the child would come before the court on a petition filed in his behalf and not on information filed against him.)

That hearings shall be private.

That the child shall not be arraigned, as is now the case, nor put upon his oath, nor tried as under the criminal law, to be convicted and sentenced if proved guilty. With the report of the investigation before him, the judge shall consider the child and his conflict in an informal hearing, in which co-operation of the child and his parents is enlisted in outlining a plan for treatment.

May Commit Child.

That in some cases, the judge may commit the child to a qualified private institution or agency.

That court order may be modified or revoked from time to time. (Under the present law, this can now be done only during the calendar month in which the order is issued.)

That when jurisdiction has been obtained by the court in the case of the child, he is to remain under its jurisdiction until he is 21, unless he is discharged before that time. (This provision would allow for supervision during the years when the greatest amount of delinquency is known to occur, but it does not mean that the court would ordinarily keep its jurisdiction for any such period. The court would perform its task of reclaiming the child as quickly as possible and then drop the case.)

If a law including these provisions could be passed, Washington welfare workers and authorities on juvenile delinquency believe that the D. C. Juvenile Court, instead of being a criminal bar of justice, would become an efficient guardian for Washington children suffering from maladjustment.

Pair Wed 75 Years Without a Quarrel

Van Buren, Me., Oct. 21 (AP).—In their seventy-fifth year of married life, Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Ouellette maintained today that the foundation of their happiness rested in the fact that they never had a marital argument or disagreement.

Alert and active, Oullette, 93, and his wife, 96, occupied themselves with their daily tasks on their large farm in the Quisibis Settlements, a few miles from here on the Canadian side of the St. John Valley. For the husband there was a field of oats to rake, while Mrs. Ouellette busied herself at spinning.

They have reared 13 children of their own, and three orphans. Three of their progency are living.

Motorists to Testify Today on 'Shakedown' Cases; Police Books Scanned.

gated by the club could be assembled in that time.

Attorney Harvey L. Cobb, of the Keystone Club, said preliminary study of the evidence in the 400 cases "indicates certain corrupt practices."

The grand jury has been hearing evidence bearing on the alleged racket for the past two days, but appearances of the two motorists today will be the first opportunity it had had to gather a first-hand story of how the ring operated.

Typical of the cases investigated is the following, Attorney Walter Newrath, of the Keystone Club, said:

A District motorist was stopped by a county policeman who accused him of driving faster than 60 miles an hour. Conviction of that charge calls for revocation of the motorist's driving permit and a minimum fine of $101.50.

At the police station the motorist, held in $1,000 bond was introduced to a friendly bondsman. The bondsman told the motorist that he would fare better if he did not fight the charge. If he forfeited $101.50, influence would be brought to bear to save his District permit, the motorist was told.

Driver Put Up Fine.

Convinced that he would be fined at least $101.50 if he went to court the motorist posted that amount at the station and departed. He heard nothing more about the case.

But checking back later he found the charge against him had been reduced to a minor offense on which the judge ordered forfeiture of only $10.

What happened to the remainder of the $101.50 posted by the motorist is a mystery.

Maj. Enoch Garey, chief of the Maryland State Police, appeared before the grand jury yesterday. After hearing his testimony the jury called for traffic records from Laurel and Waldorf State police substations for comparison with those of the county police.

State police records show convictions in 96 per cent of the cases, it was said, while county police recorded convictions in only 26 per cent of their cases.

Auto Club Aid to Testify.

Reviewing results of the club's probe, Cobb said yesterday:

"The evidence thus far obtained indicates that motorists have been mulcted; that they have paid certain moneys for alleged fines and after the fine was paid, the county records have been altered, reducing the charge and at the same time reducing the fine and that no refund was made to the motorists."

In most of the cases the motorists were originally charged with either driving while drunk or driving over 60 miles an hour, or both.

Before the case was "fixed" through the intercession of the friendly bondsman, the motorists usually was charged a $50 bond bail fee to get out of his cell, Keystone Club attorneys charged.

Kidnap Indictment Charges Book Plot

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 21 (AP).—The Federal indictment against five persons in the Paul H. Parker and his son, Ellis, jr., were among the five indicted and have been released in bail. U. S. Attorney John J. Quinn revealed that the three others accused are Martin Schlossman, Harry Weiss and Murray Bleefeld.

Lincoln Picture Found in Attic Of Blair Home

The house now is kept up just as it was 75 years ago, except that one room is set aside for relics and curios. Among them is a gold-headed hickory stick given by Andrew Jackson to Francis Preston Blair. This cane, which was found the same day as the Lincoln portrait, had been given Jackson by villagers from his home town in Tennessee.

Montgomery Blair was the attorney who represented Dred Scott in the slavery case which was a factor in bringing on the Civil War. Appointed Postmaster General, he revolutionized the postal department, inaugurating the international postal union rural free delivery and postal car service on railroads. It was for him that the Sixteenth street entrance to the city was named the "Blair Portal." Montgomery Blair High School in Montgomery County is named for him.

Gist Blair, his son, is now 76, and still practicing law. He takes great interest in the preservation of his ancestral home, which was built in 1824.

Blair opened the house to the public last April and for one day crowds of visitors were able to view not only the place where the proclamation was signed and Lee offered command, but the house where the Naval Academy was planned by President Polk's secretary, and where the Interior Department was born, as a concept of Thomas E. Wing, of Zachary Taylor's Cabinet.

Lose Big Hips Fat Stomachs Double Chins

Lose Fat The Easy Way—Without Starvation Diets, or Back-Breaking, Bending and Rolling Exercises.

There is no mystery about this method. Doctors have been prescribing it for years. It is based on a scientific discovery of the medical profession that excess fat in many cases is caused by a little gland that does not work well.

Every drop of our blood goes through this tiny gland sixteen times a day. It produces about one and one-half drops of vital fluid every 24 hours. The action of this fluid on the blood is much the same as the action a good draft has on the burning of coal in a furnace. It turns on the "draft" that increases the speed with which food and fatty tissues "burn up".

If this gland doesn't pour out about one and one-half drops of its vital fluid a day, many people take on fat.

Doctors find a simple easy way to remedy this condition is to feed this gland the substance it lacks. Then, many people get rid of the excess flesh that swells out their figures in ugly bumps and lumps.

Marmola Prescription Tablets are based on this same method so generally used by modern doctors. Millions are using them with success. They are prepared by a world-famous medical laboratory. Their formula is given in every package so you know what you're taking.

For 28 years millions of fat people have found Marmola Prescription Tablets effective for the reduction of ugly fat. Don't take chances with starvation diets or back-breaking exercises. Get a box of Marmola from your druggist today.

Waste Charged To Homes Unit In Alley Deals

Purchase of Street Frontage Defended by Authority Head as Necessary.

The District Alley Dwelling Authority is guilty of "profligate waste" in at least two of its slum reclamation projects, Rufus Lusk, head of the Washington Taxpayers Protective Association, charged yesterday.

Most outspoken of the critics of the authority, Lusk made it clear, however, that he is heartily in favor of the abolition of alley slums, and thinks that John Ihlder, executive officer of the agency, has driven sharp bargains to acquire the property he has.

"But I can't understand why the authority is investing the taxpayers' money in a speculative real estate market by purchasing property fronting on the street," Lusk said.

"To develop a parking lot on the site of O'Brien's court the authority acquired 34 alley dwellings at an average cost of $3,454 apiece. The authority got the alley dwellings cheap enough, but it was the acquisition of valuable street property, some of it assessed at $2.35 a square foot, that brought up the average cost.

Cites $12,830 Cost.

"In the alley in the rear of the 2300 block of G street northwest there were four scattered alley dwellings. The authority bought them at an average cost of $12,830 apiece. I claim that is profligate waste of the taxpayers' money.

"Again there was the same story of acquisition of valuable land fronting on the street after the alley dwellings were bought that made the average cost soar.

"It seems to me the authority should confine its activities to the alleys. After all the object is to get rid of the alley slums, not to engage in a vast socialistic housing plan."

Lusk admitted that under present real estate market conditions the authority might be able to turn over the property in the squares he criticized at a handsome profit to the taxpayers.

Admits Bargains.

"In all fairness I must admit that the authority got some good bargains," Lusk said. "But I consider it wasteful for the authority to invest the taxpayers' money in a speculative market. It may come out all right. I hope it does."

Ihlder expressed amusement over Lusk's charges of waste and socialistic tendencies in the authority's program. He said he is a firm believer in capitalism and pointed out that the O'Brien Court project is returning a 7½ per cent return on the investment.

Questioning Lusk's average cost figures, Ihlder said:

"If the authority actually was able to pay $3,454 for an alley dwelling, demolish it and then lease the site at a rental returning 7½ per cent it would be a wizard. If it were able to pay $12,830 for an alley dwelling and then get a fair return on the cost it would again be a wizard. If that is "profligate waste" make the most of it.

"If the authority bought only the alley property it would simply bail out the present alley landlords and itself become an alley landlord.

Defends Reclamation Plan.

"The authority," Ihlder said, "has decided that it is not a slum clearance agency, but a slum reclamation agency. We are not a spending agency, but an investment agency. We do not buy alley dwellings merely to tear them down. We feel we must plan developments which fit best the present and probable future for the square and the neighborhood.

A parking lot was built in O'Brien court, Ihlder pointed out, pending the time when the Government will decide it wishes to use the area for a departmental building. If the Government decides so to use the property the authority will sell it at cost, in that way saving the Government the cost of acquiring and clearing the site.

Unless the authority works out some plan for reclamation of the alley sites it purchases, Ihlder pointed out, the city would be spotted with worthless cinder plots lying idle while slums sprang up in other sections.

Lusk contended the authority should be restricted to purchasing not more than 5 per cent of property, other than alley property, in any given square.

Lusk charged that the Alley dwelling authority is competing with private capital in its low-rent housing projects. Ihlder said the authority has attempted with every power of persuasion at its command to convince private real estate operators they should begin building decent low-rent houses to accommodate families driven from slums.

"The chief handicap in the authority's work," Ihlder said, "is the difficulty of finding other dwellings for families now living in substandard houses. The authority is constantly urging private enterprise to meet this need because the authority is restricted to squares containing inhabited alleys."

"Only when there is a shortage of decent houses for those whom we move out of the alleys will they go into low-rent housing development," Ihlder said. "We will give every aid and encouragement to private capital interested in building low-rent houses."

AAA Considers Boost in Price Of Milk Here

Experts Weigh Effects of Granting an Increase to Producers.

Washington's threatened rise in retail milk prices rested last night with officials of the Agriculture Adjustment Administration.

Following Tuesday's hearing on the question of increased price demands by milk producers of the local area, AAA experts were asked to consider the possibility of soaring consumer prices should the demand be granted.

And while organized restaurant owners in Washington openly consider setting up their own pasteurizing plant if the price increase becomes effective, Mathew Boyd, vice president of the Washington Consumers Council, urged a Federal loan to dairymen for feed and upkeep purposes in lieu of raising the milk price.

But farmers, on the other hand, predicted a dangerous milk shortage unless their demands are met. The recent drought, they said, reduced feed production and the cost of store feed has increased 45 per cent. The cost of cows, it was added, is so great that few dairymen can afford to keep up with District milk needs.

The proposed price increase would be made through an amendment to the recent Washington milk-marketing agreement and order, which has been effective since September. An injunction against the agreement, however, has been applied for by a group of independent producers. A decision is expected daily from Justice Oscar Luhring, of District Supreme Court.

SAFETY OUTGROWS THE UTILITY PHASE

IN THIS Glorified STEEL BODY

YOU'VE heard them say, "Steel is steel"—and that steel bodies were as safe, luxurious and comfortable as they'd ever be.

But they overlooked the one-word gospel under every Fisher engineer's hatband: IMPROVE!

And improve they have—this year again—by lifting the steel body up and out of the sheer utility phase and glorifying it—with a revolutionary steel construction that fuses top, sides, and even the floor into a single rattle-proof, weave-proof, shock-proof steel structure — the UNISTEEL TURRET TOP BODY BY FISHER!

Forget, if you wish, what this stronger steel body took in the making. Ignore the necessity of replacing millions of dollars' worth of machinery, tools and other equipment. Skip over the $18,000,000 in new dies, presses and facilities invested during the period of its development.

And just do this:—walk up to this new Unisteel Body, open one of its big doors; and slam it shut—hard. Hear that deep solid sound? You're listening to the most substantial sound in 1937 cars—the new solidity of outer and inner steel door panels, steel hinges, steel pillars, a steel cowl...steel-welded to each other and to each and every other steel part.

Step on the running board and look over that Turret Top. Note the unyielding rigidity of that smooth, seamless arched steel crown—another welded steel-on-steel result...heavy-gauge seamless steel with steel crossbows that reinforce it.

Now step into the car. Stamp on that solid steel floor. There's the same welcome strength again. For the floor in this new Unisteel Body is one-and-the-same piece with the other steel areas...with grooved indentations for greater strength...."U"-shaped steel cross-members and lengthwise steel rockers...all welded together into a Gibraltar of steel.

Then before you get out, sit down and stretch your legs. It's so comfortable and roomy you won't want to move. Actually, model for model, there is more room in this Unisteel Body, front and back, than in any previous Body by Fisher ever made.

Here is the structure that carries the so-called "all-steel" body, that essential step forward...into a trouble-free one-piece unit of complete safety, increased comfort, and luxurious style.

Study this sweeping advance in automobile body construction and design at your nearest General Motors dealer's. See the new grace and beauty this Unisteel construction makes possible for the first time. And remember, the Unisteel Turret Top Body by Fisher is available only on General Motors cars.

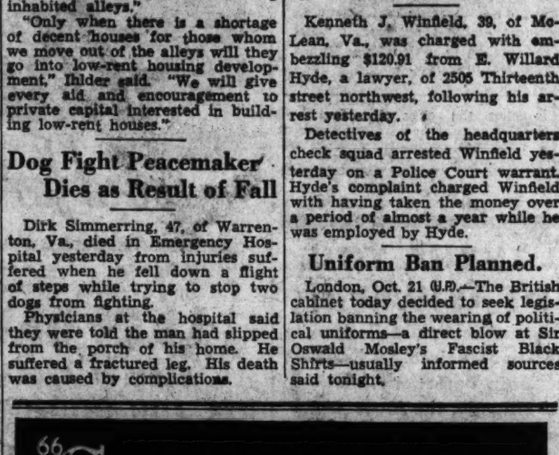
"Give me Gibson's"



As in the Nineties, the Gibson buyer says "Give me Gibson's" because of the full, rich, round flavor that he gets in Gibson Whiskey. Since 1837, Gibson's has been famous for this "decanter" quality.

Martini Shines In Best Screen Role at Keith's

Carrillo Shares Honors in Finest Performance Before Cameras.

By Nelson B. Bell.

"THE GAY DESPERADO." Mary Pickford-Jesse Lasky picturization of a story for release through U. A. by Leo Birinski, adapted to the screen by Wallace Smith, starring Nino Martini, with Leo Carrillo, Ida Lupino, Harold Huber, James Blakely, Stanley Fields, Mischa Auer, Paul Hurst, Adrian Rosley, Alan Garcia, Frank Puglia, M. Alvarez Maciste and the Trovadoris Chinacos. Directed by Rouben Mamoulian. Previewed Monday, October 8.

Here is the perfect demonstration that with a thoughtful script and skillful direction the cinema is capable of utilizing an operatic voice with such adeptness as to make it a vital factor of plot development as well as mere auricular charm.

Music is not dragged in by the heels, as the quaint saying is, in this second—and perhaps the last—of the Mary Pickford-Jesse L. Lasky productions, but forms the very backbone of one of the most exciting comedy-melodramas that has come to the screen in many seasons. It should serve as a model for those wishing to devise some means of rendering fine music and invigorating drama compatible with logical elements of modern motion picture diversion.

"The Gay Desperado," first of all, is superlative entertainment. Its utilization of standard music and one of the best of the contemporary tenor voices is not an attempt to force "art" down the throats of the lovers of "horse opera," but an essential of its form and purpose.

Banditry With Music.

Basically, the story is one of Mexican banditry and American gangsterism that is enlivened with fast action and spiced with a delicious sprinkling of sprightly humor. It roars through such a varied succession of incidents and sequences that to essay a resume of its melodramatic structure would be to write a compendium of all Western melodramas, multiplied by no less than ten.

A Mexican bandit leader, fashioned vaguely after the general contours of the late Pancho Villa, attends a showing of an American gangster picture and is greatly impressed by the superior merits of the Northern system and the picturesqueness of the bizarre vernacular employed by the American hoodlums in the pursuit of their trade. Immediately Briganza determines to adopt gangster measures in the future conduct of his own predatory affairs south of the Rio Grande. The first thing he does is kidnap a singer from the picture house whose voice and songs he has liked.

Latterly, he comes into the temporary custodianship of a very rich young man and the lovely young lady with whom he is eloping. Having sensed something of the monetary advantages of the "snatch," Briganza makes demand for the payment of huge sums of money for the release of his hostages. This comes to the attention of the American gang with whom he has had surreptitious dealings and they hijack the prisoners—or think they do. What happens after that is too swift-moving, too amusing and too necessary to the integrity of story and the enjoyment of future audiences to be divulged.

Best of Its Kind.

It is not too much to say, however, that for sheer joy, "The Gay Desperado" stands at the head of its class. It is fast, tuneful and, at times, hilarious entertainment, enacted by a cast ideally chosen for the tasks to which they are assigned and sung with fine effect by one of the best voices in America.

Nino Martini in this subject finally strikes his stride before the cameras. Not only are his songs—and they range from popular ballads and Mexican folk songs to arias from the grand operas—flawlessly sung, but he also reveals considerable ability as a light romantic comedian. Opposite him, Ida Lupino gives further evidence of the rapid strides she is making toward the ranks of the cinema's foremost ingenues. The scene in which love bursts upon these two is one of the most tremendously violent intervals of physical combat and property destruction the silver sheet ever has known.

Another scene that is rousingly effective in humor, satire and suspense is the one in which Briganza's men attempt to execute Chivo—that would be Martini—before the firing squad. Scenes of this sort are not usually looked upon as an infallible source of laughter, but here the imminence of sudden death is made the basis of a scene that is a comedy gem. It also serves to prove again that Leo Carrillo not only is a comedian of the first water, but also an actor who has a firm and unfailing command of the emotions when he wishes to exert it.

Carrillo Scores Triumph.

This Briganza character is by far the finest piece of work Carrillo has brought to the screen. It is a rounded, complete and versatile characterization that blends all of the qualities of wit, daring, enthusiasm and pathos. Harold Huber, as Briganza's first lieutenant, offers another astonishingly facile study of a bad man with a sense of humor.

There are many others in the cast who contribute generously to the colorful action, melodious background and thunderous climaxes in which the film abounds. Foremost among these might be mentioned Mischa Auer, Stanley Fields, James Blakely, the craven lover of the piece; Alan Garcia and most of the others listed in the small type paragraph at the top of this column.

"The Gay Desperado" is handsomely photographed and provides more music than the solo intervals placed upon the sound tracks by the star. Especially notable are the accompaniments played on guitars by the Trovadoris Chinacos.

"Cupid Got His Man," a short-reel subject; a new issue of the Screen Snapshots and the Pathe News are the supplementaries of a bill that need look no further than its major feature for the promise of an extended run.

About the Showshops

FOR a while yesterday afternoon it looked as if "The Big Broadcast of 1937" was going to be merely "another one of those things," if you know what I mean.

The formula upon which it had been concocted seemed as familiar and worn as an old shoe. Then of a sudden, unusual, extraordinary, colossal and terrific things began to happen—a plot raised its unugly head and comedy and wisecracks began to sputter and sizzle like sparklers on our denatured Fourth of July.

BELL.

By the time the thing had run its course, the blood pressure of those sitting in at the preview in the Twentieth Century-Fox private projection room had run up to the apoplectic point and the consensus of critical opinion was that in this subject and the manner of its making somebody had stumbled into a hit of the smash variety, beyond which there is nothing for which to strive.

There is no intention now to review this gay and giddy symposium of everything on the dramatic calendar except seriousness and melodramatics—there might be just a touch of the latter in it, at that—with the official opening on the screen at Loew's Palace no farther away than tomorrow, but there are a few suggestions that might not come amiss, even so.

Watch for the first appearance of the hands of Leopold Stokowski, as he begins to conduct his symphony orchestra through an imposing number that is one of the most skillful expositions of the potentialities of effective lighting that has ever come to the screen; consider the manner in which a crescendo of action has been built up to end the piture at the peak of its "umph;" take a gander at the way Martha Raye's talents are conserved until the time when they will do the most good; bend a thought to contemplation of the audacity of including Stokowski's symphony and Benny Goodman's Swing Band in the same frivolous picture; listen to Benny Fields, who was singing that way about the time Will Osborne and Rudy Vallee were born, and make up your mind who was the first crooner; gaze at Shirley Ross and wonder where she has been all your life and register in your mind how much, in certain poses, she resembles Gertrude Niesen; add it all up and determine for yourself whether or not this is a distinguished departure from the usual pattern of musical revues on the screen.

Perhaps I am a sucker for this sort of thing, but it seems to me that "radiant" is the word for this one.

One of the penalties of a heavy Tuesday schedule is that it causes one to miss those incomparably enlivening routs that Al Tahan and Lady Yukona Cameron, headlining at Loew's Capitol this week, always toss when they come to town. That was what happened night before last. Lashed to the mast, this column attempted to perform its official functions against the handicap of constant thoughts of the string quartet, the buffet lunch, the miniature bar, the clowning, the singing, the bantering that was going on out at Wardman with Al and Lady Yukona, two of my warmest attachments in the theater, as hosts. Well, that's the way life is, is what I always say.

The four finalists for the 1936 One-Act Play Tournament of the District of Columbia will be announced tonight by the judges of the preliminaries, following the presentation of the last three plays entered in the competition for the cash awards donated by the Washington newspapers for the winner, the runner-up and the "show" group.

Tonight's three plays—to be given in the auditorium of Roosevelt High School, Thirteenth and Upshur streets northwest—will be Patricia Brown's "Gloria Mundi," presented by the Jewish Community Center Theater; "A Flitch of Bacon," presented by the Eckington Players, and "To Tonight," a farce by George O. Riggs and Mannix Walker, presented by a new entrant in tournament competition, The Players of the American Association of University Women.

The finals will be held at Roosevelt on Saturday evening, with the five drama critics of the local press as judges.

Scholarships at the Studio of Theater Arts have been awarded to Charles Grunwell, Ruth Perrott and James Rawls. These awards were announced yesterday, following the tryouts conducted at the studio under the directorship of Constance Conner Brown last Sunday and Monday. They entitle the winners to the full six-month course. Classes open tonight, but the registration books are still open and new students will be accepted for some time after the beginning of the school's term.

Dots and Dashes.

Next Tuesday night a board of judges, which once more happens to include this column, will select a Queen to rule over the Halloween festivities under municipal auspices the night of October 31 . . . The choice, so I am told, must be made from a dozen or so very beautiful young women . . . Heigh-ho . . . C. Gardiner Moore, of the Shoreham, has invited the Queen and her court to be the hotel's guests following the parade, at a banquet and dance . . . More fun! . . . Ethel Barrymore finally has made up her mind . . . It was announced yesterday at Beekman Tower, New York City, that Miss Barrymore has joined the faculty of the Studio of Acting . . . The Studio of Acting is a distinguished young theater school which has had three New York seasons at Beekman Tower, located on the East River at Forty-Ninth street . . . Old Col. James Jeremiah Lake, the Chesterfield of Ninth street, writes the longest letters of anyone in town . . . The one I received from him yesterday said: "Honorable Nels: Thanks." . . . Phil Hayden has added a dramatic department to the other courses taught at his Studios of the Dance on Dupont Circle . . . It is in charge of M. Forney Reese, already well known to the Capital as actor and director . . . Channing Pollock's drama of "The Fool" is being presented at the Chevy Chase Baptist Church next Tuesday evening . . . The American Theater Society, whose first two attractions—"And Stars Remain" and "End of Summer"—attracted the largest audiences in the society's history, announces that its books now are open for subscriptions for the remainder of the season . . . Next offerings are Katharine Hepburn in "Jane Eyre," "The Children's Hour" and "Lady Precious Stream," with a fourth surprise play to be announced . . . There are now in excess of 5,100 regular season subscribers to the American Theater Society's plays . . . Strickland Gillilan, Washington humorist of national renown, has been chosen master of ceremonies for the straw vote to be held at the Shoreham in the grand ballroom at 11:15 p. m. next Tuesday night . . . The date has been set back to exactly one week before election . . . Twenty beautiful mannequins will comprise the Roosevelt and Landon voting teams . . . Yeah, Ruth Barnard, I accept!

ONE OF THE STRANGEST figures in our town is Mr. Samuel Pokras, a gifted composer and pianist upon whom the fates have yet to smile . . . Pokras wrote the music for the operetta "Cyrano de Bergerac," then found himself without funds and accepted a job as a lowly stooge in Jack Pepper's vaudeville act. When the act played St. Louis, the theater manager there listened to Pokras' playing, and said: "Say, I think you'd make a swell musician, and I'm willing to pay for your lessons. Now, first, go to the theater across the street and listen to a good music score—to get an idea" . . . Pokras went across the street—where his own "Cyrano" was playing . . . Two weeks ago he was auditioned by Al Altman of M.-G.-M.—for a music director's job. Altman offered him a screen test, instead, for a comic's role . . . Pokras chucked it all, and signed with Darryl Zanuck instead—as a gag writer for the Ritz Brothers.

SOME N. Y. U. students read the New Yorker's article about the practical joker who purchased his own park bench and harassed the cops in Central Park by taking the bench with him wherever he went. The students, as a result, purchased a bench at a department store, brought it to Central Park and—as they expected—were arrested when they removed it from the park sector. Twice they repeated the stunt, each time exhibiting their department store receipt to the desk lieutenant . . . who finally issued to them a document attesting that the park bench was their private property . . . Armed with that document, the students now have transported three municipal-owned benches from Central Park into the living room of their fraternity house on the heights.

NORMA TALMADGE, retired from the screen and happily wed to George Jessel, startled Hollywood last week. If the revolution comes, I'll produce it."*

EVER SINCE James Roosevelt's NRA statement was hopped upon by Landonites, all the Roosevelt clan have kept out of night clubs . . . The Brass Rail, Broadway eatery, is opening a cabaret in that building, and will install a floor show there . . . Bill Robinson is stalling his return to the films. The 58-year-old dancer explains: "Applause at my age is marvelous."

Reverts to 'Green Goddess' Type

When "East Meets West" opens on the screen at the Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater tomorrow, George Arliss, its star, once more will be seen in the role of an Oriental potentate, much after the fashion of the character he portrayed on both stage and screen in "The Green Goddess," one of his most eminent successes. "East Meets West" is a Gaumont British production, in which Lucy Mannheim plays the principal feminine role.

Henry Hull Has Principal Role In Play of Poe

'Plumes in the Dust' Will Have Premiere Here in Notable Film Week.

Arthur Hopkins returns to the theater as a producer next week through the medium of Sophie Treadwell's new play, "Plumes In the Dust," starring Henry Hull which will be presented for the first time on any stage in the National Theater on Monday night. The drama is based on the life of Edgar Allan Poe and is heralded as a finely written and dramatically impressive play. The cast to be seen in support of the star—last seen here in "Tobacco Road"—is led by Mary Morris, Charles Kennedy, Frederica Slemons and Amelia Romano. Settings have been designed by Woodman Thompson. There will be the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

Jack Benny, Burns and Allen, Shirley Ross, Martha Raye, Bob Burns, Stokowski and his Symphony, Benny Goodman's Swing Band, Benny Fields, Sam Hearn, Ray Milland, Larry Adler, harmonica wizard, and hordes of dancers will be seen on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater beginning tomorrow, when Paramount's "The Big Broadcast of 1937" will be the major feature of the bill. Short sound subjects and Metrotone News will complete the program, featured by this big and unique musical production.

"Valiant Is the Word for Carrie," starring Gladys George, supported by Arline Judge, John Howard, Isabell Jewel, Harry Carey, Dudley Digges, Jackie Moran and Charlene Wyatt, will be the major screen attraction at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. The screen play is an adaptation of the novel by Barry Benefield and establishes Miss George as a star in her first talking picture. The stage bill for the new week will be headlined by Lazy Dan, one of the favorites of radio. Other acts will be presented by Dorothy Crocker and Company, dancers; the Three Heat Waves and the Six Decardos.

Freddie Bartholomew, Jackie Cooper and Mickey Rooney are co-starred in "The Devil Is a Sissy," chief feature of the screen portion of the entertainment opening tomorrow at Loew's Capitol Theater. The story is one of deep emotional appeal, as well as rich comic content, and will prove one of the surprises of the year. On the stage Gene Ford's "Fall Frolics" will hold the boards, with Marty May, Carr Brothers and Betty, Ethel Sheperd, dance stylist, and the Elida Dancers featured. Fox Movietone News and Phil Lampkin's music will complete the program.

George Arliss returns to the turbans and bejeweled insignia of the Far East in his new Gaumont British production, "East Meets West," to be presented as chief feature of the bill at the Metropolitan Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. The story is one of adventure, romance and intrigue, with Lucy Mannheim cast in the chief feminine role opposite the star, who appears as the Rajah, father of hapless Prince Negrim. Short sound subjects and newsreel complete the bill.

Following its successful engagement on the screen at the Capitol, "His Brother's Wife," costarring Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Taylor, moves down to the Columbia for a week's engagement, beginning tomorrow. The story is somewhat after the manner of "Arrowsmith," and once more finds Robert Taylor cast as a young doctor. Short reel subjects will be added.

The first local showings of the Democratic and Republican official campaign pictures will be offered at the Rialto Theater tonight at 8, with leaders of both parties in attendance. "The Thin Man" will be shown at 2:34 and 4:50 p. m. only. The theater will be closed at 7, but the box-office will remain open until the usual hour following the reopening at 7:30. The regular screen feature for the new week will be "Six of a Kind," featuring W. C. Fields and Alison Skipworth. Burns and Allen and Mary Boland and Charles Ruggles.

Claudette Gilbert in "The Gilded Lily" will be the attraction at the Little Theater beginning today. In this subject the star is supported by Fred MacMurray, who here got his start toward screen eminence. Short subjects complete the program.

"Sleeping Beauty" will open the season of the Children's Theater, of New York, in the National Theater on Saturday morning of this week. The play has a Russian setting. This is the only fairy story in the company's repertoire for the current season. This is the fifth season of the Children's Theater in Washington under the sponsorship of the Women's International League.

Under the direction of Eugene Ormandy, the Philadelphia Orchestra will give its first Washington concert of the season on Tuesday evening, October 27, in Constitution Hall, with Josef Hoffmann, distinguished pianist, as soloist. Mr. Hoffmann will be heard in Chopin's F minor concerto. The symphony scheduled for performance is Schubert's seventh in C major.

Coming to the Gayety Theater next week, beginning with the usual Sunday matinee, is the "daily double" attraction of the season—Sunya "Smiles" Slade, the blond Ann Corio, of burlesk, and the talented Vilma Joszy. The comedy will be in the hands of Bates and Hunt and Benny "Wop" Moore, stars of the Independent Burlesque Circuit.

The Black Automatic

By William Byron Mowery.

CHAPTER 17.

Balancing herself precariously on top of the rock, Alice was holding a paper plate in one hand and with the other was brandishing a little stick at the snarling mongrel.

"You stop that smiling," she scolded Noel, "and make this brute go away! If that dumb policeman down there had any get-up to him he'd shoot this yellow pug-ugly."

Alice stepped down from the boulder. "Thanks—lots! I was afraid every minute that my foot would slip and I'd fall right down into his teeth."

"What's that you've got in the plate?"

"A prosaic little present for you."

"O, a caribou steak. Fresh caribou. Don't call that a prosaic present. The jerky I had for breakfast was a cross between rubber and burlap." Curious, he probed: "You must be quite a Diana, Alice, to go hunting so early and bring home your caribou. Where did you go?"

"O, it wasn't I. It was young Paul d'Orleans, yesterday. He's Mr. Flood's hunter and guide. Mr. Flood just brought Harla and me some scallops and he thought you'd like this."

"Why, that was kind of him. I can't magine anything better than a fresh caribou steak. Thanks for bringing this down."

After chatting a minute Alice went back home and Noel stepped into the way-cabin. With the plate in his hand he crossed to the south window and glanced out. Just a few feet away the vicious cracky, snarling, hackles raised, was eyeing a group of metis children at play on out the sunny slope.

"Evil and yellow and a slinker—you remind me of Frank Rocco," he said to the animal. "I sentence you, as an enemy of human happiness, to die. As your executioner I will give you the customary good square meal beforehand. Here, take this."

Making sure that no one was looking he tossed the fine thick steak to the dog and then watched the animal closely.

For perhaps three minutes after wolfing the meat the cracky showed no signs of anything wrong. With its usual viciousness it kept eyeing those half-breed children, eyeing the window where Noel stood, and glinting around for some passer-by whom it could intimidate.

"If you're going to do any more terrorizing in your life, Rocco," Noel spoke to it, "you'd better waste no time. The last grains of sand are running out of your glass, and I don't mean perhaps. You ate Flood's little gift to me and that's too bad for you."

Presently a sudden uneasiness struck the animal. It shook itself, growled, whirled around, and tore off down the slope, heading for the river, for water.

It hardly got a hundred yards. Just inside the first willows it fell as though bowled over by a rifle bullet, and it never stirred after it fell.

For a few moments Noel stood by the window pondering this incident and its meaning to him. Ever since Northumbria he had been plagued by a little if—"if Flood is my man." It had been a tiny if indeed, but it had existed, a tiny bothersome doubt, buzzing around and disturbing him like an irritating brule fly. It was gone now, that if. Through the instrumentality of an innocent girl, Flood had tried to slip a neat quietus, and Flood had thereby given himself away.

A while later he strolled liesurely out of the cabin, vaulted upon the granite boulder and sat there in the warm life-giving sun, smoking a philosophic pipe and watching the lazy slow-paced happenings around the little post.

There was a bit of danger in his sitting there so conspicuously, but not enough to worry him. The woods were too far away for a good rifle shot; the broad day was his friend, and just yonder at the bay store a dozen prospectors and trappers were sunning themselves and talking "hard rock and mus'rat."

Tonight would be a different matter. The hour of dusk at midnight was going to be a time of crisis for him.

He knew that to his enemies he was an eyesore and worse, sitting there on that boulder and calmly smoking. They were all watching him—Flood, young d'Orleans, that nondescript pilot and the others of that pack whom he had not yet spotted. A little tingle of uneasiness was jittering through them every time they looked at him, there in the bright sun. To them he was a reminder of justice, sitting in their midst, unafraid; an embodiment of inevitable retribution, immune to anything they could do. He was sowing in their minds the small seeds of fear and eventual panic.

If he could only keep alive—and he believed he could; if he could only keep Harla from breaking up his plans—and there he had his doubts; if he could only sit tight and wait and give these men enough rope they would hang themselves as surely as sunrise. Within this last hour Flood had made an incautious move that might conceivably have boomeranged on him. What would the man be doing by tomorrow, and the next day and the next?

He had been sitting there just a short time when Flood came out of the bay store and started up toward the silk tent. With deliberate purpose Noel hailed him as he passed, 20 feet out the slope.

"Hello, Flood."

Without stopping, Flood returned a friendly "Good morning, Lanier." A faint exultation was playing on his face. Plainly he was thinking that before this day was over his enemy would eat that poisoned steak and fall dead in the little way-cabin.

"Splendid day, isn't it?" Noel remarked. "And lots of day, in this country—twenty-two or three hours. By the way, Flood——"

"Yes?"

"I hate to be a beggar, but I'm a poor hunter myself and, besides, I lost my rifle. That fresh caribou beef——"

"Don't call it that, man," Flood interrupted, sotto voce. "Of course, the game laws are not enforced on the rivers, but it's just as well not to tell anybody that I gave you fresh caribou. We fellows down here call it 'wild pony' out of season."

"I get you. Well, then, the point is that I'd like to have some more wild pony if you can spare it."

Flood frowned, perplexed. "Some more? Why, uh—surely, I'll send you more as soon as you've disposed of——"

"Thanks a lot," Noel interrupted, very gratefully. "After all the salt fish we had on the Midnight Sun that steak certainly went fine. A person would never believe that it and jerky were any relation."

Flood stopped dead short. "What's that? You—you've—already . . . I mean, all of that steak—already?"

"Heavens, man, I don't make two bites of a cherry," Noel said. "Besides, I rolled breakfast and dinner into one."

He put it across so smoothly, so well padded in small talk, that Flood believed him to the last word.

"My God!" Flood jerked out, and he stared at Noel as though expecting him any instant to fall from that boulder, dead.

"What's the matter?" Noel inquired.

Flood gulped and swallowed hard and fought for self-control. "N-n-nothing. When was this—I mean, just now—you just now, uh, breakfasted, Lanier?" He seemed panicky to get away from there before his victim toppled.

"O no, about half an hour ago, I guess," Noel said. "I washed the dishes and have been soaking up some of this sun. Have a cigarette, Flood?"

"No, no! Thanks—thanks." A cold sweat broke out on Flood's forehead. In his confusion his face was a mirror to his thoughts. In the name of God, what manner of man was this who could eat a strychnine-salted steak and ask for more? "I—I've got to go. Busy today."

"Caesar and Cleopatra" Is Given Ovation by Large First Night Audience.

By Nelson B. Bell.

The Washington Civic Theater, in its inaugural performance of George Bernard Shaw's long and difficult play of "Caesar and Cleopatra," in the Wardman Park Theater last evening, completely vindicated its judgment in selecting so pretentious a vehicle for its debut by giving the handsomely staged work an extraordinarily excellent reading.

"Caesar and Cleopatra" is a drama that combines stirring action, clever character studies and subtle humor in proportions that an audience finds especially agreeable. The story of the first meeting and subsequent attachment between the 16-year-old queen of the Nile and the elderly conqueror is one of infinite possibilities. Shaw realized virtually all of them. Here and there are touches of a warrior's philosophy, satire, romance and the stirring melodramatics of armed conflict.

To interpret all this effectively requires flexibility, quick understanding and frequent change of pace on the part of the players. All of these things the Civic Theater group brought to the play last night.

Particularly facile was the portrayal of the youthful Cleopatra by Yvonne Kushner, ingenuous, forceful, when need be, and letter perfect in her part. The Caesar of George Farrington also revealed a nicely balanced measure of comedy and authoritative dominance, although once or twice best effect was sacrificed to an uncertainty of lines that quite obviously was due to the expected stresses of a "first night."

Others who contributed generously to the thoroughgoing excellence of a remarkably smooth first performance were Thomas Cahill, as Belzanor, captain of the queen's guard, an actor who always can be relied upon for a fine bit of work; Rudolph Justice Watson, as Potbinus, Ptolemy's guardian; Elinor Cox Karsten, Ftalateeta, the queen's nurse; Milton Mendelsohn, as Ptolemy, the youthful brother of the queen, who read his lines with the assurance of a veteran; Harrold A. Weinberger, Rufio, Caesar's lieutenant, and an outspoken and forceful one: Charles Barry, as Apollodorus, an exquisite, and Mannix Walker, who lent his part the surest Shavian flavor of them all in the role of Brittanus, Caesar's secretary.

At times, to be sure, Shaw's intent was lost in too much shouting and subtleties surrendered to stentorian reading, but in the main last night's inaugural reflected nothing but credit upon the newly organized group and its director, Day Tuttle. Not only that, but it held out promise of fine things to come in the future.

Last night's audience was extravagant in its enthusiasm and thundered applause upon every scene, not only in recognition of the work of the actors but also in appreciation of the striking settings and costumes contrived by William Girvan and Mary Woodward Davis, respectively. Congratulations all around.

In Hollywood

With Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood, Oct. 21.

Settin' Around (M. G. M.): It is ridiculous the way studio employes sneak past stages on which Greta Garbo is at work, talking in whispers and dropping awed chins down to second coat buttons. Today a press agent fearfully confided that Greta gave him a dirty look because a woman columnist published a yarn that Garbo rode bicycles around the studio, and she does not like that kind of publicity.

ROBERT TAYLOR.

In my personal opinions, bicycle riding might benefit Garbo's condition. Certainly the open air would be better for any woman than moping around indoors, hiding from humanity because she hankers to be "alooooone."

On the "Camille" set, Robert Taylor was working alone. On the sidelines in Bob's private chair sat a lovely little woman to whom he introduced me. She was his mother. Now here is a side to Taylor that may be new to you: He and his mother are the chummy sort.

She lives in a magnificent house which Bob built for her, while he dwells in an adjacent, modest bachelor home, attended by a single servant, a valet. And while you may read and hear about Taylor showering gifts on this or that sweetheart, it will be news to you that the only diamond bracelet he has ever given a woman he gave to his mother on her recent birthday.

Between scenes Bob told me why success has never reached his head. He was raised by a strict father who believes in using the rod and not spoiling the child. Bob has an enlarged 11x14 picture of himself being spanked by his father. When he feels a touch of conceit coming on, he stares at the photograph and warns himself, "You're not such big stuff, Robert Taylor." Magazines have offered hefty sums for that picture, but Bob has refused all offers.

I never expect to be better entertained than I was on the "Born to Dance" set. Eleanor Powell was tap dancing; Frances Langford was singing. We fellows who are privileged to go and come inside the studios hardly realize how fortunate we are. I suppose it is because we become so accustomed to things that we lose our appreciation. But seated set-side watching Eleanor and listening to Frances, I could not help thinking how many millions of people would eagerly have swapped places with me.

Today must have been Mothers' Day. Eleanor's mama was on the set, and suddenly she burst into tears. Everybody clustered to learn why. Then everybody guffawed right out loud at her explanation. Mrs. Powell likes New York, and sight of Eleanor dancing in this night club sequence reminded her so much of her home city that she commenced bawling.

Ode to Otard by Ogden nash

Oliver Oscar Orlando O'Dell,
He loved the letter O right well.
Orchids were his favorite bloom,
And he kept an Odalisque in his room.
His estate was stocked with Otiose fowls;
Ostriches, Orioles, Ospreys, Owls.
As Opulent, nearly, as Mr. M . . . . n,
He believed in Omens and played the Organ.
His dream of a meal in Paradise
Was Ortolans, Otard and Orange Ice.
Whimsical, Mr. O'Dell may be,
But with one of his doctrines all agree—
Wherever brandy and liqueurs flow,

Horse Show Entrants Feted at Fort Myer

Tea Dance at "Hop Hall" Is Colorful Affair Attended by Officers of Three Nations.

By Marylyn Reeve.

The "Hop Hall" at Fort Myer was the scene of much festivity yesterday afternoon when the officers and their ladies of the post entertained at a delightful tea dance in honor of the members of the teams from Mexico, Chile and the United States, competing in the Inter-American Horse Show, which begins today.

The large peacock blue and maroon room was filled with more than the usual assortment of uniforms. The Chileans were wearing grayish blue and the Mexicans much the same color, with a shade more green in it. The "hosts" were divided in their selection of attire, some in full dress blues, with the added splendor of gold braid, and others in O. D. with highly polished boots and insignia.

Capt. John Reybold presented the guests to Col. and Mrs. Jonathan Wainwright, who headed the receiving line. With them were Mrs. John A. Crane, in rust-colored crepe and black accessories; Col. and Mrs. John Millikin, Maj. and Mrs. Arthur Thayer and Maj. and Mrs. James Duke. Behind the line stood the color guard. No one realized just how much hubbub of conversation there was until toward the end of the party, the color bearers, at a given signal, marched out. At the very moment the command was given, the music stopped, the dancers, of course, did likewise, and there was silence among those who had been talking around the tea and punch tables as they turned and faced the door for the little ceremony. A minute or two and again there was music and the undertone of conversation.

Mexican Music.

Capt. Armando Villarreal, of the Mexican team, was especially pleased when the orchestra played La Cucaracha.

Mrs. Thomas Burke, who was wearing an attractive costume, a tunic of bright printed crepe and black skirt and accessories, is faced with a bit of a problem in selecting the team for which to cheer. She is a sister of Mme. Azcarate, wife of the Mexican Military Attache; a Chilean by birth, and now the wife of an American.

Senora de Yanez, wife of the captain of the Chilean team, was explaining Fort Myer to her sister, Senora de Perez, who was married just before sailing for this country. Senora de Yanez, who has accompanied her husband to Washington three times, was wearing black with touches of royal blue and fuchsia on her frock, and visored hat. Her sister was in a soft woolen frock of dark blue with chevron effects of lighter blue. Also from Chile were Lieut. and Senora de Montti, the latter wearing severe black.

Many Present.

Among those at the party were Gen. Edwin B. Winans, and his daughter, Mrs. Mills Astin, who was costumed in black moire; Mrs. Alice Torrey Griffith, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Owen, the latter in wine colored crepe; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cottrell, Commissioner Melvin Hazen, Maj. and Mrs. Frank Whittaker, she in navy blue; Capt. and Mrs. John H. Stadler, Lieut. and Mrs. Marshall Frame, the Commercial Secretary of the Chilean Embassy and Senora de Campbell, who was attired in terra cotta crepe and a black velour hat, and Thomas Mott.

Also there were the Air Attache of the Chilean Embassy and Senora de Puga, who was wearing black "patent leather" crepe and a small close-fitting hat of black; Maj. and Mrs. Alexander MacNabb, of Fort Belvoir; Miss Nancy Hawkins, in sunset crepe; Lieut. Clark Lynn, Mrs. M. Reybold and her daughter, Miss Marion Reybold; Capt. David Erskine, Lieut George Grunert, Mrs. Parker Williams, Lieut. and Mrs. Henri Luebbermann, Lieut. and Mrs. John L. Hines, jr., and Lieut. and Mrs. Charles Iseley.

THE MERRY WHIRL by MARYLYN

We are almost certain the fate of the nations was hanging in the balance at luncheon yesterday at the Carlton. At one table not far from ours were the Agricultural Wizard of Cuba, Senor Dr. Jose Gomez Mena, Dr. Oscar Albertini and Dr. Ramiro Guerra, talking very seriously. Across the room sat Horatio Hackett surrounded by a group of his cronies.

* * * *

When Katherine Imbrie was in Scotland, she went into a "wee sma" shop and inquired for an Inverness coat and cape. The tailor looked at her thoughtfully and then, after some silence, said he could make the garment, certainly, but added he had not made one in the last 50 years—no one wears them any more. Katherine agreed with him because her grandmother was the only person she had ever seen who owned one. When a small child, and at the age when she and her little playmates delighted in "dressing up," she used to bundle herself into this coat-cape of heavy tweed, and have a beautiful time.

So—from her visit to Scotland, she has brought back an exact replica of the outfit of long ago, and it is of the same tweed. We saw her wearing it, and it is of dark heathery brown with a "beam" block in it. She also had on a terra cotta felt hat and brown crepe frock fashioned with a cafe au lait cravat and piping down the front.

* * * *

Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean and her namesake daughter were bound for the cinema when we saw them. Mrs. McLean was in black and luxuriously swathed in silver foxes. Daughter Evalyn, bareheaded, her chic, short tongue twister) bob defying the evening breezes, had on a tailored top coat fastened high at the neck with brown accessories.

* * * *

Morris Evans, jr., doubtless has many a time squirmed and writhed, trying to coax a seemingly too-long car into a stubbornly small space. However, yesterday, he stood on the sidewalk grinning widely as a friend patiently maneuvered his motor into a curb vacancy. Morris, a cherry reddish tie adding the necessary dash to his blue suit, laughingly gave bits of encouragement, liberally sprinkled with advice—"cut this way—no, this way—now that's it—there you are." And, there they were.

* * * *

Carlos Blanco, of the Cuban Embassy, is another young diplomat who is fond of tripping the light fantastic, and more and more is frequenting the various spots about town where lilting music invites one to the dance floor or adds more cheer to the tea or what-will-you. He was at the Mayflower lounge, and, in spite of many dancers, suffered nary a collision.

Madeleine Gaucheron Is Here for Short Stay

Miss Madeleine Gaucheron, who has been in Washington with her brother, Mr. Roger Gaucheron, first secretary of the French Embassy, is a guest at the Mayflower for a short time before going to New York preparatory to sailing for Europe on Saturday. She will go to Paris to join her sister, Miss Simone Gaucheron, who also has visited her brother here, and after Christmas will go to the Riviera before returning to Washington the latter part of January. Mr. Gaucheron, who is sailing for France on November 11, will be accompanied by Miss Simone Gaucheron on his return to this country.

Anne, Aletha Harcourt To Sail for U. S. Saturday

The Misses Anne and Aletha Harcourt will sail Saturday from their home in England to spend the winter in Washington. They have taken an apartment at 3226 N street.

The Misses Harcourt spent the season here last winter and held an exhibition of their paintings in the spring. They are the daughters of Mr. George Harcourt, well-known English painter.

Mrs. Gordon Green, Miss Mary Patchin Guests in Capital

Col. and Mrs. Calvin B. Matthews have as their guests this week Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Green and Miss Mary Halsey Patchin, of Burlingame, Calif.

Mr. and Mrs. Green will leave Sunday for Kansas City, where they will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. Hoxie Moffett, but Miss Patchin will remain here several weeks.

Mrs. Green and Miss Patchin, granddaughters of Mr. and Mrs. Beverley Randolph Mason, founders of Gunston Hall School, are well known in the younger sets of both Washington and San Francisco.

Mrs. James in New York.

Mrs. Ollie James is in New York, where she went to bid bon voyage to her sisters-in-law, Mrs. Ruby James Gordon and Mrs. Jack Beall, who sailed yesterday on the Queen Mary for a visit in Europe.

Close Summer Home.

Maj. Gen. John L. Hines, U. S. A., retired, and Mrs. Hines have closed their summer home near the Greenbrier in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and returned to Washington to remain a fortnight before going to Fort Benning, Ga., for the winter.

Horse Show Members at Fort Myer Tea Dance

Harris & Ewing.

Frances W. Poor To Be Married To Barry Brown

Engagement Is of Importance to Many Friends in Capital.

Of interest to Washington is the engagement of Miss Frances Wharton Poor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wharton Poor, of Flushing, N. Y., to Mr. Barry Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sevellon Brown, of Providence, R. I. Mr. Brown is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Barry, of Washington, and is at present engaged in work for a magazine published here.

On her paternal side, Miss Poor is the granddaughter of the late Mr. John Caldwell Poor, of Washington. She attended the Brearley School in New York and was graduated last June from Smith College. She made her debut several seasons ago and is a member of the New York Junior League.

Mr. Brown was graduated in 1936 from Princeton, where he was a member of the Cannon Club. His father, who was formerly engaged in newspaper work in Washington, is now managing editor of the Providence Journal. Mr. Brown recently left Washington for a stay of several weeks in New York.

Mrs. Wing Host To School Unit

Mrs. David Wing will entertain at dinner at her home, the Land, on Friday, and will give a tea from 4 to 6 p. m. at the Sulgrave Club on Saturday for the board of directors of the Madeira School, the faculty, the parents of day pupils, and Washington alumnae. She will also give a dinner at the club following the tea.

Among members who will come from other cities to be present at the tea are Miss Mary Banning, of Duluth, Minn.; Mrs. Waldron Faulkner, of Washington; Mrs. Christopher Granger, of Bethesda; Mrs. Frederick Hessel, of New York; Mrs. John Hollands, of Canadaigua, N. Y.; Mrs. Amos Hutchins, of Baltimore; Miss Marion Jones, of Bronxville, N. Y.; Miss Helen Stuart Link, of Sewickley, Pa.; Mrs. Robert Redpath, of Orange, N. J.; Miss Jane Ellen Sachs, of New York City; Mrs. George Stewart, of Stamford, Conn.; Mrs. Hamlin Wheaton, of Douglaston, N. Y., and Mrs. Orthneil Williams, of Winsted, Conn.

Mrs. Horace Whittier Peaslee is president of Madeira School Alumnae Association and Miss Elizabeth Ogilby is head of the Washington branch.

Envoy to Nicaragua Here.

Society Notes

The Minister of Hungary and Mme. Pelenyi are expected to come to Washington today from New York. They came across on the Rex after spending the summer in Europe.

Brig. Gen. Charles Carroll Walcutt, retired, and Mrs. Walcutt have arrived in this country from a trip to Germany, Austria, England and Scotland. They are at the Lafayette for a stay of a week or ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Mott Gunther entertained at tea yesterday in honor of Mr. Kenneth Clark, director of the National Gallery of London, and Mrs. Clark, who are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss.

Dr. and Mrs. Edward Browning Meigs will give a dinner dance on Monday, December 28, for their daughters, the Misses Sarah Tyler and Mary Roberts Meigs.

The Misses Meigs were presented to society last season at a tea in Washington and at another party in Philadelphia, where Dr. and Mrs. Meigs resided before coming to Washington.

Mrs. Sidney Cloman Returns From Japan.

Mrs. Sidney Cloman, who has been traveling in the Orient, will arrive in this country on Saturday from Japan, and is expected to come immediately to Washington.

Mrs. Robert E. Lee 3d, who has been at her home, 2140 Wyoming avenue northwest since returning from Ventnor, N. J., three weeks ago, is leaving for North Carolina to prepare her summer place for next season. She spent three months at Ventnor, where she had a cottage last summer. She will return to Washington November 9 for the rest of the winter.

The Misses Justine and Eleanor Corby have returned to their home in Chevy Chase after a trip to France, Italy and Germany. Next week they will have as their guest Miss Elizabeth Hawes, the well known fashion designer, of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. William Scherffius have returned to Washington after a summer spent in New England and the Adirondacks, and are occupying an apartment at the Roosevelt.

Hoges Observe Golden Wedding With Reception

Many Attend Affair Held at Virginia Home of Couple.

Guests from Washington, Baltimore, Virginia and Pennsylvania were in the company of 200 friends who gathered yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard M. Hoge, Lincoln, Va., for the observance of their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Mrs. Hoge is Virginia president of the W. C. T. U.

The bridal couple of 50 years ago received in a room decorated with a profusion of yellow roses, chrysanthemums and garden flowers, carrying out the gold motif. Mrs. Hoge wore a gown of white. She and Mr. Hoge were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Arthur Warner, of Baltimore, who is the only surviving attendant at their wedding. Mrs. Warner wore lavender.

Two great nieces of the couple, the Misses Anna Margaret Atkinson and Sara Atkinson, of Wrightstown, Pa., who stood at the door of the room in which they received, were wedding gowns of bygone days. The former wore Mrs. Hoge's wedding dress of cream lace, satin and pearls, and the latter a wedding frock of 1860, fashioned from corded silk.

The long table in the dining room was decorated with a bowl of yellow roses and tall yellow tapers, and the refreshments were in the same color scheme. Pouring tea were Mrs. Franklin P. Wilson, of Washington; Mrs. Edward Lawrence, of Maine and Florida; Mrs. Howard Warner, of Baltimore; Mrs. J. Stewart Smith, Mrs. Robert Atkinson, of Wrightstown, Pa., and Mrs. Frederick Haller, of Washington.

Those present from Washington included Mrs. W. W. Everett, Mrs. Dwight Terry, Mrs. Amy C. Weech, Mrs. Kelleher, Miss Edith Kelleher, Dr. William Splawn, Mrs. Longfield, Mrs. Franklin Hartman Kenworthy, Mrs. Mary Stuart Dabney and Miss June Thomas.

Civic Theater Opens With Shaw Play

Capital Society Arrives Promptly for Opening of New Venture.

By Dudley Harmon.

Partly in answer to that continual complaint of more jaded residents that there's nothing to do in Washington," a group of enterprising members of society has been hard at work for the past few weeks organizing a civic theater. Last night the newly formed group, under the guilding hand of Mr. Day Tuttle, put on its first production, Shaw's "Caesar and Cleopatra," which was attended by prominent social and official leaders of the Capital.

There was very little fashionable straggling in after the play had begun. Everyone seemed to have dined early so as to arrive at the Wardman Park Theater on the dot of 8:30.

Among the first to come was Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, who occupied a seat near the front. Dr. William McClellan, who does so much to help the cause of the National Symphony, was present in a party which included Mr. Judd Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson, who are among the sponsors of the theater. Mrs. Wilson, a niece of President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University, wore a black dinner dress trimmed with touches of red at the neck and waist, and a white brocaded three-quarter length coat.

Present in the audience last night were also many of the younger people who have been working hard for the success of the theater group. Miss Barbara Wright was deep in a business discussion with Mr. Oliver Gasch, a member of the group of sponsors. Mr. Gasch was accompanied by Miss Mary Bradley, who wore a black taffeta dinner dress. Miss Wright was with the Counselor of the Hungarian Legation, Mr. Anthony de Balasy. Mrs. Richard Gasch wore a flowered print gown with a green velvet evening wrap.

Among others present were Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Rutherford—Mr. Rutherford has just completed a play on the life of Robert Burns, which will be produced in New York, it is reported; Mr. and Mrs. John Gardner Pollard, son and daughter-in-law of the former Governor of Virginia; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Smith, Mrs. Smith wearing a green velvet gown and a fur wrap; Mr. and Mrs. L. Corrin Strong, Mr. Alexander Wilding-White and Mrs. King-Smith, wearing a black gown with a black velvet coat of three-quarter length.

When members of the audience heard a familiar Harvard accent, speaking the lines of Britannicus, one of the characters in the play, they recognized the voice of Mannix Walker, who has one of the most amusing parts in the play. His voice was the only thing which betrayed him, however, for he was completely disguised with a set of ragged false whiskers and tunic and pantaloons of sky blue.

Seven more plays will be produced by the Civic Theater, one each month through May. Among the patrons and patronesses are Mrs. Larz Anderson, Mrs. Anne Archbold, Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mr. Olin Dows, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, the Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes, his daughter, Miss Olivia Stokes, Mrs. Lucius Wilmerding, jr., and Mr. Justice and Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone.

A Woman's NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, Oct. 21.

ALICE HUGHES.

A FRIEND of mine who has been trouping the one-nighters in Michigan with a peripatetic company of "Boy Meets Girl," writes me a long and frantic letter to the effect that the entire country now seems to be on wheels. In short, she has just caught up with the trailer epidemic, a fact which has been known to most of us this long time.

This girl is all agog at the thousands of people rolling about the land, living on four wheels instead of a firm concrete base. What will it do to our art, literature, music and our dress habits? What are the new "trailer fashions?" And will there be a plague of "covered wagon gags" to out-horror the musty line of Ford jokes which supplanted mother-in-law wheezes 20 years ago?

It would take a far craftier seeress than I to answer all these breathless queries, but we can certainly recognize in the trailer mania a startling social phenomenon with all sorts of weird implications. What fascinates me is to see a strictly local girl leave Fifth avenue and Fiftieth street and be caught up and amazed by something that is sweeping this whole huge country.

• • • •

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—These fall days will go down in the minor history of Gotham gadabouts as the period of "The Great Hangover." Every big hotel on the right side of the railroad tracks has been opening new "rooms" this autumn for the fancy dispensing of food and drink, and the same old mob of strained faces and highly upholdstered bodies perforce turns up at every darned one—for the sake of good names and pictures in the paper next morning, of course. But it is an awful strain on the tummy, and I don't know how they stand it.

• • • •

A few nights ago the very snooty Pierre turned loose its Corinthian Room, with the star of the evening the brilliant dancer, Paul Draper, who is the son of Muriel and nephew of the great Ruth. . . . New York has a new "400" to replace the golden gents and ladies of the nineties. The new lot comprises these flashier folk who go to all hotel openings and first nights. The wear and tear on them must be something fierce, but they're always on hand, wearing their best clothes and beams for the flashlight boys. After you've seen them for a few months you wish to gosh they'd go and open some new "rooms" in Tahiti or Bali.

• • • •

We had no sooner waved goodbye to Miriam Hopkins, Hollywood-bound to make another movie, called "The Woman's Touch," for Brother Goldwyn, than who should turn up in our midst but a movie friend of long standing in the person of Lois Wilson, star of so many silent films with Richard Dix. She's still lovely, is Lois, and is palling happily around town with pretty Gloria Shea, the youngster whose picture career was halted a few months ago by a motor smash that killed her fiance.

• • • •

Margaret Mitchell, poor lass, got a beggarly $52,000 for movie rights to "Gone With the Wind!" On a recent dash to the South I found more than one newspaper gal busy at the typewriter, hoping to tie or top the brilliant success of the novel by the Atlanta girl. I wish 'em all luck! It's a cruel, hard business, writing.

• • • •

One of the arguments that is never ending is "What constitutes a well-dressed woman?" I seldom meet up with a bunch of the girls over a beaker of soda water but what the thing starts all over again. You see, it is the business of the gang I run with to know just that! My friend June Hamilton Rhodes crashed out with a picture of one the other day that you can take or leave. June says that a well-dressed woman consists of a black velvet gown, a string of pearls and an orchid. Care for that?

Black to Be Featured In Newest Paris Styles

Paris (U.P.).—Black will be smarter than ever before this winter and for a very plausible reason—the French stay-in strikes which paralyzed the textile and dyeing industries most of the summer have affected the collections of the couturiers who set the styles of the world.

Therefore, materials are far less ornate than is usual in Paris. The fancy checks, plaids and tufted weaves all take a long time to prepare, as do the exotic and unusual colors usually seen in Paris collections.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Should a Woman Tell Painful Truths About Her Past to Man Who Has Not Proposed, Asks "Indiscreet."

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 26 and have a problem which I think you can solve if anyone can. Two men are interested in me. Both are fine, decent men. One, my steady boy friend, is a bachelor. Sometimes he says he intends to remain a bachelor. At other times he says he would like to marry, but has never mentioned me as the girl he would like to marry, although he has said he loves me and scarcely sees any other girl.

• • • •

At one time he would have married me, but I lied to him about myself. I told him I was an innocent, good girl and he found out differently. I believe he does love me, but has never forgiven me. Since then I have never been able to restore the faith and appreciation he once had for me. At that time, it didn't matter because I didn't care about him, but now I do. I would do anything to get him, although I know I can't.

• • • •

Here is what I wish to ask: Do you think a girl has the right to tell a man the truth about her past, even when she doesn't know his true intentions? I don't think I would have lied to him if I had known his plans included marriage.

The other man is only a year older than I; a successful young man, well known and well thought of. When he comes to see me he never attempts to make love to me and is always the gentleman. He says I am "different" from his other girl friends and that in two years, when he is through being a fool, he wants me to marry him. (He did not say "marry" in so many words, but implied as much.) I do not care for him the way I care for the other man and somehow it seems a queer statement for a man to make. He may be sincere, however.

• • • •

Can you give me an opinion of the whole matter? Or rather, will you? Sincerely,

INDISCREET.

Silence Is Golden.

DEAR INDISCREET: I think the best general rule for a woman to follow is to keep a decent silence concerning past mistakes. In your own case, you owed the young man no statement whatsoever concerning the complexion of your past. But since you dragged that past into the present, it was certainly making bad matters worse to vouchsafe a lie instead of the truth. It is easier to forgive a mistake of the heart than it is to forgive a deliberate intent to deceive and delude.

• • • •

I don't believe you have much to hope for in the way of marriage with either of your suitors. Certainly they have given you little, if any, concrete encouragement. At most, they are paying the usual gallantries which go hand-in-hand with casual courtship. Since you don't care for one, and have lost the respect and confidence of the other, I think you may as well eliminate both from your plans for the future, and look about for someone else.

M. H.

Applause From Man.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I read your answer to the young lady who wrote telling of her love for a married man twice her age, and asking what to do. I think your answer was an admirable one. As a general thing, I do not write letters to newspapers, but could not resist the wish to express my appreciation of the good advice given this young woman. You have expressed the sentiments of, I'll venture to say, every man who read your answer much better than they themselves could have done. The girl is evidently an all-right sort of person, but not yet sufficiently familiar with the world to cope with a man twice her age—a man who is evidently seasoned in trickery and deceit. Yours sincerely,

MILES T. B.

• • • •

DEAR MILES T. B.: Thank you for your good opinion of that day's advice. However, if you chanced to read the letter from "Anonymous," published in this column October 20, you must immediately have been made aware that there is at least one man in the world who does not see eye to eye with either of us in regard to the proper solution of the triangle.

• • • •

Incidentally, I have had a grateful letter from the young lady herself since that piece of advice was published, in which she says, among other things, "I am certainly glad my thoughts were running in the right direction when I told you that my own idea was to give this man up. • • • You presented a few angles which never entered my mind, but they hit the nail on the head. • • • I feel 100 per cent better than when I wrote you last. • • • • You have helped me where no one else could. • • • It's going to be a hard proposition, but I can manage it, for the sake of my reputation and happiness." M. H.

Three-Quarter Coat Velvet Suits Smart

Decidedly smart are the three-quarter coat velvet suits with vivid colored waistcoats in doeskin or supple rayon duvetyn. Lucile Paray is featuring this type of suit with waistcoat of dull acetate jersey, as well as some in dull short piled rayon velvets and silky broadcloth inspired by the old fashioned men's waistcoats. In many cases the gilet is simulated. In others it is a part of the blouse, completing the color scheme of the ensemble. For example, a black broadcloth suit—or a vivid red rayon duvetyn blouse gives a gilet effect under a gray velvet three-quarter coat.

Veils Decreed by Fashion Give Hats Romantic Touch

New Trimming Started as a Fad Has Now Become Season's 'Must' in Styles; Correct on Any Occasion, for Day or Evening.

By Ethel Ehlen.

VEILS for that romantic touch to enhance the eyes! Almost any woman can be intriguing in one of the dashing new fall hats trimmed with a veil of some kind. The "taking of the veil" started out to be a fad and has gained momentum, until it is a season's first and must, if you want to keep in step with fashion.

There is no hard and fast rule about the wearing of veils this season. They are equally correct for daytime and evening, formal and informal events; and equally as devastating for any and all occasions. Long veils and short ones, those which are as the name implies—designed to veil the eyes, and others whose only function is a swank touch in lieu of trimming, are all an important factor in chic millinery.

Bandeau Veils.

For dinner, the theater or dancing, there are veils fluttering from bandeaux fashioned of velvet flowers, glittering rhinestones and bands of lame or glistening silk satin. They are called hats! In tones to match or contrast with the evening gown, they add a bit of dash to both period-influenced and modern costumes.

Daytime veils are numerous and varied, both in design and in method of veiling. Some extend almost to the neckline, in straight and rather severe lines, and are of fine or medium-sized mesh, usually ornamented with embroidered motifs and borders. Others merely cover the forehead, or give a gay and fluttering effect to an upstanding tailored bow, poised on the front of the chapeau. An otherwise simple daytime hat, worn with a suit or woolen frock, can be given an alluring touch by the addition of a smart, large-meshed veil, draped cleverly over the brim.

"Swing" Veils.

Veiled hats, which are in reality caps, for cocktails, are most effective. Velvet is the leading material—the tiny cap entirely veiled by a swing arrangement of plain or patterned silk net, secured to the front, at the forehead, by a cluster of silk velvet flowers. Monotone and varicolored arrangements share equal popularity; for an all-black ensemble, however, the flowers are usually in bright tones. Cone-shaped, high-crowned hats of velvet or velour have gracefully floating veils, neatly tucked in the rolled brim, to flutter smartly over the face.

Mantillas are a romantic addition to the veil family this season. Long mantillas extend over the shoulders for formal evening; short ones, held in place by tiny Spanish combs, adorn daytime or cocktail hats. Following the Spanish influence, mantillas are black and fashioned of lovely, rich laces.

TODAY'S HEALTH TALK

Restoring Life.

It is difficult to explain why in one case out of many thousand major surgical operations the heart will cease to beat suddenly. There may be no preliminary sign or symptom. The patient is taking the anesthetic easily, breathing is normal, and the blood pressure is well sustained. Without warning it stops and no routine measure can bring about the restoration of the beat. The situation is similar to heart accidents that occur every now and then when we are up and about and apparently well.

Physicians the world over have been searching for methods to avoid such catastrophes or to compel the heart to resume its function should failure occur.

As a result there has been proposed and used successfully a procedure that is rational and sound—namely: massage of the heart. Compression of the lower portion of this organ empties the ventricles (lower chambers), stimulates the reserve energy of the muscle and creates an artificial circulation which maintains the nutrition. Furthermore, it supplies blood to the brain, which otherwise would be damaged seriously if it remained anemic for long.

The plan has been discussed for more than half a century and nearly 40 years have elapsed since the report of the first successful case. It is particularly valuable when applied to sudden deaths from electric shocks. It goes without saying that massage and artificial respiration must proceed hand in hand. Fortunately the pump of the body has great possibilities of regaining its power after apparent death.

Speed is essential, and in order to reach the heart an incision is required in the abdominal wall so that the hand may be introduced below the diaphragm. The organ is grasped through this broad muscle. Sometimes it is necessary to open the diaphragm so that the ventricles may be seized directly and squeezed rhythmically. None of the large vessels is injured.

In the excitement the tendency may be to knead too vigorously and too frequently. It has been found that the number of forced contractions should not exceed 30 per minute. This allows the chambers to refill with blood. As the organ starts beating of its own accord massage should cease, although the hand is not withdrawn until it is certain that the rhythm has been fully established.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

"MY HUSBAND always calls our old house a B. G. model, meaning Before Golf." remarked the lady who lives in a big old wooden house with a sprawling lawn and a casual overgrown garden. "Anyway it has a certain charm and one thing—we have plenty of space to spread out. Right now though it needs so many things done to it that I hardly know where to begin.

"I think that I'll begin down stairs and consider the entrance hall, the front and back parlors and the dining room all as a unit, since they open together with those old-fashioned sliding doors. Now the woodwork is dark . . . it looks so gloomy that I'm going to have it all done over in cream color, then I will have one of those vague patterned papers, probably a soft misty looking scenic in cream and sepia tones. Then carpeting for all the floors in a grayed shade of green—giving a solid color effect, although actually a mixed weave that won't show marks. The old sofa I'll slip cover in a deep dusty rose and I may have two easy chairs in this same color . . . they go in the back parlor, which we use more as a library-living room. I'll have some figured chairs, too—antiqued floral colorings on a parchment ground. In the dining room I'll have the dusty rose for chair seats and in the front parlor, which we use as a reception room, I'll have coverings in paler shades of dusty rose and in grayed mauve. The curtains will be ecru in all the rooms with draperies in a figured material with a light rose ground.

"I have quite a good deal of silver which will make pleasant accents I think, and I will use lamps, some with ivory porcelain bases, and some with Sheffield-type bases . . . then parchment colored shades.

"You see, this is an old house, and I thought it would be better to keep the furnishings rather mellow. Besides I love soft faded looking colors. They are so nice with our old mahogany furniture."

New Wall Colors.

If you'd like something refreshingly different for your walls, consider some of the new colors shown in Elizabeth MacRae Boykin's new bulletin, "How to Select New Colors for Your Walls." It will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Child's Voice Should Be Kept At Even Pitch

Forcing, to Be Heard Above Noises, Often Results in Shrill Tones.

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

A READING teacher in a fashionable city school was puzzled by the high-pitched, rasping tones in which many of her pupils read and spoke. These children had had every opportunity of background and environment, and should therefore have had well-modulated voices.

An analysis of the situation finally revealed the secret. From babyhood up their nurses had taken them to walk on the noisiest city streets, where the effort to be heard above the rumble of trucks, the clanging of trolleys and the roar of elevated trains had forced both nurse and child to use loud, shrill tones of voice in speaking.

A little child should not have to force his voice. His vocal chords are not fully developed, and as a result he has few overtones and cannot greatly increase the volume of sound. If he wants to make himself heard in a large room or above a loud noise, he must scream.

No singing teacher would think of forcing a child's singing voice, and the same rule should hold for the speaking voice.

Because singers are comparatively rare and require special training parents and teachers guard the singing voice. But it is far more important to guard the speaking voice, which everyone uses.

Children should, as far as possible, be kept from talking in subways, in trains, on noisy streets and in large crowds; and they should not be forced to read or sing at the top of their lungs. The order "Louder, louder!" which one so often hears in large classrooms is a great mistake.

Virginia Group Names Moore For Presidency

Nominated Without Opposition to Succeed Former Gov. Pollard.

Assistant Secretary of State R. Walton Moore, of Fairfax, Va., yesterday was nominated for presidency of the Society of Virginia for the District.

The nominating committee distributed ballots yesterday. The new officers will assume their duties November 1, for one year.

Moore is the only nominee for the presidency. He will succeed former Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia, now chairman of the Board of Veterans' Appeals.

Nominated for the vice presidency, three to be elected, were Mrs. Marion Glass Banister, Assistant United States Treasurer; Dr. Hugh S. Cumming, Edwin A. Halsey, Melvin C. Hazen and Judge Walter T. McCarthy.

The nominee for secretary was Byrd Leavell. For treasurer the nominees were Fred P. Myers and Mrs. Julia V. Thomas.

Browder Disgusted With Terre Haute

By the Associated Press.

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 21.—Expressing disgust at his treatment after being thwarted for the second time in three weeks in his effort to deliver a campaign address here, Earl Browder, Communist candidate for President, today left for New York with the parting verbal shot that he hoped "the Constitution may eventually be enforced in Terre Haute."

Browder's clothing was wrinkled and there were spots on it where over-ripe tomatoes and ill-smelling eggs splattered, thrown by members of a crowd of several hundred persons which blocked his entrance last night to radio station WBOW, over which he was to have delivered a campaign speech.

Man Loses Memory; Police Find Relatives

Charles J. O'Connor, 26, of Baltimore, Md., approached a policeman in the downtown area last night and asked him to "please tell me my name and where I am."

He was taken to the public relations office at headquarters, where J. O. Patton, missing persons bureau head, discovered identification cards showing he had relatives in Baltimore. An uncle, who was notified, will take him to his home at 301 Winston street.

Republicans Show Boondoggling Film

Pictorial evidence supporting Republican campaign arguments will be unfolded before G. O. P. leaders in the District and their guests tonight at a showing of the film "Let's Look at the Record" at the Rialto Theater.

The film is based on promises and accomplishments of the Roosevelt Administration and emphasizes as boondoggling examples the Memphis dog house equipped with shower baths, the elaborate Arkansas monkey house and New Deal studies of the love life of the bullfrog.

Board Inquiry In FBI Ouster Will Be Sought

Civil Liberties Union to Ask Hoover to Submit Case to Arbiters.

J. Edgar Hover's dismissal of several fingerprint employes from the Federal Bureau of Investigation will be protested by the Civil Liberties Union, it was learned last night.

The union will ask Hoover to confer on submitting the question of whether these employes were forced to resign because of union activities, as charged by the old Justice Lodge, No. 21, of the American Federation of Government Employes, to an impatial board, it was learned.

A request for "submitting this case to an impartial board for arbitration" was made yesterday by members of the Old Justice Lodge in a letter to Hoover. Hoover, through his press representatives, said he had "no comment" to make.

Query on Browder Rally.

The Civil Liberties Union, it was learned, also plans to ask Hoover whether he assigned Department of Justice agents to record the license numbers of all District of Columbia automobiles parked near the hall in Baltimore, where Earl Browder, Communist candidate for President, spoke Sunday night.

Protests by the lodge against the dismissal of eight members employed in the fingerprint division brought the group into conflict with the executive council of the A. F. G. E.; which suspended the lodge. Mass demonstrations and protest meetings followed, the A. F. G. E. dispute finally being settled at Detroit, where, the national convention voted to expel the lodge. Since the expulsion of the lodge two other union members have been forced to resign from the Bureau of Investigation.

Hoover consistently has maintained the dismissals were on the ground of "inefficiency," while lodge members have accused him of "anti-unionism." In requesting the impartial hearing, lodge officers, felt a precedent for such a hearing was set when the Federal Power Commission agreed to submit the dismissal of Robert Y. Durand to an impartial board of labor experts.

Hearings on the Durand's dismissal are still going on at the National Labor Relations Board.

Jersey, Delaware Claimed by Farley

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 21.—Democratic Chairman James A. Farley, who has predicted President Roosevelt's re-election by a landslide, said today he would carry the normally Republican States of New Jersey and Delaware.

The chairman has never before in this campaign included either State in any of his claims of victory.

"The President will carry New Jersey because of the fact that he will receive an unprecedented vote in Hudson (Jersey City and Essex (Newark) counties," Chairman Farley said.

"He will carry Delaware because of the fact that Delaware is a great industrial State, and he will get the support of the industrial workers. They will show their gratitude for the efforts he has made to better working conditions in industry."

Standley Warns Of Alien Groups

With a warning that there is an inclination in many lands "to the rulership of men instead of laws," Admiral William H. Standley, chief of Naval Operations, last night urged a strengthened Navy and "eternal vigilance" against subversive elements at home in an address to the District Sons of the American Revolution at the Mayflower Hotel.

On the Air Today

No longer will the listener hear that familiar line about WJSV—ending with "across the Potomac from the Nation's Capital."

Effective this week, WJSV is credited by the Federal Communications Commission to the District of Columbia. It's a long story—but WJSV has been known as an Alexandria station because of a system of power quotas assigned to the various States, and WJSV, although operating principally in the District, was charged to the Virginia quota. This is no longer necessary and the station now will be announced as of Washington, and not Alexandria.

To let everyone know of this change, WJSV will present a gala "moving" party tonight at 11:15, for 45 minutes. Actually nothing will be moved. But for celebration purposes the problem of carefully packing watts—10,000 of them—and kilocycles, in the number of 1,460—requires attention.

Arthur Godfrey, Arch McDonald, Mabelle Jennings, Heley Elley, Skipper Mellichampe, Warren Sweeney, Larry Elliott, Hugh Conover, Charles Godwin and others of the WJSV family will be participants in the show under the direction of A. J. Willard, jr., who recently has been made manager of the station and who was master of ceremonies at the first air show presented from WJSV under present arrangements October 20, 1932.

The one short speech will be contributed by Harry C. Butcher, vice president of C. B. S. in Washington. Music will be contributed by Arthur Godfrey's band and soloists.

Other features today:

Ben Bernie—And orchestra feature the "Morning Matinee" series, back at WOL, 9 a. m.

Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli—Papal Secretary of State in Rome, now in the United States, talks before students of Catholic University, WRC, at 9:30 a. m.

Public Hearings—President's committee to study fiscal relations between Federal and District governments, WMAL, at 10:05 a. m. From District Building.

All-Liszt Program—In "Music Guild," WMAL, at 2:45. Includes the rarely heard "Angelus," Liszt's only string quartet composition.

"Romance of Morocco"—Northern Dramatic Company play, WOL, at 10. With Patricia Paige.

"Then and Now"—Offers Francis Lederer and Ethel Shutta as guest stars, WJSV, at 10.

* * * *

Apparently the fates conspired against a fitting celebration of Rudy Vallee's seventh anniversary broadcast tonight, WRC, at 8. Its been an off-again-on-again proposition with guest stars announced and then canceled and then new stars and more cancelations. Noel Coward and Gertrude Lawrence were forced out of the show when Coward became ill. Sinclair Lewis also was compelled to cancel. Erin O'Brien Moore, actress, and Sheila Barrett have been added, however, and Gypsy Rose Lee, one-time queen of burlesque and now of the "Follies;" Howard and Shelton and Rosa Linda, pianist, will be heard. Miss Lee will sing Coward's "Don't Put Your Daughter on the Stage, Mrs. Worthington."

* * * *

Vallee's contribution to radio is larger, perhaps, than most of us realize. Just look over this list of familiar names. Every person following made his first radio appearance in Vallee's "Varieties;" Beatrice Lillie, Phil Baker, George Gershwin, Bert Lahr, Burns and Allen, Fannie Brice, Lou Holtz, Victor Moore, Walter O'Keefe, Frank Fay, Joe Penner, Kitty Carlisle, Helen Jepson, Cornelia Otis Skinner, Leslie Howard, Bob Burns, Ken Murray, Alice Faye and George Givot.

Three of this list can credit their Vallee appearances for present air success: Burns, Fay and Penner. Almost all the others have followed those 'firsts" with Vallee with sponsored contracts on the air.

Ed Wynn was overlooked in the statement yesterday that with Jack Pearl's return to radio the comic roster was complete. But today comes a life-saving announcement that Wynn opens in a new show November 14.

Agriculture Activities

A general activities council to finance all extra-curricular employe activities at the Department of Agriculture is being considered.

The plan, final details of which are being worked out by a committee headed by A. C. Edwards, calls for the sale of a general activities card which would entitle the holder to attend all athletic and social functions run by the employes.

Cards would sell for $2 and offer roughly $10 worth of activities including dances, musical and dramatic productions, the annual field day, track meet, basketball games and similar functions.

In no sense would the new activities council become a super-employes organization. All the present employes groups will continue as they have in the past, only the problem of financing being entrusted to the council.

A new lease of life has been assured for the radio and public forum projects of the Office of Education. Grants totaling $443,000, sufficient to keep the programs going until next June, have been approved.

Workers' Skits

The Workers' Education Bureau, which is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, has hit upon a novel method of explaining the social security program to workers.

A series of seven skits, from 15 to 20 minutes long, has been prepared, analyzing the workings of various sections of the act and designed for easy presentation at union meetings and similar gatherings. The characters are Pat, Bill and George, all union members, and Sally, Pat's wife, who takes his place when he is working the night shift. Pat and George are the fellows who do most of the asking and Bill seems to know all the answers. Sally, of course, provides the woman's touch.

The skits are delightfully simple and have been shown with considerable success for the past year in Baltimore. Philadelphia is all set for the skits and there has been some talk of dramatizing them before the Central Labor Union in Washington. So enthused is the Workers' Bureau on their reception that similar skits are being planned for occupational diseases, workmen's compensation, the 30-hour week, minimum wage and problems of collective bargaining.

Why can't the A. F. G. E. or the N. F. F. E. get up similar skits to dramatize the problems of the Government worker? It would seem to be a good way of impressing the public and the Federal employes with those problems and should stimulate membership in the organization trying it.

The Social Security Board Union got out an "extra" of its new Union Review to announce the refund from the A. F. G. E. national office of $189.73.

Whisky Acids

The acid content of whisky is very small—only seven out of every thousand parts—but you will be surprised how much can be learned from an acid study of a whisky.

S. T. Schicktanz and Arthur D. Etienne, Bureau of Internal Revenue chemists, have developed an acid test through which they already can tell in what sort of a warehouse the liquor is kept and which they hope eventually to improve into a means of detecting spurious liquors.

The test is simple—enough hydrogen oxide is added to neutralize the acid content and the amount of the hydrogen oxide added is used to measure the acid content. As whiskies age, acid content increases. By applying their test to samples of the same liquor drawn from a barrel at different periods, the chemists have been able to tell whether the warehouse was heated or unheated and whether there was any change in the temperature conditions of storage.

Analyses of the acid content of whisky have tremendous potentialities and the test that has been devised is only a first step. Should chemists ever learn all they want to about whisky acids artificial aging of liquors may be possible—a few drops of the proper acids may add 2 to 3 years to age of the whisky. A more likely result of their work, Schicktanz and Etienne, ventured, would be the detection of whiskies aged improperly.

An optional Halloween masquerade will be given Friday, October 30, by the Agriculture Athletic and Recreational Association in the Patio. A. R. A. officers will take a "demonstration" sail down the Potomac tonight in the sailboat that Leigh Hubbard is trying to get the organization to buy. . . .

Add this month's excursions, on October 31 a Halloween week-end trip to New York under the sponsorship of Federal tours, round trip, $7.50, and an absentee voters' excursion to Kentucky, October 31, with stops at Ashland, Lexington, Frankfort, Shelbyville, Anchorage and Louisville. This excursion is being conducted by the official Democratic Absentee Voters Bureau, 1410 G street northwest, where tickets can be obtained.

New officers will be elected and Cully Cobb, director of the cotton division of the AAA, will speak at the first meeting of the Mississippi State Society Saturday night at the Meridian Mansions . . . The Michigan-Washington Democratic Club will stage a "win or lose" victory party on election night at 1322 Vermont avenue northwest . . .

Dr. C. L. Dedrick, T. J. Fitzgerald and Bob Hunter are leading in the Bureau of Census golf tournament . . . Immanuel Neumark is the new sergeant at arms of the Social Security Board Union . . . Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry's zoological division, has been appointed to the editorial committee of the Journal of Agricultural Research . . .

Employes in the Assessment Division of Internal Revenue are looking around for an excuse to hold another party as enjoyable as their oyster, weenie and hamburger roast last Saturday at the home of Mrs. Molly A. Wiseman. It was the fourth annual outing of the unit-each of them held at Mrs. Wiseman's summer home at Beverley Beach . . .

10,000 to Stage Sunday Parade Of Holy Name

Catholic Men's Society Plan Sylvan Theater March for Benediction.

The Holy Name Society, Catholic men's organization, prepared last night for a parade Sunday on Constitution avenue and a pontifical benediction, celebrated by Archbishop Michael J. Curley, in the Sylvan Theater, honoring the feast of Christ the King.

An estimated 10,000 will participate in the parade, the largest since origin of the feast in 1925. Marchers, comprising Catholic organizations, members of the clergy and motorcycle police, will be routed on Constitution avenue from Sixth to Fifteenth street, thence to the Monument Grounds. An altar for the benediction will be erected on the Sylvan Theater stage.

Following the parade the Right Rev. Joseph Corrigan, rector of Catholic University, will deliver a sermon. Inspector Edward J. Kelly, Metropolitan police, will head the parade. Inspector Maurice J. Collins will be in charge of uniformed policemen. They will be followed by a group of motorcycle policemen, the Rev. Michael Riordan, Mgr. Eugene Connelly, Mgr. Corrigan and Archbishop Curley riding in open automobiles. Next in line will be the religious orders and parish units. Ten bands will furnish music.

The Rev. Joseph Moran, spiritual director of the Holy Name, and William Collins, former assistant United States attorney, head of the organization, are in charge of arrangements.

The first meeting honoring the feast of Christ the King in the United States was held in Washington in 1925 by the Holy Name Society. A large parade and open air benediction were held last year in Baltimore. The celebration here is expected to top that. The feast is held on the last Sunday of October.

The famed Sulpician Seminary choir will sing the benediction.

Shuttle Buses May Eliminate Traffic Hazard

Shuttle buses running between Tenley Circle and the Bureau of Standards will be run across Connecticut avenue before turning on Van Ness street under a plan submitted yesterday to the Public Utilities Commission by the Capital Transit Co.

The proposal, introduced by Richmond B. Keech, vice chairman of the commission, is intended to eliminate the serious pedestrian hazard for patrons of the shuttle bus line. Its acceptance hinges upon a right of way for the buses to turn partially on private property.

Complaints had been made to the commission that patrons changing from Chevy Chase to the shuttle buses were compelled to cross Connecticut avenue without any protection from the speeding traffic.

Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer admitted the traffic hazard, but said he had no funds with which to install a signal light.

The shuttle bus will stop on both sides of the avenue so that patrons going downtown will not have to cross the thoroughfare before mounting the Sixth and E street buses.

District Youths in Coast Guard Await Winter Trip to Hawaii

Four grinning young Coast Guard officers from Washington, back home for a week on the slick new cutter William J. Duane, are cocking their eyes toward a warm and jolly winter in Hawaii, they said yesterday as they tied up at the Navy Yard.

McKinley High School contributed three of them to the coastal defense—Executive Officer H. E. Grogan, Lieut. S. G. Guill and Lieut. S. F. Hewins—while the fourth, "the outsider," is from Central High. He is Lieut. A. C. Unger.

Washington has a monopoly on Coast Guard commissions, according to Grogan, who said that there are as many officers from the Capital in this rapidly growing branch of the Treasury as from "any half of the country—and 95 per cent of them are from Tech."

Their new vessel is long and lean, is capable of 20 knots and is equipped with two very authoritative-looking 5-inch guns and two new antiaircraft guns, the size, power and design of which are closely-guarded secrets. The Duane is here for Navy Day, October 27.

The George W. Campbell, a sister ship, is now in Spanish waters looking after American shipping interests there and removing American refugees.

Father Advised "the Sea."

Relaxing in the clubby "ward room," which has been fitted with leather lounges, oil paintings, flowers, books, and thick carpets, Grogan said that his father induced him to try the Coast Guard as a career. His father, H. H. Grogan, is a technician at Navy headquarters.

Hewins' father, Lyman, is also in the Navy. Guill said he had so many McKinley High School friends in the Coast Guard he decided to join too, and Unger picked the life of a sailor because he knew some boys from McKinley who did. They all trained four years at New London, Conn., in the Coast Guard academy.

"We could be shot to pieces," Grogan said proudly, "and not sink. This boat has 28 separate watertight compartments."

He would not state who he anticipated would do the shooting, but said that the Coast Guard was sending a similar ship to Alaska, two to San Francisco, and one to Seattle, all fitted with guns and carrying an amphibian plane aboard. Another will be stationed at New York, and another in Puerto Rico.

The new ships will mount six guns in time of war. Twin-screwed, turbine-driven, 328 feet long, and only 3 feet beam, they represent a new departure of the Coast Guard into distinctly military lines. The 125 men aboard are being trained as fighters, as distinguished from life-savers, the original function of the Coast Guard.

The Duane, Naval experts pointed out, was built right up to the limit to which the Coast Guard was restricted under the London Naval Treaty and is virtually a "vest pocket" cruiser.

Bigger and better than anything the Coast Guard ever had before, the Duane and her six sister ships cost $16,000,000.

Entire Staffs Are Re-elected By 2 Civil Units

16th Street and Southwest Citizens Associations Vote at Meetings.

Two civic organizations—the Sixteenth Street Highlands Citizens Association and the Southwest Citizens Association—re-elected their entire staffs of officers last night.

For the Sixteenth street group, Arthur E. Cook was renamed president. Other officers re-elected were George M. Gouch, first vice president; W. E. Stoutamyer, second vice president; Mildred Green, secretary; David Lum, treasurer, and Dr. J. P. Turner and Henry I. Quinn, delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

The group also adopted a resolution presented by Col. Edward C. Snyder, that the office of people's counsel be not abolished. The motion carried a commendation of the work done by William Roberts before his resignation.

The Southwest Citizens Association re-elected J. M. Schaffer president, along with Clinton J. Brown, vice president; Mrs. Bessie Parrish, recording secretary; Harry F. Wender, corresponding secretary, and Miss Etta Davis, treasurer. Wender and Schaffer were appointed as delegates to the federation.

City to Get W.C.T.U. World Convention

Washington will be the scene of the world convention of the W. C. T. U., Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, national president and international vice president, announced at the close yesterday of the District rally at the First Congregational Church.

The gathering will be held in the summer of 1937. It will bring to the Capital prohibition leaders from all sections of the globe.

Mrs. Ida W. Ramsey yesterday was re-elected president of the District W. C. T. U. Mrs. Belle Pickett was chosen vice president.

Other officers picked included Mrs. Marie N. Brinley, second vice president; Mrs. Florence Warner, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Gertrude F. Hoage, treasurer; Mrs. Florence V. Watkins, recording secretary, and Mrs. Manuel Kline, assistant recording secretary.

Bish Named To New Post At Roosevelt

Is Promoted as Assistant Principal; Was Science Teacher at Wilson.

The Board of Education yesterday promoted Charles E. Bish, a science teacher at Woodrow Wilson High School, to the new position of assistant principal at Roosevelt High School.

The school now has two assistant principals, the other being Miss May P. Bradshaw.

Miss Bradshaw is being supported by several civic groups for the Roosevelt principalship, which will be left vacant when Principal Allan Davis retires November 30.

Davis was present at yesterday's board meeting and heard the school trustees formally accept his retirement, which follows his seventieth birthday, November 14. He has been in the school system here since 1885.

Miss Backus Assailed.

Miss Bertie Backus, who headed the character education program now abandoned for lack of appropriations, came under the board's fire in a discussion of a "supervised study" plan she has proposed for Alice Deal Junior High School, where she is now principal.

Upon the questioning of George Whitwell, board member, Dr. Ballou revealed that Miss Backus already has lengthened the lesson hour to 55 minutes in accordance with her plan.

"The board has not yet approved the plan," Whitwell said, "I don't think it should be put into practice until then."

Both Whitwell and Robert A. Maurer, also of the board, have questioned the advisability of lengthening the class hour. Maurer has suggested that 55 minutes is too long a time to "keep a child concentrated on a subject."

Ballou, admitting it was "regrettable" that Miss Backus has introduced this feature of her plan into the schedule at Alice Deal, said he favored the plan. Action is expected at the next meeting of the board.

The board approved a leave of absence for Mrs. Marie Moore Forrest, secretary in the Community Center Department, to permit her to accept a position with the United States Constitution Sesquicentennial Commission.

The board spent little time on the problem arising over Justice Jennings Bailey's ruling that Lois Kemp, the 11-year-old daughter of John S. Kemp, of Clarendon, Va., must be admitted to District schools, because her father works in Washington as a PWA official.

Dr. Ballou, submitting a formal report of Dr. Bailey's ruling, said he expected at least 150 boys and girls living in communities outside the District to apply for admission to local schools immediately. That number, he said, had applied for admission last September and had been denied enrollment because of overcrowding in schools.

The superintendent added, however, that approximately 2,300 of these nonresident pupils already are attending city schools in buildings that have room for them.

Followed Bride's Ruling.

Dr. Ballou told the board that in enrolling such pupils only where District schools could accommodate them, he had been guided by the 1931 opinion of the former corporation counsel, William W. Bride.

Charles E. Bish, a science teacher at Woodrow Wilson High School, was promoted to the new position of assistant principal at Roosevelt High School. The school now has two assistant principals, the other being Miss May P. Bradshaw.

Delano Appeals For Colored Vote

Daniel Webster Delano, of Buffalo, N. Y., relative of the President, was the principal speaker last night at a rally of colored Pennsylvania Democrats in the auditorium of the Twelfth Street Branch, Young Men's Christian Association. The Rev. Marshall Sheppard, colored Pennsylvania legislator, who opened the Democratic National Convention with prayer, was scheduled to be present, but was unable to attend.

He described the President as the greatest humanitarian since Lincoln, and contrasted the policies of the Republican candidate with those of the Democratic candidate in so far as the colored voter is concerned. Mrs. Marian Buck, president of the New York Democratic Club, congratulated the organization on registration of more than 250,000 colored voters in Pennsylvania.

At Testimonial Dinner to Law Dean

Medal He Thought Melted Given Dr. Fegan at Testimonial Dinner

Token Given to Building Fund in 1922 Is Presented at Affair Honoring His 25 Years' Service at Georgetown.

A medal Dr. Hugh J. Fegan won many years ago as a student at Georgetown College for perfection in translating the odes of Horace was presented to Dr. Fegan last night at a testimonial dinner at the Mayflower Hotel honoring his 25 years as assistant dean of the Georgetown Law School.

Dr. Fegan didn't know the medal existed. Many years ago when Georgetown was conducting a building fund he turned it in with the request that it be melted down and sold—it was gold.

But the Jesuits at Georgetown did not melt the medal. In fact, Dr. Edmund J. Walsh, vice president of the university, preserved it for 14 years in anticipation of honoring Dr. Fegan's loyalty, or as the Very Rev. Arthur A. O'Leary, the university's president, said in representing the medal to Dr. Fegan: "Tonight, the university is eager to show its appreciation for these golden years of service and I know no better way of fulfilling our debt of gratitude and homage to a man, a friend, a scholar, a teacher, an executive and a devoted alumnus of Georgetown, than by returning by a species of what you distinguished lawyers call reversion that self-same medal which those in charge of the drive in anticipation of a night like this had the good judgment never to destroy."

Dr. Fegan expressed his appreciation of the act at the close of the banquet.

The banquet was given under auspices of the school's alumni club of Washington and its regard for Dr. Fegan was conveyed in a speech by Justice Jesse C. Adkins of the United States District Court.

Justice Pierce Butler of the United States Supreme Court headed a large representation of Washington jurists who joined in honoring the assistant dean. Prof. James A. Toomey acted as toastmaster.

From the law alumni came a gift in the form of a writing desk set, with a clock, a seal of Georgetown and a plaque inscribed in honor of the occasion. Dean George E. Hamilton, the recipient of a testimonial two years ago on the occasion of the sixtieth anniversary of his graduation from the law school, made the formal presentation.

Scores of congratulatory telegrams, bound in a volume, were presented by the Rev. Francis E. Lucey, S. J., regent of the school, in behalf of the Georgetown clubs throughout the country. Among the messages were one from Gov. Theodore F. Green of Rhode Island, and Frank J. Hogan, of Washington, who was to have made the address for the alumni last night, but could not leave California in time to arrive here.

Another gift, a wrist watch, was presented to Dr. Fegan by William V. O'Connor, jr., on behalf of the students. E. Barrett Prettyman, president of the Alumni Club, and Dr. Walsh made informal speeches.

In addition to Justice Butler, other guests attending were Justices Josiah A. Van Orsdel, Lawrence D. Groner and Harold M. Stephens of the United States Court of Appeals; Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat and Justices Jennings Bailey, Oscar R. Luhring, Joseph W. Cox and James M. Proctor, of the United States District Court.

Martin Conboy, regent of Georgetown and former United States attorney for New York, also was among the guests, with Dr. James Brown Scott, Dr. James J. Hayden, dean of Catholic University Law School; Dr. William C. Van Vleck, dean of George Washington University Law School; Leslie C. Garnett, United States attorney, and Charles H. English, chairman of the board of bar examiners of Pennsylvania.

Speakers at Rally.

Assistant Attorney General Brien McMahon and Robert N. Anderson, of the Department of Justice will speak at a rally of the Pennsylvania Democrats at the Willard Hotel today at 8 p. m.

D. C. Budget Data Given Fiscal Head

Jacobs Told City Faces $1,000,000 Deficit for Year.

J. L. Jacobs, director of the President's fiscal relations survey, yesterday was given data on the financial plight of the District government and the threat of additional taxation at an executive conference with the Commissioners and the special tax committee.

Auditor Daniel J. Donovan offered figures to show that the operating costs of the District government have been steadily rising within the last few years, while the city's income, especially from the Federal Government, has steadily diminished.

He pointed out that the District will end this fiscal year with an estimated deficit of $1,000,000 and that for the fiscal year 1938 anticipated revenue is $3,000,000 under minimum operating costs and $7,500,000 short of what the Commissioners consider a fair budget.

The District officials made it clear that unless the United States lump sum payment is substantially larger than the $5,000,000 appropriated for the current year the District Commissioners will be forced to recommend an increase in taxes to Congress.

Jacobs, who is rapidly nearing the completion of the initial task of accumulating data, announced simultaneously a tentative schedule for the public hearing before the fiscal relations committee tomorrow and Saturday.

Rufus S. Lusk, secretary of the Washington Taxpayers Association, will be the first witness at 10 a. m. tomorrow. The first half-hour of the hearing, which will be held in Room 208 of the Commercial National Bank Building, will be broadcast by Station WMAL.

The hearing is expected to continue throughout the first day and into the night. The committee will then recess until 1:30 p. m. Saturday and continue until completed, if possible.

Among the organizations who have asked for time are the Citizens' Joint Committee on Fiscal Relations, the Washington Board of Trade, the Central Labor Union, the Washington Real Estate Board and the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Robber Beats Women In Holdup Attempt

Police were searching last night for a tall, heavily built white man who fled from a tailor shop at 726 Thirteenth street northwest after beating and attempting to rob the proprietor.

Mrs. Betty Williams, 37, owner of the shop, told police that the man walked into her shop last night and without saying a word walked over to a rack and attempted to take four suits. She clung to the clothes and began screaming. The man fled. He was described as being in his thirties, about 6 feet tall, weighing 185 pounds and dressed in blue overalls.

Morris Leads In Sullivan Award Poll

Fischer, Alice Marble, and Helen Jacobs Rank in Order.

New York, Oct. 21.—Glenn Morris and Jesse Owens, outstanding among America's Olympic heroes, are waging a close battle in the preliminary balloting for the 1936 award of the James E. Sullivan Trophy, voted annually to the athlete "who by his performance, his example and his influence as an amateur and a man has done most during the year to advance the cause of sportsmanship."

With November 15 the deadline, more than half of the tribunal of 600 national sports experts and leaders have nominated three candidates each to select a successor to last year's winner, Lawson Little, jr., double winner of the British and American golf titles in 1934-35. From the names turned in, the special committee assigned by the A. A. U. chooses the ten most worthy and then resubmits them to the vast tribunal for a final vote.

Leading Candidates.

On the basis of returns thus far, the five leading candidates in order follow:

1. Glenn Morris, Fort Collins, Colo.—1936 National A. A. U and Olympic decathlon champion and world record holder.

2. Jesse Owens, Cleveland—Triple Olympic champion and holder of numerous national and world sprint and broad jump records.

4. Alice Marble, San Francisco—Winner of the 1936 United States tennis championship.

Owens or Morris?

Others figuring in the voting are Glenn Hardin and Forrest (Spec) Towns, Southern hurdling stars; Donald Bruce Hume, who, despite a heavy chest cold, stroked the Washington crew to a sensational victory over Italy in the Olympic eight-oared final; Jack Medica and Adolph Kiefer, Olympic 400-meter and 200-meter backstroke swimming champions; Tommy Hitchcock, jr., veteran polo player; Helen Stephens, Fulton, Mo., Olympic sprint queen; Donald Budge, Oakland., Calif., tennis player; Marshall Wayne, Olympic diving titleholder; Jay Berwanger, Chicago's 1935 football star and track athlete, and Ken Carpenter, Southern California's Olympic discus winner.

Although Owens copped most of the headlines during the eleventh Olympiad at Berlin, winning the 100 and 200-meter events and the broad jump title as well as sharing in the 400-meter relay triumph, a slim majority of the voters are viewing Morris' victory in the gruelling all-around ten-event test as a superior performance.

Owens' failure to keep what A. A. U. officials said was an agreement to compete in a post-Olympic meet at Stockholm in August is militating against the chances of the tan thunderbolt becoming the first Negro to win the award. Personal objections cost him a place in the final balloting last year.

Dizzy Dean Lauds Hubbell's Selection

Bradenton, Fla., Oct. 21 (AP).—Dizzy Dean, settling down at his home here for the winter, said today baseball writers picked the right man when they named Carl Hubbell, of the Giants, as the most valuable player in the National League this year.

"Hubbell deserved it," Dizzy said.

Expressing disappointment because the Cardinals moved their training camp from Bradenton to Daytona Beach, Dean asserted he would not report there next spring.

"I'm gonna do my training right here at home and I bet I'll be in better shape than the others when the season opens," he said.

Yankees Beat Pittsburgh.

New York, Oct. 21 (AP).—The New York Yankees tonight maintained second place in the American Professional Football League by defeating the Pittsburgh Americans, 7-6, at the Yankee Stadium.

Both scores were made by passes in the final minutes of play. Pittsburgh scored on a 15-yard pass, Keeble to Smith.

Grid Crowds Up 11% Over '35, Poll Shows

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 21.—Despite the handicap of bad weather, college football shows an 11 per cent gain in attendance over last year, a survey by the Associated Press revealed today.

Continuing the swing back to flush predepression days, every section of the country except the Far West shared in the increase. The Southwest and South show the most striking gains.

A poll of representative Southwest Conference teams showed an attendance increase of roughly 43 per cent, while the South's gain was about 37 per cent. The Middle West, paced by Ohio State and Minnesota, likewise picked up appreciably, approximately 17 per cent. The East, hardest hit by the weather, barely held its own, picking up only 3 per cent.

The Far West, mainly because of rain last week, dropped more than 6 per cent, with 427,000 spectators at 14 representative games this year as against 455,000 in 13 contests a year ago.

Buckeyes Draw.

Ohio State's Buckeyes drew the amazing total of 144,662 persons to its two home games with New York University and Pittsburgh, although the latter battle was marred by rain before and after the Panthers walked off with a 6-0 decision. This compared with 85,656 spectators at the Bucks' first two home games a year ago.

Virtually assured a crowd of 48,000 for the vital duel with Purdue Saturday, Minnesota will have played before 149,800 at its first three home games, an increase of better than 12,000 over last year.

The records show a decrease of some 5,500 fans in attendance at George Washington University's games thus far, but this can be attributed to rain and generally poor weather each Friday night.

In the South, Louisiana State and Duke, and to a lesser degree, Alabama and Georgia Tech, have carried the general average to a much higher level than a year ago.

International Horse Show Set Today

Mexican, Chilean, U. S. Groups Entered; With Mexicans Favored.

By Bill McCormick.

The second annual Inter-American Horse Show, the only outdoor international show in America and one that rapidly is becoming one of the world's outstanding equestrian exhibitions, opens at the Meadowbrook Show Grounds of the Riding and Hunt Club today.

Three countries will be represented in the international military team jumping competition, which will occupy the spotlight of the four-day show today, Saturday and Sunday.

The Mexican Army team, which has brought 11 horses from below the Rio Grande, is generally favored to win the important contest. The Chilean, which brought 9 horses from South America, generally is favored to finish ahead of the United States Army team, which trailed far behind the South Americans last year.

The United States team has brought 17 horses to the scene of action, but practically all the mounts are admittedly soft and not properly seasoned for the gruelling grind that awaits them.

Just how gruelling that grind actually is only those who witnessed last year's show or who are intimately familiar with international jumping really know. Suffice it to say that the large course is dotted with jumps which reproduce as nearly as possible the actual hazards which would be encountered by a military rider carrying dispatches under fire.

For each course—and there are eight of them at Meadowbrook—a time allowance is set. For each second that a rider consumes over the time allowance he is penalized one-quarter point. No penalties are exacted for "ticks" or light touches with the hooves, but each knockdown calls forth a 4-point penalty, as does a runout.

For circling or prolonged refusal a 3-point penalty is imposed. Four horses compete from each team each day and the scores of the best three are used in computing the final results. As in golf, the winning team is the one with the lowest aggregate score. The final results for the entire show this year will be computed on the aggregate score for the entire three days' competition, instead of on the best two out of three days' scoring.

The Mexican team is headed by Capt. Armano Villarreal, a graduate of the Italian Cavalry School and one of the best riders in the world. Capt. Eduardo Yanez, the only member who competed against the United States in last year's inter-

Braddock Given More Time to File

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 21.—The New York State Athletic Commission has granted James J. Braddock, world's heavyweight champion, an extension of two weeks in which to file a certified check for $5,000 as a guarantee that he will go through with a title bout with Max Schmeling next June.

Baer Fight 'Fake!' Claims Premier, Ousting Official

By the Associated Press.

Toronto, Oct. 21.—A few hours after calling the Max Baer-Dutch Weimer fight here Monday "a fake, a fiasco and a disgrace to the sport in this province," Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn today appointed P. J. Mulqueen chairman of the Ontario Athletic Commission to succeed Dr. J. A. Faulkner, minister of health.

Today's action came after Hepburn had watched Baer knock out his Phoenix, Ariz., opponent in the second round and then heard Roy Buckley, representative of the provincial treasury on the athletic commission, charge that the former heavyweight champion had refused to enter the ring unless Arthur Donovan, of New York, was removed as referee.

By the Associated Press.

Two thousand townfolk and farmers cheered from the sidewalks when L. D. Miller's lightly regarded entry sprinted (well, he hurried, anyway) down the dusty 132-foot course to win in 6 minutes 46 seconds.

"It's the greatest thing this town has ever seen," Mayor C. B. McClellan said proudly. "We ought to copyright it."

Waldorf Hopes Wildcats Fool Him More

Northwestern Coach Did Not Expect to Beat Iowa or Ohio State.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Northwestern's football eleven may be the "key" team of the Big Ten to some, but to Coach Lynn Waldorf it is just about the biggest puzzle he ever tackled.

Settling his 230 pounds comfortably into a chair for his morning meeting with Line Coach Burt Ingwerson today, Waldorf, whose Wildcats bounced Ohio State out of the conference title race last Saturday by winning a 14-to-13 thriller, grinned and admitted the squad has fooled him twice this season. And, for all he has been able to figure out since September, may keep on fooling him.

"From the way things shaped up in September," he said in a million-dollar basso profundo voice, "I thought we would lose to Iowa and Ohio State. We had been forced to make a lot of shifts to spread our man power around, but the boys improved faster than I dreamed possible, and we beat both of them.

"Fooled Me Twice."

"Winning those two hasn't helped give me an idea of what to expect from now on," he added. "Having fooled me twice, the team may keep on fooling me. Sometimes I think we have been going on borrowed time and will have to start paying back any time now. These kids are beginning to believe in themselves, though, and I won't be much surprised at whatever happens."

Waldorf, a great tackle at Syracuse nearly 15 years ago, said each of Northwestern's three games have been taken in stride, with no attempt having been made to "key" the team even for the Ohio State battle. After one experience with "keying" up a team, Waldorf decided not to make a practice of it.

Little Scrimmage.

"I thought the team needed to be aroused artificially for the Ohio State game last year," he rumbled, "so I got everybody, coaches and all, 'keyed up'—and Ohio scored two touchdowns with little delay."

He revealed that Northwestern has won three straight on a total outlay of 3 minutes 40 seconds of full offensive scrimmage.

"We have to be so careful about guarding against injuries," he said, "that we haven't dared put on a full scrimmage. I am expecting a lot of trouble from Illinois Saturday, so I think we will open up today and have five full minutes of offensive scrimmage."

Cards Entrain For Southern Invasion

With the cheers of their fellow students ringing in their ears, Catholic University's undefeated gridmen entrained last night for an 11-day invasion of the Southland that will either make or break them in the football world.

A huge pep rally, at which Coach "Dutch" Bergman addressed the students, followed by Capt. Hermie Schmarr and other members of the squad, climaxed an afternoon of demonstrations by the undergraduates. The Cardinals are headed for one of the toughest games on their schedule in Mississippi, but if their play measures up to the moral support accorded them they should win hands down.

The squad will detrain at Knoxville at 2 o'clock this afternoon for a workout in the University of Tennessee Stadium. Another drill is scheduled tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. at Hodges Field, Memphis. The team will spend the night in Memphis, traveling to Oxford, Miss., by bus Saturday morning, arriving four hours before game time.

From Memphis it will pursue a leisurely course to New Orleans, stopping off at Hammond, La., Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and proceeding to New Orleans in time for a night workout in Loyola's stadium. The party will not return to Washington until 7 a. m. a week from Monday.

Rule Infractions Put Hapes Boys On Second Team

By the United Press.

University, Miss., Oct. 21.—The redoubtable brothers Hapes—Clarence and Ray—stars of the Ole Miss backfield and pre-season favorite for all-Southern honors, today were relegated to the second team.

The same shift, ordered by Coach Ed Walker, gave understudies the berths of James Pool, end, and Dave Wilson, guard. Ray Hapes played halfback, his brother, fullback. Walker said "infractions of rules" caused Wilson's displacement while the others were punished because "they were outplayed by teammates in last week's L. S. U. game."

Ole Miss is host to Catholic University of Washington here Saturday.

New York, Oct. 21.—The kick that was heard around the gridiron world—Larry Kelley's goalward boot of a fumble in the Navy-Yale game—reverberated today as Lou Little, Columbia's booming-voiced coach, said the kicking of a free ball should be penalized whether it is intentional or accidental.

"It would not be necessary to change the present ruling on this point except to eliminate the supplemental note attached to the rule," said Little, a member of the advisory committee of coaches of the football rules committee.

"If you will look into the rule book under rule 10, section 1, article 4, you will note the rule simply states that 'a free ball may not be kicked or kicked at.' The penalty is loss of the ball to opponents.

"This was the rule without qualification until it was changed by an approved ruling some years ago. The supplemental note takes into account the intent of the kicker. It provides no penalty when 'a player in endeavoring to recover a free ball accidentally strikes it with his foot or leg.'"

Navy Officials Deny Criticizing Decision

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 21.—Naval Academy athletic officials today vigorously denied widely published reports that they, after viewing slow-motion pictures of Larry Kelley's now famed "kick," had criticized officials in the Yale-Navy game for allowing it.

Those in charge of the Middies' gridiron destinies said they had neither made nor authorized any statement concerning the play which brought Yale victory and that they "regarded the decision of the referee as final."

Former Pitcher Dies.

Toledo, Ohio, Oct. 21 (AP).—George F. Kelb, 66, southpaw hurler who helped pitch Toledo to pennant victories in 1896 and 1897, died here last night after a year's illness. He also played on teams in Cleveland, Flint, Mich.; Charleston, W. Va.; Shreveport, La., and Beaumont, Tex.

Hoosiers Prep For Ohio State, Gophers

By the Associated Press.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 21.—A three-way fight for the guard—fifth backfield man—position on the Indiana University football squad provided most of the excitement at today's practice.

Lafayette.—Working in a steady drizzle, the Purdue football squad took advantage of an opportunity to prepare itself for possible poor playing conditions during the game with Minnesota Saturday.

Cecil Isbell was drilled for an hour on passing and kicking the wet ball. With several men already on the injured list Coach Noble Kizer decided against any scrimmages this week.

South Bend—Rain forced the Notre Dame football squad indoors today and disrupted Coach Elmer Layden's plans for a scrimmage session. The Irish worked out in the field house for two hours, going through both offensive and defensive maneuvers.

Layden said there would be only a short workout tomorrow and then the squad of 36 players will leave for Pittsburgh for the game with Pitt Saturday.

7 Major Foes Will Be Met By Hoyas

Maryland, West Va. and Lafayette Also on 1937 Schedule.

Four Games to Be Played at Home; Opener Is Only Soft Spot.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

The most imposing list of "name teams" ever printed on a Georgetown football schedule since the introduction of the sport at the Hilltop, with those of Penn and Holy Cross featured, appears on the 1937 schedule released last night by Gabe Murphy, graduate manager of athletics.

Eight games are listed, four to be played at Griffith Stadium and only one, the inaugural with little Shenandoah College, can be regarded as anything but a major battle. The rest are of a caliber to test the mettle of any topnotch eleven.

Holy Cross appears second on the card, with the Hoyas invading the Crusaders' bailiwick at Worcester, Mass., on October 9. Then, in order, follow Lafayette College, at home; Penn, at Philadelphia; Manhattan, at home; West Virginia, at home; New York University, at New York, and Maryland, at home.

Good Games at Home.

The home games are the most attractive Georgetown has played in a decade, with the Manhattan scuffle figuring to be one of the season's best. Under "Chick" Meehan's capable and artistic direction the Jaspers are just beginning to show the form and power expected of them when Meehan left New York University to coach the Christian Brothers' eleven. This season's team is comprised largely of sophomores and when they come to Griffith Stadium next year, seasoned and hardened juniors, it will be no tea party for the Hoyas.

But the Holy Cross game appears to be the prize plum of the package, and marks the beginning of what is hoped to be a long and pleasant revival of the series be-

Army-Navy Tickets Big 'Nuisance'

By Dillon Graham,
Associated Press Sports Writer

Busy Senate and House secretaries on Capitol Hill wish constituents would get rid of the idea their offices are central sales booths for tickets to the Army-Navy football game.

"It's gotten to be a nuisance," one complained today. "We get pestered every fall."

By telephone, telegraph and mail the requests pour in.

"Every week," another secretary reported, "the postman dumps letters on our desks asking for tickets. Sometimes the fans from 'back home' telephone or troop in personally."

Many believe a Senator or Representative can get tickets for them through "pull," or, at least, obtain better seats than they could by applying through the regular channels at the military and naval academy athletic offices.

The truth is, explained one Senator, members of Congress do get a few complimentary tickets. Beyond this, he said, their status is just that of plain folks and Johnny Jones' chance of getting additional pasteboards is just as good as theirs.

"It has become such a bother that I've adopted a policy of refusing all requests," one legislator said.

He explained it this way:

"A member of Congress may agree to apply for 20 or 40 tickets for various friends at the regular price. But he seldom gets the total he has requested.

"The tickets are apportioned out and the demand always is larger than the supply, so everyone's order—of any size—is trimmed. Then the legislator has the problem of trying to figure out who should get the available tickets and who should be refused. Somebody gets sore either way.

"The tickets aren't mailed from West Point or Annapolis until a few days before the game. Persons depending on the Senator for tickets become jittery and begin wiring and telephoning about their ducats. The Senator can't say 'yes' and he can't say 'no.'

"It's a batch of trouble any way you look at it," he concluded. "And it practically requires a bookkeeper in some offices to keep the situation straight. You've got to get the money back from the academies for tickets not sold and return it to those who didn't get to the game."

It would be simple, he sighed, if people would just write to the academies, early and direct.

Rioter, Ridden by Gentleman Jockey, Wins Laurel Feature

Steeplechase Entry Pays Only $2.70

A Staff Correspondent.

Laurel, Md., Oct. 21.—Thomas Hitchcock's Rioter, perfectly handled by Rigan McKinney, the gentleman rider, won the twenty-fifth running of the Chevy Chase Steeplechase Handicap, feature event of the Maryland Farms, Inc., program.

Taking the 14 fences in bold and faultless fashion, Rioter led three others to the wire in the 2-mile test.

The Reflector—Lauretta gelding, spotting his rivals from 19 to 25 pounds, had a margin of two and a half lengths over Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's Lord Johnson and another length over F. Ambrose Clark's Birmingham at the finish. Jungle King, the only other starter and carrying the colors of the Greentree Stable, was a distant fourth. Jungle King won the event in 1934.

The combination of the star gelding and the capable McKinney, who rode Actor to victory in the 1930 renewal, drew the bulk of the betting and Rioter returned a $2.70 mutuel, the shortest winning payoff of the Maryland season. His time of 3:55 1-5 was mediocre. The race was worth $2,105 to the winner.

Lord Johnson was first to show in front as the field got underway. Jockey H. Clements shook him up before taking him in hand. Rioter was taken under wraps while saving ground with Birmingham and Jungle King close. McKinney did not ask Rioter for speed until the second time around. With five fences to go, Rioter was turned loose and bounded past Lord Johnson. The latter had been attempting to run out, but Clements went to the whip and the gelding held on courageously. McKinney kept Rioter to a strong hand ride after taking the final jump.

Silvery Cloud Wins.

Silvery Cloud, a busy filly, finally made good by winning the second race from a group of cheap routers. The daughter of Neddie met with some early interference but overcame it to take the lead entering the stretch and was kept going by Jockey Westrope. Irish Vote was beaten two lengths with Alice Byrd third and a half length away. The winner, owned by Claude Feltner, paid a $12.50 mutuel and ran the mile and a furlong in 1:54.

The first dead heat of the Maryland season developed in the third race when Crowded Hours and Sun Abbot finished all even for third money in a field of nine. The race was won by Mrs. W. H. Denham's Little Argo with J. C. Taylor's Canpra second. Little Argo forged to the front as the field entered the stretch and won by a length. The winner rewarded with a $16.10 mutuel and was clocked in 1:54 1-5 for the mile and a furlong.

Le Blanc Scores Double.

J. B. Belk's Wise Sister, with Apprentice Le Blanc in the saddle, defeated a field of five other sprinters in the fifth race. Wisely reserved off the pace of Sun Antioch, Wise Sister bounded to the front as the stretch was reached and easily held sway thereafter. Lovely Girl closed some ground to be second in a camera finish with Sun Antioch. Wise Sister paid a $13.60 mutuel and was clocked in 1:12 1-5.

H. Le Blanc rode his second winner of the day when Leo J. Mark's Must Be took a head decision over Buck Langhorne in the sixth race. Calumet Dick managed to salvage third money in the field of five contesting at a mile and a sixteenth. Weston set the pace for a half and collapsed as Must Be went to the front. Buck Langhorne came up to head Must Be, but the latter came again to take the chief award. The winner's mutuel was $13.40, and the time 1:45.

Indian summer weather greeted today's turf program at this plant and the favorite players took it on the chin in the opening event. Boulevard, from the Vanderbilt barn, was backed into odds-on favoritism, but was forced to take a neck defeat from Molasses Bob, representing the Branncastle Farm. Third money went to Jim Corn, owned by J. W. Brown. The winner had only a scattered backing and paid an $18.30 mutuel. He was clocked in 1:14 1-5

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MOLASSES BOB, $18.30, $4.40, $3.80; BOULEVARD, $2.80, $2.30; JIM CORN, $4.20.

MOLASSES BOB, in close attendance of the pace of HAPPY HOSTESS from the beginning, forged to the front leaving the backstretch and withstood a long drive to stave off closing bid of BOULEVARD. The latter was forced to go to the outside for racing room and gained steadily, but Fallon appeared to ride overconfidently. JIM CORN closed gamely from a slow beginning. MAX B., within striking distance of the pacemakers, failed to rally in the stretch after racing wide. MISS ADELINE was pinched along the rail at the far turn and went evenly. MR. DUNCANNON could not keep up. The others were outrun.

SECOND RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:04. Off at 2:06½. Winner, C. Feltner's ch. or rn. f. (4), by Neddie—Sunny Cloud. Trained by C. M. Feltner. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:48 2-5, 1:13 4-5, 1:40 4-5, 1:54.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SILVERY CLOUD, $12.50, $6.00, $3.50; IRISH VOTES, $4.30, $3.00; ALICE BYRD, $2.60.

SILVERY CLOUD, forced to be taken in hand when crowded at the first turn, was under slight restraint while close to the pace along the backstretch, circled ALICE BYRD and TAMBOV to take command nearing the stretch and was kept to a drive to the end. IRISH VOTE, closer than usual during the early running, had no mishaps and closed with good energy. ALICE BYRD saved ground throughout while setting and pressing the pace, but faltered in the final three-sixteenths. ENERGETIC LADY gained sharply swinging for the stretch, but could not menace. TAMBOV ran on the outside of ALICE BYRD, but tired slightly in the final stages. TELL IT had early speed.

THIRD RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:36. Off at 2:37. Winner, Mrs. W. H. †Dead heat for third place.
Two-dollar mutuels paid—LITTLE ARGO, $16.10, $6.70, $3.10; CANPRA, $9.40, $4.10; CROWDED HOURS, $2.30; SUN ABBOT, $2.40.

LITTLE ARGO rated while within striking distance of the leaders, took command with a rush in the early stretch and held sway thereafter under a strong hand ride. CANPRA, in trouble repeatedly on the swing to the backstretch, came wide entering the final straightaway and closed with a rush. SUN ABBOT, steered to the inside of SEEDLING to go to the front on the backstretch, was tiring at the end. CROWDED HOURS went to contention with a rush at the final bend, but hung in the last eighth. JUSTA FLIGHT, rushed to gain a forward position, faltered. TAUNTON failed to rally when put to drive. SEEDLING stopped badly after settling the pace.

DAILY DOUBLE PAID $156.00.

FOURTH RACE—About 2 miles. Purse, $2,500 added. The Chevy Chase Steeplechase. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to the post at 3:06½. Off at 3:07. Winner, T. Hitchcock's br. g. (4), by Reflector—Lauretta. Trained by P. Green. Net value to winner, $2,105; second, $500; third, $230; fourth, $75., Time, 3:55 1-5. (14 jumps.)

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RIOTER, $2.70, $2.50, out; LORD JOHNSON, $3.30, out; BIRMINGHAM, out.

RIOTER, fencing faultlessly and saving ground while under a tight grip for a mile and a half, took command when turned loose approaching the tenth fence, shook off LORD JOHNSON and was stoutly hand ridden on the flat nearing the end. LORD JOHNSON was sent to the front under hustling tactics, bore out repeatedly from the seventh to ninth fences, put to punishment when displaced and hung on gamely. BIRMINGHAM closed some ground after being reserved for a mile. JUNGLE KING made a bad landing at the fourth fence and tired slightly.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:35½. Off at 3:37½. Winner, J. B. Belk's ch. f. (4), by Wise Counsellor—Aranga. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:47 2-5, 1:12 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WISE SISTER, $13.60, $5.30, $3.60; LOVELY GIRL, $5.30, $3.50; SUN ANTIOCH, $3.10.

WISE SISTER, rated off the pace of SUN ANTIOCH to the stretch, took command on the outside of the pacemaker entering the stretch and drew out and was being eased at the end. LOVELY GIRL, allowed to settle into stride, gained steadily after the opening furlong, but could not menace the winner. SUN ANTIOCH was rushed to the front at once and tired after opening a gap. CHIEF CHEROKEE and LEMONT were outrun.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,100; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:05. Off at 4:05½. Winner, L. J. Marks' ch. g. (3), by Misstep—Ridicule II. Trained by M. Lowenstein. Value to winner, $800; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:46 3-5, 1:12 1-5, 1:38 4-5, 1:45.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MUST BE, $13.40, $4.90, $3.30; BUCK LANGHORNE, $7.40, $3.80; CALUMET DICK, $2.50.

MUST BE, closest to the pace of WESTON, saved ground entering the stretch, took command and came again under vigorous handling after being headed by BUCK LANGHORNE inside the eighth pole. BUCK LANGHORNE, hard ridden throughout, came to the outside of leader entering the stretch, rallied to get to the front when shaken up, but hung in the last 20 yards. CALUMET DICK, allowed to race on own course to the backstretch, gained gradually thereafter. CHASAR rallied only mildly when put to drive. WESTON was used up leading the pace.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:41. Off at 4:41. Winner, E. K. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TEDDY HASLAM, $13.00, $7.40, $6.00; ROWES CRUMP, $18.40, $10.30; CHAMBERSBURGER, $9.80.

TEDDY HASLAM, sent to the front in the run to the first turn, was rated along while opening a gap and held advantage while under a drive in the late stages. ROWES CRUMP worked his way to the leaders entering the stretch and closed willingly. CHAMBERSBURGER dropped back swinging for the stretch and then came again in the closing eighth. BABWRACK gained sharply swinging for the stretch, but hung. KNIGHTS FANCY dropped out of it after the opening quarter. SHYNO quit after chasing the pace.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:11. Off at 5:13. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ASHEN, $5.20, $3.30, $2.50; PEPPER PATCH, $3.90, $2.50; PUMICE STONE, $3.00.

ASHEN disposed of PUMICE STONE to take command midway of the backstretch and withstood a long drive to stave off PEPPER PATCH. The latter, steadied along within striking distance of the leaders, came around on outside to engage ASHEN, but hung in the final eighth. PUMICE STONE tired gradually after six furlongs. INDIAN NEWS made up some ground in the late stages. SUNDROPS was held safe. TUTTICURIO dropped back after the opening quarter.

Tough Wake Forest at Full Strength for Game With Colonials

Daniel Is Star Of Deacons' Offense

Allen, Morris, Warren Are Threats for Tilt Tomorrow Night.

Whatever hopes George Washington gridmen had of getting a "breather" in Wake Forest Friday night at the Stadium were completely dispelled yesterday on receipt of word from the deacons that they will have their full complement of men available for the fray.

It was first thought that Capt. Ed Rogers, guard, would be unable to play because of an injury received in the Clemson game here last week. But the team physician, Dr. George Mackie, examined the boy yesterday and announced that he will be ready for duty this week. The same team that has started every game for Wake Forest this season will open against the downtown school.

The offense will be built around "Hobo" Daniel, 190-pound fullback, with "Jug" Allen, calling signals and Dallis Morris, 150-pound safety man, and Harold Warren, at the halves. The last two are considered the team's most dangerous scoring threats. Morris returned a punt 58 yards for a touchdown against North Carolina, and went 45 yards for a score in the Wofford game.

Warren took off on a 60-yard dash on the first play of the North Carolina State game, and followed up with a 48-yard touchdown run with an intercepted pass, clinching his team's victory over the Wolfpack. Last week, against Clemson, he broke loose for 38 yards on a nice bit of broken-field running.

Walton Kitchin, the Deacs' ace in the hole, will be held out of the starting line-up, awaiting an opportunity to turn loose his vaunted aerial attack against George Washington. Although Kitchin is best known for his passing, he can carry and kick the cowhide, averaging 39 yards on punts last season. Another back the downtown school must watch is Porter Sheppard, who scored the winning touchdown against Wofford on a 58-yard punt return.

Miss Dettweiler Wins in Texas Golf Play

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 21.—Helen Dettweiler, 21-year-old Washington, D. C., golfer, swept into the quarter-finals of the Texas Women's Open Golf tournament today, after eliminating Mrs. A. Wilson, of San Antonio, 6 and 5.

Three up at the turn, Miss Dettweiler went out in 41, and played the remaining four holes in even men's par.

Babe Didrikson, only woman professional in the championship, put out Kathryne Pearson, of Houston. Other survivors are Mrs. David C. Gaut, of Memphis; Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite, of Fort Worth; Mrs. R. E. Winger, of Fort Worth; Mrs. Alice Newbold and Mrs. A. Hury.

tween the two Jesuit rivals. Not since 1922 when the Crusaders hung a 10-0 shellacking on the District eleven have they met. The year previous Georgetown walloped the Cross, 28-7, in its third consecutive triumph over the foe. Georgetown won the 1913 game between the schools, 16-7, and also captured the first ever played between the two in 1904, 17-4.

Georgetown holds the upper hand in series play with its 1937 opponents in all but two instances, Penn and West Virginia.

Bullis Prep Gridmen Beat Training School

Bullis Prep defeated National Training School, 26 to 0, yesterday at National Training School, with Lenz and McFadden, Bullis backs, starring.

Haynes in Draw.

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich.

This department will never cease to wonder at the glibness of the tout who can't pronounce the name of a single horse in the race, yet talks freely of the merits of each—you know the type.

I don't mean the low, scavenger tout who collars the unsuspecting at the race track, represents himself as Jockey Robertson's brother, and whispers into your ear the name of the "sure thing" in the next race, with the request that you buy a ticket for him along with your own. It is not these "con" men of whom I speak.

POVICH.

Rather, it is the higher-type of tout who bets his own money until it runs out and only then takes to tipping in the hope of swinging a fellow on a winner that will bring him a reward. These are the men who know their horses but have fallen on evil times. Race-track bred, as a rule, they never were schooled in the art of reading and long since gave up trying to pronounce the screwy names that usually mark race horses.

"That Bradley filly can fall down, roll over, get up and still win this race. There's nothin' in there that can push her except that Whitney thing and he'll chuck it in the stretch. 'Course, there's that mare by Gallant Fox, Whatsername, but she won't get nuthin' in this company. That chestnut outa the Vanderbilt barn is strictly a sprinter and the big horse Greentree is saddling is outclassed."

Thus, without mentioning the name of a single horse, they make themselves understood, and I, for one, marvel.

Up at Georgetown University, in the gymnasium office of Head Coach Jack Hagerty, the discussion turned yesterday to the backfield talent on Washington college teams.

Publicity Man Rome Schwegel, of G. U., beamed as a reporter mentioned that Georgetown's Tom Keating appeared to be a standout this season among local backs. A Catholic University alumnus opined that you couldn't judge 'em yet—that Irish Carroll had not untracked himself, but would before many more Saturdays. Somebody put in a plug for Joey Kaufman and Vic Sampson, of George Washington.

And then, Mr. Hagerty, who had taken no part in the conversation until this point, startled the gathering. He hauled right off and declared:

"The best back in Washington is not Keating. And it isn't Carroll or Kaufman or any of those others. The best back in Washington is that big Guckeyson, out at Maryland—the best by plenty.

"That Guckeyson is the best back I ever did see in college football, and I've seen a few. You think he's just a good runner, huh? Lemme tell you something. He has a great football head on those shoulders and he'll not only outrun any back in Washington, but he'll outthink him. That's why he's the best."

The public prints in recent weeks have been building Washington fans up to a terrific let-down with their exclusive stories of winter trades that will bring to the Nats a first-rate catcher and other necessary adjuncts to a winning team.

Infielder Bill Werber, of the Red Sox, and Catcher Rollie Hemsley, of the Browns, are supposed to be the most prominent players for whom Clark Griffith is angling, and in the projected Werber deal, Pitcher Buck Newsom is supposed to be the chief bait.

Well, Washington has about as much chance of obtaining this pair as it has to win the 1934 pennant. In the first place, there are at least five clubs in a position to outbid the Nats for either player and, secondly, Washington, with the exception of Newsom, has no trading material whatsoever.

And, thirdly, Clark Griffith has no intention of trading Newsom. He recognizes the eccentric right-hander as his absolutely best gate attraction, and Griffith was never the one to overlook that item in his plans for his ball club. It is a conservative guess that Newsom pitched half of the Nats' Sunday games here, which ought to be the tip-off. Griffith is destined to be an onlooker at the winter trading sessions.

Georgetown Prep Plays St. Paul's on Saturday

Georgetown Prep School's gridiron forces will meet an added starter Friday at Garrett Park, where they engage the St. Paul's Academy eleven, of Washington, at 3:30 o'clock.

It will be the second game of the year for Ed Hargaden's pupils, who have high hopes of chalking up their second straight victory. Friends School was defeated in the inaugural, 13-0, by the smooth-functioning Prep attack.

This is St. Paul's second year of competition in local prep school circles.

It's Bye-Bye Football For Dear Old Ossining

Ossining, N. Y., Oct. 21 (AP).—The undefeated Sing Sing Prison football team will play no more games, Clement Ferling, secretary to Warden Lewis E. Lawes said today.

A ruling by Commissioner of Correction Edward P. Mulrooney that the general public could not be charged for admission to games cut off the source of revenue and the prison team was unable to find any teams willing to play for nothing.

The Sing Sing team had won three games and tied one, scoring 126 points to none for its opponents.

Olson to Meet Dusek on Mat Tonight

Rematch Follows Brawl at Arena Last Week Which Dusek Won.

Cliff Olson, the bouncing Swede, will have a chance to have his features mussed up again at Turner's arena tonight when he engages in a bit of blatant burping against Ernie Dusek, the roughest rassler of them all.

Clifford was all messed up in a previous bout with earnest Ernie only last week, and it is because of that mussing that the return exhibition has been arranged. It seems that the previous bout developed into a soccer game, in which each contestant used his opponent's noggin for the ball.

At the end of the game, Dusek was one kick up on his antagonist, which gave him the official decision, but many believed Capering Clifford had won and there followed a loud and prolonged squawk. That squawk has been answered by the return bout, which should make everybody happy as the first meeting between these two bruising brawlers set a new high for action, even at the arena.

Because most of those present, including Olson himself, were dissatisfied with the manner in which Referee Cyclone Burns officiated at the first meeting, Bennah (Bubble) Bortnick, the globular arbiter, will serve as third man in the ring tonight.

Golfing Mother Proves Heroine In Match Here

By Dave Herman.

Mrs. Agnes Bowden, a golfing mother, emerged as the heroine of Washington's victory over an all-star Baltimore team in their annual battle yesterday at Columbia Country Club, 11½ to 9½.

Shooting an 87 for one of the lowest round she ever has scored, rattling off ten one-putt greens in a streak of uncanny putting, and accumulating five timely pars and two birdies, Mrs. Bowden teamed with Mrs. C. P. Medley, of Manor, to defeat Katherine Heusler and Mrs. Fred Lines, of Baltimore, in the deciding match of the day.

With Mrs. Bowden and Mrs. Medley yet to be heard from, the District stars trailed by 1 point, being in arrears, 8½ to 9½.

At least 2½ points were needed, if Washington hoped to turn back its Monumental City rivals. Mrs. Bowden and Mrs. Medley were more than equal to the occasion.

Mrs. Bowden, whose son-in-law, Roland Mackenzie, is professional at Congressional Country Club, and whose daughter is a prominent District golfer, nailed a 20-footer for a birdie deuce on the sixteenth to put her side 1 up, and on the home hole rendered victory more complete by winning with a grand 5. It was a 3-point sweep for the District golfers.

Mrs. Bishop Hill, of Chevy Chase, and Mrs. J. Francis Dowdall, of Congressional, won 3 points, overcoming Mrs. T. S. Schluderberg and Mrs. W. Bahm.

Washington (11½), Baltimore (9½).

Western Reserves Bow to Episcopal B

Outfought by their lighter opponents for three quarters, Episcopal High School's "B" squad hit its stride in time to score a single touchdown in the final quarter for a 7-0 victory over Western High School's reserves this afternoon on Hoxton Field.

After they had failed to advance past the 40-yard line the Maroons found themselves in scoring position shortly after the final period was under way when an exchange of punts gave them possession of the leather on the Western 35-yard line. On a cleverly executed reverse, Bill Bell ran to the 11-yard line where he was down by the Western secondary, and Neff scored on the next play on an off-tackle thrust.

Outstanding for Western in their losing fight were Hill and Shansey, while Bell and Neff were the whole show for the Bees.

Devitt, C. U. Frosh To Play Saturday

The Devitt Prep-C. U. Frosh gridiron meeting on the Cardinal field, Saturday at 2 p. m., is one of the few bright spots on an uninteresting football week-end here.

Neither team sustained any injuries in their last week's victories, in which Devitt defeated National Training School, 26-0, and the Baby Cards downed Staunton Military Academy, 12-6.

The Devitt eleven counts on the speed and all-round ability of Lee Fones, last year's Virginia all-State halfback, to score for them with plenty of defensive beef in the forward wall, which is bolstered principally by Ben Cohen, last year's South Philadelphia High flash, and Howard Fields, of Lorain, Ohio.

With a well-balanced team, producing as yet no sensations, Coach La Fons' C. U. Freshmen expect to combat with consistency all that their prep school opponents can offer in brilliant deceptive plays.

Meade Annexes Regular Berth With Terps

Coach Frank Dobson watched his sensational rookie drive his 190 pounds of brawn through the Colonial line with the east of a Mack truck rolling downhill and forthright decided that the bench was no place for a boy of his ability.

Meade's promotion gives Dobson the opportunity of employing a bit of strategy against the New York eleven, enabling him to hold Coleman Headley in reserve to be used at crucial periods. Headley, a smart, shifty ball carrier who has been an important factor in the Terps' successes thus far, will relieve Charley Ellinger at quarterback, and also sub for Guckeyson. He shared the signal-calling duties with Ellinger last year and in the first three games of the season, and is just as dangerous as Guckeyson playing the safety position.

Maryland used new plays it will employ Saturday, availing itself of Guckeyson's talents, but not overlooking those of Meade, who will have an important role.

Ella Lemerick Rolls 357 Set For Swanee

Ella Lemerick, long-time star in the Ladies' District Bowling League, last night led the Swanee team's two victories over Georgetown with a 357 set.

The Lucky Strike team upset the strong National Beer five three games when Helen Sullivan chipped in with a 124 game and 344 set. In blanking the Brewers, Lucky Strike turned in a 551 game and total pinfall of 1,597, the latter tops for the night.

Virginia Calvagno shared in Temple's odd-game decision over R. E. A. Cleaners and Edith Orpin led Convention Hall's two wins over Arcadia.

Jim Druen (Hibbs Co.) and Jim Hayden (City Bank) shared individual honors in the Bankers League, the former rolling a 143 game and the latter a 356 set. As a result of Hayden's big contribution, City Bank shot a 584 game and 1,641 total.

Schaeffer Motor Co. toppled the maples for two new-season-record scores last night in the Petworth League, chalking up a 621 game and 1,706 set. Bill Sattler touched off the new marks with a 145 game.

By taking an odd-game decision from Little Tavern Shop, Petworth retained its spot in the No. 1 position.

MEN PAST 40
Many men at 40, in perfect health, without an ache or pain, wonder why they aren't as strong and as vigorous as they were 5 or 10 years ago. Mental and physical fatigue is the cause in the majority of cases. Fortunately this condition can be helped by the use of a recently discovered hormone. This hormone stimulates the glandular system to greater activity—helps build up lowered vitality.
This hormone is now available, together with other valuable ingredients in Zo-ak Tablets (Blue Box for men—Orange Box for women) and are sold and recommended by Unity Drug Stores and all chains. Zo-ak is the formula of a distinguished American physician who has written a booklet called "For Men Who Want to Live," a copy of which will be sent in a plain sealed envelope by Zo-ak Co., 34 W. 45th St., N. Y.

Owens Speaks At Howard U. Chapel

Olympic Hero Says Hitler Is 'Fine Fellow;' on Stump for Landon.

Jesse Owens, hero of the 1936 Olympics, spent three hours in Washington yesterday and consumed most of that time at Howard University, where he told some 2,000 students jammed into the chapel that Olympic officials were all right, and Herr Hitler was a "fine fellow with plenty of dignity."

Owens, on a whirlwind tour of the country in behalf of Gov. Alf Landon, also took occasion to praise his Negro Olympic teammate, Ralph Metcalfe.

Col. West Hamilton, of 428th Infantry, who brought Owens and his party to Howard, left on the train with him, and will be with him until after Election Day.

Today Owens will speak in Philadelphia. Then he will proceed to New York, where he will talk over terms of his contract with Fox Film. Owens will make two pictures for Fox, he said yesterday.

Inter-American Horse Show Today

American, will head the Chilean aggregation.

Maj. John T. Cole captains the American riders. On the United States' team are Lieut. Raymond W. Curtis, Capt. Milo H. Matteson and Maj. Hiram E. Tuttle, all of whom competed in the 1936 Olympics.

Another highlight of the show will be the interstate civilian team jumping, in which representatives from the District, Maryland and Virginia will battle it out. That contest also will be held today, Saturday and Sunday.

The feature of tomorrow's show will be the international individual jumping, in which members of the various teams will compete for personal honors.

Reserved parking space is available at the show grounds, which may be reached by driving out Sixteenth street to its end, then turn left to the grounds. The site may also be reached by driving out Connecticut avenue, turning right at the Columbia Country Club.

Box seats are available at $15 per box (accommodating six people), each day, or $50 for the entire show. Reserved seats are priced at $1 each per day and general admissions are 50 cents. Capacity crowds are expected for the entire four days of the show, which begins each day at 2 p. m.

Steel Projects Held Up Until After Election

Decline in Structural Demand Cuts Rate to 74 Per Cent.

New York, Oct. 21.—"Steel ingot production, which rose to a peak of 75½ per cent in the first week of October, has declined to 74 per cent," says Iron Age in its weekly summary today. The review adds:

"This week's drop has occurred mainly in the Pittsburgh and Chicago areas and is attributed primarily to a falling off in structural steel, a good many construction projects, both private and Government-financed, having been held up until after election. The Pittsburgh district rate is 72 per cent, or 4 points lower than last week, while the Chicago average is down 1½ points to 74½ per cent.

"Whether the decline is a temporary one is not clearly discernible. In sheets and bars, the most commonly used products, demand is mounting. Sheet mills are barely able to supply the needs of their regular customers and are turning away business from the occasional buyer for delivery at any time during this quarter.

"Although present backlogs are ample in sheets and bars, a winter slackening in building work might find mills rolling other products in need of tonnage before many weeks unless pending railroad programs are converted into actual steel orders for the heavier products within the near future.

"At the moment the requirements of the railroads appear to be the largest immediate source of new steel buying. Nearly 100,000 tons of rails have been purchased within the past week, including 55,162 tons by the Southern Pacific and 23,000 tons by the Southern Railway, and further buying is in prospect, though there may be some delay owing to the extension of the current rail price to December 1 for delivery through March of next year. Upward of 110 locomotives and several hundred cars, for which inquiries have been issued, are likely to be awarded shortly. Car repair programs are increasing and include 1,000 all-steel cars to be rebuilt by the Baltimore & Ohio.

"Reflecting the slightly easier situation at Pittsburgh, both as to steel production and supplies of scrap, the price of heavy melting steel at that point has declined 25 cents a ton for the second consecutive week, bringing a decline in the Iron Age scrap composite to $16.58."

Kennecott and Utah Plan Copper Merger

New York, Oct. 21 (AP).—Seeking a unified corporate set-up which will eliminate intercorporate dividend taxes, directors of Utah Copper Co. have proposed a merger with Kennecott Copper Corporation, it was disclosed today.

Kennecott owns 99 per cent of the Utah's stock. As a first step in consolidation, it is proposed to merge Utah Copper Corporation with Utah Copper Co., according to a letter sent by the Utah management to stockholders. Under this plan, holders of Utah Copper Co. stock will receive for each share held three shares of stock in the Copper Corporation of Utah

Financing Expected By Republic Steel

New York, Oct. 21 (AP).—Further financing by Republic Steel Corporation to provide capital for improvements was foreshadowed today by reports in financial circles the Cleveland steel concern would register soon an issue of $25,000,000 of bonds.

Investment quarters indicated public offering of the bonds might be expected around mid-November. Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and Field, Glore & Co. were mentioned as likely to lead the underwriting syndicate.

The Market

Stocks Are Firm in Motor and Specialty Groups; Speculative Bonds Advance.

New York, Oct. 21.—Stocks improved in several sectors, specialties were strong and other groups moved uncertainly over short distances. Closing prices were near the best, with modest gains in the majority. Turnover was about the same as yesterday, around 1,700,000 shares. The lower grades of bonds were firm and the best were stationary. December wheat closed a quarter of a cent higher at 114⅝ cents a bushel.

While some of the public utility stocks continued active and strong, especially in the preferred list, the tendency of traders was to turn to the motor shares. General Motors, with a quarterly statement coming next Saturday or Monday, and with a dividend meeting set for early November, was the center of interest. The stock climbed 2 points to the best level seen since 1929. Sales volume was the largest on the list. Chrysler scored a similar gain.

Oils were rather narrow. Standard made some progress. Fractionally lower prices were the rule in the utility group. Prominent exceptions were the American & Foreign Power issues, which advanced sharply and were bullishly talked in some quarters. Rails came forward during the late trading, when early reports on traffic indicated that a new top would be set. Union Pacific recovered yesterday's loss of more than 3 points.

Specialties Rise.

Motor accessory shares found conditions more to their liking, but steel stocks gave up fractions, as did the metals. Chemicals were inspired by Dupont, which reflected General Motor's buoyancy. Columbian Carbon, with a good report expected, and Allied Chemical suffered a little from profit taking. Most other groups were irregular.

In the specialty list Greyhound sprang forward on news of a recapitalization plan. Kelvinator, figuring in a merger with Nash, was strong. Bulova Watch, apparently becoming a speculative counter, was shoved forward. American Can came to life with a gain of more than 2 points. Continental also improved. Both are in the small class of issues currently quoted under the final prices of last year.

Substantially higher prices were paid for Continental Diamond Fiber, Crown Cork, Cutler-Hammer, Flintkote, General American Transportation, Paraffine, Thatcher and Worthington Pump. Mail order shares perked up. Case rose 3 points. American Telephone found buyers above 180.

Election Influence.

Although most of the midweek business indices uphold the view that business is maintaining a fairly good pace, some intimation is coming that the uncertainties of the election is putting on the brakes a little bit. Partly because of the short time between now and election, and partly for other reasons, that doesn't promise in itself to be a reason for turning bearish on the outlook, but the inferences to be drawn from the reports vouched for in usually well informed quarters, are by no means favorable.

This week's operations of the steel industry have fallen a point or so. The present level still is high. However, the Iron Age attributes the recession to a drawing in of orders, principally from the structural industry, awaiting the outcome of the election. In most quarters the view predominates that with a New Deal upset the expansion of business would be greatly accelerated and the converse is true with victory for the Administration.

In so far as public works are concerned, it is conceivable that the rejection of Roosevelt would halt work on many projects, although no early slump would be experienced. In any event the heavy industries think private enterprise would more than fill the gap left by the Government, and the main point is that private construction, replacement orders and improvements generally would recede, in the event of re-election for the radicals, at least until time answered the question of whether all the old brakes would be again applied. Chief among them is the NRA, and its reapplication is plainly indicated—either with a changed Supreme Court or the willingness of the States to vote a constitutional amendment.

More Betting.

Wall Street has solved at least one betting mystery—the source of the dough pile that appeared a short time ago with the immediate effect, of lifting the betting odds to 3 to 1 on Roosevelt. Actual bona fide betting had been carried on sporadically at much closer odds, but when the big dough arrived it was offered in large blocks (no odd lots accepted) at the higher quotation. The frequency with which would-be takers were met with the news that "the wager has been covered' aroused suspicion from the start, although some bets actually were made at the higher odds. The story which is now accepted in all quarters of Wall Street and which has gone into the bag of routine talk at the race tracks and other betting circles is that a large industrialist, finding himself in a bit of a finanical argument with the powers, took the hint that he might do more for the cause by pulling up the betting odds for the delectation of newspaper readers than in any other way. A half million seemed to be about the right amount to straighten matters. Wall Street, incidentally, doesn't think the election outcome is by any means a 3-to-1 shot.

Insiders.

The ranks of the sold out bulls were increased considerably in August, according to further reports by SEC of sales by directors and heavy holders. The batch just reported covers operations made mostly in August, although some go several months further back. Thanks to a recent ruling of the SEC, these delayed reports will presumably disappear, and all insiders will be required to report their operations within a month or so after the event. Nearly all the transactions of importance in the current statements were on the selling side, but the market has yet to show whether the insiders were as far-sighted as they are supposed to be. Industrial stocks a day or two ago have reached a new high level, as shown by The Sun's compilation of average prices.

Arbitrage.

"Is this," asks a reader, "an off season for arbitrageurs?" He writes that in London on Monday Electrical & Musical Industries ordinary shares closed at 24 shillings 3 pence, ex dividend a shilling. Sterling closed here at $4.88⅞. Using round numbers of $4.90 to the pound, the stock in dollars at $5.94125 and the dividend of 1 shilling, or .245 cents, made a total of $6.18625 of value. The American shares will go ex dividend on November 24, and yet they closed Monday at $5.75 per share.

Hot Money.

One of the nicest plums to fall into the hands of bondholders during this whole period of refunding was voted today by American Telephone directors. Holders of the collateral 5s will not have to wait until the redemption date, December 1, to get their money. They can have it now, 40 days before it is due. Similarly, holders of the debenture 5s of 1960 can collect in full at any time beginning tomorrow, although payment is not due until January 1. The amounts due on these dates are $69,767,500 and $132,732,777, respectively. No deductions will be made on account of advance payment. This arrangement helps out the paying agent by cutting down the deposit insurance premium.

New 1936 Theaters To Cost $26,120,200

New York, Oct. 21.—A total of 502 motion picture theaters will be erected in the United States during 1936 at an aggregate cost of $26,120,200, according to boxoffice, film trade journal. Covering thefirst nine months, the survey indicates an addition of 286,716 seats to the Nation's 11,000,000 theater capacity.

Results of the survey indicate that reports for the first nine months of this year exceed the total of any entire year since 1931. During 1931, theater construction totaled $45,000,000, a drop from $97,580,000 in 1930 and $163,559,000 in 1929. A total of $378,000,000 was spent on theater construction from 1929 to April, 1936.

Export Slump Halts Advance In Wheat Price

Market Declines After Upturn of a Cent a Bushel.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Despite uneasiness over disturbing new political complications in Europe and about adverse Argentine crop reports, wheat today failed to hold 1 cent a bushel upturn.

Wheat closed irregular, ¼ off to ¼ up, compared with yesterday's finish, December, 114⅛@114⅝; May, 113⅛@113¼; July, 98⅝@98¾; corn, ⅛@⅜, advanced, December, 93¾@93⅞; May, 89½@89⅝; July, 86⅝; Oats, ⅛ off to ⅛ up, December, 40⅜, and rye unchanged to ⅝ higher, December, 82⅝. The outcome in provisions varied from 5 cents setback to a bulge of 2 cents.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was quiet today with price changes irregular. After showing early gains of 1 to 7 points on covering promoted by the firmness of crude oil, the market reacted under commission house selling influenced by the unsettlement of lard and cotton.

Fundamental Investors.

The Fundamental Investors, Inc., trust reports the total market value of assets as of September 30 was $6,618,381, and net assets equal to $24.30 a share for 272,817 shares, compared with $22.85 a share as of June 30, 1936, and $20.91 a share, after Federal income tax not now applicable, at the close of 1935.

Export Copper At 10.15 Cents, Five-Year High

Europe Is Buying as Hedge Against Inflation Possibilities.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 21.—A substantial demand for copper by European industries together with buying by continental nations as a hedge against devaluation and inflation were credited with sending the price of export copper today to new high levels since March 1931.

Actual transactions in export copper were reported at 10.15 cents a pound c. i. f. European base ports, compared with the new high yesterday of 10.07 cents. The recent quickening of demand was said to stem from the depleted stocks of nearby export metal which had shrunk sharply following strikes at the Oolen Refinery of Katanga, which kept the properties idle for more than two months. The Spanish civil war also aggravated foreign copper production when operations of the Rio Tinto mines in Spain were disrupted.

The Oolen plant has resumed production and reports recently were received that the Rio Tinto has returned to an operating basis.

The present price of export copper is equal to about 10 cents a pound delivered at the Connecticut Valley base, trade circles said. With the domestic price at 9.75 cents a pound, producers find the export market much more to their liking.

C. & O. 9 Months' Net Is $3.76 Per Share

Chesapeake & Ohio Railway reports for the nine months ended September 30, net income equivalent to $3.76 a share on its common stock, compared with $2.66 in the comparable period last year.

The total, after charges and taxes, including provision for surtaxes on undistributed earnings, was $28,790,544, against $20,414,865 in the 1935 period.

Nash-Kelvinator Merger Reported

New York, Oct. 21 (AP).—A consolidation of Nash Motors Co. and Kelvinator Corporation into a new company would be proposed shortly through and exchange of securities, the Sun says today.

George W. Mason, president and chairman of Kelvinator, is expected to head the new organization and Charles W. Nash, president of the automobile concern, is expected to retire. Manufacturing activities, the Sun said, will be shifted from the Nash plants at Kenosha and Racine, Wis., to Detroit, the present headquarters of Kelvinator which manufactures largely refrigerating equipment.

Greyhound Plans $3 Extra in Stock

New York, Oct. 21 (AP).—Directors of Greyhound Corporation, Chicago bus operators, today declared an extra dividend of $3 a share on the common stock payable in 5½ per cent preference stock.

The action followed an application, filed earlier today in Washington, asking the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to issue $1,953,030 of preference stock to pay the dividend. Directors also ordered a regular quarterly cash dividend of 80 cents on the common stock. Both are payable December 21 to stock of record December 10.

The company's announcement said: "It is anticipated that prior to the dividend payment date a four-for-one split-up of common shares will have become effective so that the dividends on the new common stock would be 75 cents in 5½ per cent preference stock and 20 cents a share in cash."

A stockholders' meeting is to be held November 12 to authorize issuance of the preference stock.

Rail Profits Carry Stocks To New Highs

Net Income for This Year Estimated Highest Since 1930.

New York, Oct. 21.—From a stock market standpoint, an exceedingly interesting development of 1936 has been the recent achievement of the railroad averages in entering new high territory for the bull market, Poor's Investment Advisory Service says today. Although industrials had been in an upward trend since the spring of 1933, rails hitherto had failed to penetrate the highs reached in the summer of that year.

"Security prices in the final analysis reflect corporate earning power, and relative strength in railroad issues at this time stems from the evidence that 1936 profits will be the largest since 1930," says the report. "Thanks chiefly to the broad revival in heavy industry, the carriers are at last participating in the Nation's industrial recovery.

"It must be admitted that the railroads are still faced with three fundamental obstacles: (1) the drift of the more profitable freight traffic to other modes of transportation, particularly motor trucks, pipe lines, and water carriers. (2) The reduction in export markets for domestic wheat and cotton, a factor which has been magnified in the last three years by drought conditions in the United States, but which is nevertheless important. (3) Traffic by the private automobile which has resulted in unprofitable operation of railroad passenger service since 1929."

World Tin Consumption.

International Tin Research & Development Council reports world consumption of tin decreased from 14,035 tons in July to 13,163 tons in August, but increased appreciably over the figure of 11,212 tons for August, 1935.

$35,000,000 Pac. Gas Bonds Offered Today

3½ Per Cent Refunding Issue Is Priced at 102¾ Per Cent.

An offering of $35,000,000 Pacific Gas and Electric Co. first and refunding mortgage bonds, Series I, 3½ per cent, are being offered today by a group of investment banking houses headed by Blyth & Co., Inc. The bonds are dated June 1, 1936, mature in 30 years and are priced at 102¾ per cent and interest.

The purpose of the financing is to provide the funds for redemption of $35,780,000 general and refunding mortgage 5 per cent bonds which are redeemable on January 1, 1937, at 100.

The transaction will be the sixth and final step in a program of refunding commenced by the company in March last year and will bring the total of this financing to $250,000,000. About the same time the company commenced and completed a few months ago a program of corporate consolidations whereby various of its subsidiary companies transferred their properties to the company and were dissolved.

As a result of these transactions, the corporate and funded debt structures of the company and subsidiaries have been greatly simplified and the position of the company's first and refunding mortgage has been strengthened by the elimination of prior lien bonds and inclusion under the direct lien of the mortgage of properties transferred from subsidiary companies.

Associated with Blyth & Co., Inc. in the public offering are: Brown Harriman & Co., Inc., Edward B. Smith & Co., the First Boston Corporation, Lazard Freres & Company, Dean Witter & Co., Bonbright & Company, Inc., H. M. Byllesby and Company and E. H. Rollins & Sons, Inc.

Miss Mordecai, District Native, Dies Here at 97

"Grand Old Lady" of Louise Home; Daughter of Arsenal Head.

Miss Rosa Mordecai, the "grand old lady" of the Louise Home, whose colorful life linked the America of pre-Civil War days with the bustling present, is dead. She was 97 years old.

Death came to Miss Mordecai at the Louise Home, where she had lived for the past 36 years, and of which she was the most venerable and best-beloved inmate.

Daughter of Maj. Alfred Mordecai, U. S. A., Miss Mordecai was born in Washington in 1839. Her father was in command of the Washington Arsenal, and a graduate of West Point in the class of 1823.

The girlhood of Miss Mordecai was spent in the hoop-skirted, duelling-cane age of the Capital before the War Between the States. Often she sat in the Senate galleries and heard the famous debates on States' rights. She studied at fashionable Mme. Burr's School, near the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, which President Lincoln used to attend when he succeeded James Buchanan as Chief Executive, and the cannon started rumbling south of the Potomac.

Her day was the day of Buchanan and Pierce—a day of top hats and leisurely gallantry.

At the outbreak of the war her father, a North Carolinian, was offered command of the troops from the Tar Heel State which would fight for the South. But he could not fight against the Union, any more than he could bear arms against his relatives in Dixie, so he resigned from the Army and took his family to Philadelphia.

Ill Few Days.

Miss Mordecai was ill only a few days. Her friends came often to her bedside. Death was peaceful as ever was one of her classrooms for young ladies back in Philadelphia in the gay 90s.

Surviving Miss Mordecai are two nieces—Mrs. Charles P. Somerall, wife of Gen. Somerall, commandant of Citadel Military Academy, in Charleston, S. C., and Miss Sarah Miley, of Washington.

Services will be held today at 4 p. m. at the Louise Home, with the gray old ladies who loved her attending. Then her body will be taken back to Philadelphia for burial.

Young Slayer, 15, Gets 199 Years

Chicago, Oct. 21 (AP).—Fifteen-year-old Roland Munroe, jr., was convicted tonight of beating an elderly crippled widow to death with her own cane, and heard his punishment fixed by a criminal court jury at 199 years' imprisonment.

Deliberating slightly more than three hours, the jurors disregarded the defense contention that young Munroe, an effeminate-mannered high school student, given to curling his red hair and spraying himself with perfume, was insane by reason of his abnormal tendencies.

Although the jury was qualified for the death penalty, the State did not ask for it. Prosecutors charged Munroe was legally sane when he clubbed Mrs. Agnes Roffeis, 65, to death August 29 in a robbery.

Clevenger Slayer Seeks New Trial

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 21 (U.P.).—A new trial was asked today for the convicted slayer of Helen Clevenger, pretty young New York student, who was murdered in Asheville's Battery Park Hotel last July 16.

The appeal to the North Carolina Supreme Court was based on a single alleged error in the trial and conviction last August of Martin Moore, colored hall boy at the fashionable hotel. It charged Judge Don Phillips, of Buncombe County Superior court erred in allowing the prosecution to introduce as evidence Moore's purported oral confession of the crime to a doctor who examined him.

Supreme Court attaches announced the appeal was scheduled for argument in a group of cases to be heard beginning November 4.

Yale President Denies 'Views' Led to Ouster of Professor

Teachers' Group Attacks Angell, Says Book Caused Action.

By the Associated Press.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 21.—Prof Jerome Davis' charge that his "economic opinions" had led to his being dropped from Yale University faculty was denied today by President James Rowland Angell who said the "budgetary situation" was the sole reason for allowing his contract to lapse.

"No abridgement of academic freedom or liberty of speech is involved in this case," said Angell.

Action Is Assailed.

New York, Oct. 21 (AP).—The American Federation of Teachers in a statement today said that from "evidence gathered by the committee on academic freedom in the colleges," the dismissal of Prof. Davis "clearly appears as a case of the violation of academic freedom in American colleges."

"All the evidence which the committee has secured up to date denies President Angell's statement that Prof. Davis is not being reappointed because of budgetary requirements," the statement said, adding that "Dr. Angell's sudden public statement * * * suggests guilty conscience on the part of the Yale authorities."

The statement said the committee's investigation indicated "that the event which crystallized the decision of the Yale corporation to dismiss Prof. Davis was the publication of his book 'Capitalism and Its Culture.' * * * The publication of the book was held up for some months by threats of libel suits made by corporate interests represented on the Yale corporation. It is also known that President Angell reacted unfavorably to the book."

PROF. JEROME DAVIS.

Labor Nominee Calls New Deal 'Reactionary'

Aiken Assails Contention Roosevelt Is Socialist or Collectivist.

When the siege of ballot boxes is lifted on November 4; when "ruggged individualist" and "New Dealer" drown their political passions together in foaming beer and "Sweet Adeline" there will still be one Presidential aspirant who will not admit that the campaign is at an end.

Swinging through the Capital yesterday on the return lap of an 11,000-mile campaign tour, tall slender, 40-year-old Chelsea (Mass.) hardwood finisher, John W. Aiken, Socialist-Labor Party candidate for President, lashed out at those forces that have "created in America a vast jungle wherein exploited peons are thrown daily to the wild beasts of the profit-motive system."

"There are two classes in present-day society—the exploiting and the exploited," Aiken explained. "Their niterests are diametrically opposed to each other. The so-called middle classes are all fractions of the capitalist class, and as such their interests lie with that class in preserving the present capitalist system."

"How about the reform element, the protagonists of the New Deal?" he was asked.

New Deal 'Reactionary.'

"The reformers merely wrangle among themselves and thus betray the workers," he replied. "The so-called New Deal is reactionary and a menace to progress."

Citing the Rooseveltian dogma, "reform if you would preserve," Aiken derided the contention of red-baiters that the President is a Socialist or a collectivist.

"On the contrary," the Socialist-Labor Party candidate asserted, the President admits that he is making a heroic, but futile, attempt to save capitalism. Since the system cannot be improved and saved, since it will continue to disintegrate and drive the majority of the people to an even lower level, those who seek to perpetuate it by patchwork and reform are playing the role of reactionaries."

"What are the distinguishing features—what is the goal of the Socialist-Labor Party?" Aiken was asked.

"There are three," he replied. "First, we believe that the existing capitalist system cannot, by any reform measure, be made to work for the benefit of the working class. Second, that a Socialist industrial administration must be set up, based on common ownership of the means of production and distribution. This would supplant our present ploitical system of government. The third unique feature of our party is the great importance it attaches to the organization of Socialist Industrial Unions."

Must Seize Industry.

Stating that his party therefore was the political expression of true revolutionary socialism, since it believed in taking over political power via the ballot and spreading the idea of Socialist industrial unionism—i. e., the might behind labor's vote—Aiken declared that when the zero hour came organized workers would stage a unified coup to occupy the workshops of the Nation and take over industry. "Therein lies the only road to industrial freedom and democracy," he stated. "We may have some measure of political freedom now, but our proletariat has economic slavery."

Aiken denounced John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrila Organization as "the same old unionism with a new name"

Youth Indicted In $4,000 Theft; Father Cleared

William Price Accused of Larceny of Antiques at MacArthur Home.

In an indictment returned to Justice Peyton Gordon yesterday the grand jury charged William C. Price, 18, with grand larceny in connection with the theft of antiques valued at $4,000 from Mrs. Mary H. MacArthur, sister-in-law of Maj. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, former chief of staff of the Army.

Mrs. MacArthur said she leased her home at 1854 Kalorama road northwest, to William A. Price, 65-year-old father of William Price. When she returned from a year's absence, Mrs. MacArthur said, she discovered the lock on a room she had reserved for her own use had been tampered with, and the antiques were missing. They were found in the rooms of an art dealer after she had been told some of the dealer's exhibits bore a striking resemblance to some of her priceless heirlooms.

The elder Price was exonerated by the grand jury when it returned a "solo" indictment against his son, who was allegedly identified as the person who disposed of the antiques.

Francis A. Lanahan, 37, former cashier of the Harrington Hotel, was indicted on a charge of embezzling $1,734.12 from the hostelry.

Others indicted were James G. Dukes, sr., and Raymond Edgar Alley, nonsupport; Harry Scott, James A. Williams, John R. Swann, Norman A. Hackley, Richand A. Chisolm, Arthur Richardson, Lawrence L. Gill, Levi Jefferson, James M. Solomon and Mary W. Brown, housebreaking.

Willy Sayles, Fountain Love and Julius H. Jackson, assault with a dangerous weapon; William H. Winfield, Joseph Ross, Robert Bazley, Joseph F. Stone, Walter W. Adams, Fred Brooks, Edward A. Thomas, Edward R. Daniels, Julius Avant and Harry Robinson, robbery; James E. Avery, Robert R. Dennison, Walter Geary, Thomas L. Hill, Wilson Bruce, George Winfred Hall and Cornie Vernon Byrd, joyriding.

Enola Holt, Allen Marshall, Edward L. Martin, Carrie May Williams, Bessie A. Peterson, William M. Beck, Bertha N. Cunningham and William C. Price, grand larceny; William Pierce, Robert Ghee, Allen Ross, George Reid and John Frye, violation of the liquor taxing act of 1934; Clarence W. Bernhardt, Jacob Goldberg, Bery Holliday, Morris W. Ross and Lucky C. Young, gaming charges; Lillie Butler, forgery and uttering; William S. Herndon, grand larceny and forgery.

Those against whom the grand jury ignored charges were Henry S. Holl, joyriding; William A. Price, grand larceny; Paul R. Green, larceny after trust, and Paul W. O'Neill, forgery and uttering.

Packard "Lektro Shaver"

Although this shaver has been advertised almost exclusively to the men, it is just as useful and practical for women. The social season calls for very sheer hosiery and evening gowns. It is so constructed that it easily removes the hair from under arms and on your legs. No danger of cuts or raw spots. Just try it once; we know you'll want to go right on using one. $15
